le to help clean it up," Don Smith said.

Way opposed the motion, saying that if Charlevoix County made such a demand other counties would make the same demand of Charlevoix County. He said that would not be in Charlevoix County's best interest because other landfills have known contamination problems while the one in Charlevoix County does not.

Hass also opposed the proposal saying it would just be another hurdle for other counties to contend with.

When the proposal was put to vote, it failed 5-8.

Don Smith was joined by [illegible]evengood, Johnson, Ferguson and Willson in supporting the motion.

Way and Hass were joined by [illegible]chardson, Jason, Frykberg, [illegible]ieland, C.H. Smith and [illegible]alpass in turning it down.

At the end of the meeting, when the motion was made to approve the plan, only Way voted no. However, some of those who voted yes indicated a major reason for doing so was a fear that the DNR would write something less desirable for Charlevoix County.

ble to help clean it up," Don Smith said.

Way opposed the motion, saying that if Charlevoix County made such a demand other counties would make the same demand of Charlevoix County. He said that would not be in Charlevoix County's best interest because other landfills have known contamination problems while the one in Charlevoix County does not.

Hass also opposed the proposal saying it would just be another hurdle for other counties to contend with.

When the proposal was put to a vote, it failed 5-8.

Don Smith was joined by Levengood, Johnson, Ferguson and Willson in supporting the motion.

Way and Hass were joined by Richardson, Jason, Frykberg, Wieland, C.H. Smith and Malpass in turning it down.

At the end of the meeting, when the motion was made to approve the plan, only Way voted no. However, some of those who voted yes indicated a major reason for doing so was a fear that the DNR would write something less desirable for Charlevoix County.

ZBA sends Burnside building plan back to council

The zoning board of appeals (ZBA) is sending a plan to remodel 212 Bridge, also known as the Burnside Building, back to the city council again.

At the ZBA's March 29 meeting, ZBA members unanimously approved sending the 212 Bridge proposal back to the council. The ZBA has asked councilmen to state reasons for which they denied the site plan for the proposal.

Councilmen rejected the site plan Feb. 6. At the time, councilmen indicated they opposed the plan because it would add a door to the north side of the building. The door would open onto a sidewalk in Bridge Park. (The door would be recessed into the building so it didn't physically protrude into the sidewalk when opened.)

Councilmen said the proposal would lead to increased pedestrian traffic on the sidewalk and in the park. Councilman Ken Whitley said that if the park was private property, he was sure people wouldn't be allowed to traipse across it to go shopping.

Councilman Norm Probert said approving the 212 Bridge Street development plan might open a can of worms in that it might set a precedent for other people who own property adjoining city parks.

The ZBA would like the council to formally state reasons for denial prior to the ZBA's April 26th meeting.

At the ZBA's March 29 meeting, people spoke both for and against the proposal. The proposal previously has received support from the Parks and Recreation Commission, Planning Commission and Downtown Development Authority, According to ZBA minutes, the proposal conforms to the city zoning code. code..

Dan Barron, attorney for Charlevoix Development Company which is the permit applicant, told ZBA members the key question should be "Does the site plan comply to the zoning code?" He said that if the answer is yes, then the site plan must be approved.

Nanci Burnside, a former tenant of the building, concurred with the council action and said that a side doorway isn't necessary as there is an 8 foot hallway inside the building which could serve as an entry point for a second retail business.

Prior to the decision to refer the matter back to the city council, a motion was made to approve the site plan. ZBA members rejected that motion 4-1. Robert Kern voted in favor while Kevin Whitley, Patty Sitzema, John Dixon and Larry Sullivan voted it down.

First steps taken to update city master plan

Charlevoix's current land-use master plan is six years old It is so elaborate that rather than using it as a guide, people find it easier to fly by the seat of their pants and make things up as they go along.

That situation is in the process of being corrected. The second meeting of a committee appointed to update the master plan is scheduled for 7 p.m. April 13 at city hall.

The committee has already met once. At their first meeting the committee discussed problems with the current plan and talked about goals in revising the plan.

The master plan, along with the city zoning ordinance, plays a key role in guiding the community's future growth. Planning commission and update committee chairman Dave Novotny said it's necessary for the plan to be kept up to date and in harmony with the zoning ordinance so the city's planning process can be streamlined.

City planner Gerry Harsch indicated the problem with the current city master plan is that it is too elaborate and has fallen into disuse. He said the master plan should be boiled down into a document people can refer to in order to see what direction the city wants to take.

Determining what direction people in Charlevoix want to take has often proven easier said than done. For that reason, committee representation is broad-based and includes members of the City Council, Planning Commission, Downtown Development Authority, Housing Commission, Recreation Commission and three at-large members.

Harsch said the most important task of the committee is to get some concensus of community opinion as to the intensity of development Charlevoix residents desire. Among the issues within the scope of the master plan are: streets and traffic patterns; affordable housing; intensity of development on Round Lake; lakeshore development on Lake Charlevoix; what is suitable for large vacant lots in the city; commercial and economic development within the city.

Councilman Ken Whitley, who is serving on the committee, said he feels the people of the community are the ones who the revised plan will have to please.

Novotny agreed and noted that the committee must get out and talk with people in the community to make sure the plan drafted is what people want. He said if it's not what people want, then it won't work.

Between the first meeting and the April 13 meeting, committee members are reviewing the cur-

Perhaps the earth creaked a bit Monday evening, but it didn't completely stop revolving on its axis. For the first time in several months, a week passed without a meeting of the Charlevoix City Council. According to a news release, Monday's meeting was cancelled for lack of a quorum. There will be a special council meeting April 10.

Merchants planning promotions

The Charlevoix Merchants' Association, which is a branch of the Chamber of Commerce, is working on a number of projects to stimulate business in 1989.

"We feel there are a number of good products here which local and area people may not be aware of," said association president Bob Hoffman.

One thing the group is looking into is a Charlevoix credit card.

"That's still in the exploratory stages," Hoffman said. "We're looking at it to see if it's feasible."

The credit card would be modeled after similar credit cards used by shopping malls in larger downstate areas. The credit card could be used just like a major credit card in participating Charlevoix stores.

The association is also considering compiling a booklet which would contain discount coupons for various local businesses. Hoffman said the association is hoping businesses such as restaurants and motels would be represented in the booklet in an effort to stimulate Charlevoix's off-season retail business.

A Christmas ad campaign centered around the theme "Shop Charlevoix First" is also in the works. That may include a gift certificate give-away with shoppers registering in participating stores.

"It's just another tool to encourage people to shop Charlevoix first; to give them some incentive to shop Charlevoix," Hoffman explained.

Dig out the bat, ball and glove

Baseball. Yes, baseball. It's here and it's a sure sign of spring.

This week the Detroit Tigers opened their 1989 season. Next week the Charlevoix Rayders open their 1989 season. You'll be able to tell the two teams apart because the Rayders are still a little younger.

While baseball is officially started, softball still is still in the generating interest stage of the year. During this stage the local softball players watch baseball games and start getting in the mood.

About the first step is digging the glove out of the closet. It's been a good, old glove; caught many a ball.

Sure, there have been a few times when the glove dropped balls it should have caught. Gloves can be fickle like that.

Once or twice that old glove has even inspired a terrible rage; a frightful rage causing all maturity and dignity to be cast unto the wind. On those occasions, the glove was thrown to the ground, then kicked around a bit and stomped on.

In retrospect, these outbursts seem foolish, but at the time they seemed the thing to do. It seemed necessary that the glove be taught a firm lesson, that it be shown the error of its ways.

The next step is going out in the yard and tossing the ball around in the yard. And woo be unto the player who attempts to throw heat the first time out in the spring.

On the first toss of the spring, the arm feels like spaghetti and the softball like a cannon ball. The first time out throwing in the spring is a time for lobs. Only after a few weeks of getting the kinks out can a player loosen up and make that ball hiss across the infield.

Hittings another trial in spring. The first few practice swings help limber up a hitter. It comes time to step up to the plate. Then comes the pitch, a big, fat, juicy pitch just begging to be smacked into parts unknown. The hitter picks up his front foot and strides into the pitch. He brings his bat forward with the sole purpose of crushing this ball, sending it sailing into the ozone.

And as the ball plops into the catcher's mitt and the batter unwinds his body from the pretzel position it has assumed, he concedes to himself, "Apparently my timing got a little rusty over the winter."

Running is the final part of softball. Softball has an equation which says age varies inversely to distance. In other words, as the years close in, the bases, groundballs and flyballs somehow move farther away.

K of C raises funds

The Father Pierre Charlevoix, Council 7172 of the Michigan Knights of Columbus collected $1,063.61 in the recent tootsie roll drive to assist the mentally retarded, Len. Staley, grand knight of the council announced.

The local contributions are part of a statewide effort which the last 2 years reached over $1 million net. The total brings to over $9.5 million collected by the Knights of Columbus in the 13 year history of the drive.

Under the program, which is carried out in most of the 292 Knights of Columbus councils in Michigan, people are asked to donate money to the mentally retarded and are given a tootsie roll in appreciation of the gift.

Locally the Bergmann Center and the Charlevoix House will receive contributions from the drive conducted March 17 and 18.

Grand Knight Staley thanked all of those who contributed so generously of their time and money to the success of this years M.R. campaign.

"I know the benefacting agencies are grateful for the generosity of so many people. Through the gifts of the contributors, many mentally handicapped persons will have services and equipment available to make their lives more rewarding."

Chairman of the local campaign was Clem Olach.

rent master plan and related plans. At the April 13 meeting, they will begin discussion of areas of the plan which need revision.

At the March 15 meeting, housing commission and committee member Harold Krutsch asked what becomes of the plan after the committee finishes revising it.

Harsch said the plan is to be reviewed and adopted by the planning commission. following a public hearing.

At-large member Barry Wood asked what would happen if the city council chose not to adopt the revised plan.

Harsch said that from a legal standpoint adoption by the council is not required. He said the reason for that is to keep the city planning one step removed from the political process.

However, Harsch noted that it would be beneficial for the council to adopt the revised plan to show support and give credibility to the city's planning process

Arbor foundation offers trees

Ten free Colorado blue spruce trees will be given to each person who joins the National Arbor Day Foundation during April, 1989.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's effort to encourage tree planting throughout America.

"Colorado blue spruces were selected for this campaign because of their many uses in the home landscape," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said. "They lend beauty to their surroundings with their silver blue-green color and compact conical shape. They can be used as individual ornamentals, an energy-saving windbreak, a privacy screen, or as living Christmas trees."

The trees will be shipped postpaid in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Blue Spruces, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410 by April 30, 1989.

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A plant green with envy

A deep and sinister voice from above said derisively, "You stupid little things. Every spring it's like this. Another group of seedlings. Another crop of ignorance."

Timothy and Ellen, all innocent and new, looked up in fear at the evil spider plant Sybil, who dangled above them in a hanging planter.

Moments before, Timothy had been confined in a place where it was too warm, too damp and too dirty, much too dirty. In fact, he was surrounded by dirt.

Timothy needed some space. He needed fresh air. He needed to feel the sun shining full in his face.

Timothy pushed at the walls around him. He strained. He struggled. Finally, he burst from the shell seed and squirmed toward to the surface.

For the first time in his life, Timothy saw the light of day. He blinked, then sneezed as his eyes adjusted to the brightness.

Timothy looked around to get his bearings. He was in a small room, next to a window; a room with a view.

"Eeeahh!"

Timothy heard a groan in the cube next to him An instant later Ellen was at his side.

"Well, hello," Timothy said, to his new companion. "I'm Timothy."

"Uhh, Hi. I'm Ellen," she said, still looking around and acclimating to freedom. "Where are we?"

It was at that point in the conversation that the wicked and spiteful Sybil interrupted.

"I just can't get over how naive you tomato plants are when you first sprout," Sybil said, her voice dripping with condescension. "Look around you simpletons. You're in a seed tray on top of the dryer, in the laundry room, in front of the window."

Sybil's harshness scared Ellen and made her quiver. She was on the verge of little tomato plant tears.

Timothy tried to put up a brave front. "You just pipe down, you old spider plant. Maybe my life so far has been a little sheltered in the seed. Still, it's not like I was just pollinated yesterday. I've been around some. I know a little bit about the world."

Sybil laughed. It was a sneering, intimidating laugh. "You talk big for someone in no better position than you are. There you sit in your seed tray, a little apartment complex for tomato plants. And here I am above you in my fine planter.

"You are weak little plants. I can destroy you with my shadow. You know what I'm going to do?" Sybil said ominously. "I'm going to send down little spider plants between you and the window to block your sunlight. Then you'll wither and die a slow and painful death."

Ellen began sobbing.

Timothy tried to comfort her. "Don't cry," he said, "She's mean and just bluffing. We won't be here long enough for her to block our light. We'll grow and be transplanted into a fine garden outdoors."

Timothy's words were like daggers to Sybil's spider-plant heart. He'd hit upon the very thing which made Sybil so ill-tempered and bitter. Sybil was jealous of little tomato plants. Year in and year out, tomato plants sprouted and then got to be transplanted outdoors. Sybil never got to go outdoors. She was doomed to live out her life in the laundry room.

Stung by Timothy's words, Sybil stepped up her efforts to torment the little plants.

"So, you think life's going to be a picnic out in the garden do you? Well, let me set you straight on that. Have you ever heard of tomato worms?"

At the mention of tomato worms, Ellen broke down completely.

"Tomato worms are green and slimy," Sybil said, "They'll crawl on you with a thousand legs and eat your little tomato plant leaves and turn them to goo."

"Quiet! Quiet! No more you evil houseplant," Timothy commanded. "Ellen, don't listen to her. She calls us little tomato plants, but keep in mind that after a few weeks in the garden we will grow and become mighty tomato plants, as large as shrubs.

Timothy looked at Sybil, straight in her spider plant eyes. "And as for you, you miserable excuse for a botanical specimen, too frail to survive in the outdoor elements, you should be glad we're being moved to the garden. Because were we not, I would grow and wrap my vines around you and yank you from your high planter.

"I would uproot and overthrow you. No longer would you reign in the laundry room. You would be but a mass of dead leaves on the floor."

Sybil was left speechless. Timothy was no ordinary seedling. He was tough and rugged, a growing tomato plant to be reckoned with.

Editorial

Survey leads to questions

Recently Charlevoix schools finished compiling and released results of a school survey.

Although the survey's primary purpose was determining public perceptions regarding the school, a more valuable survey result may be stimulating public discussion on local educational and taxation issues.

Some important educational issues the survey touched upon were: ability grouping in the elementary school; the possibility of having a closed campus at the high school; student fundraisers.

Ability grouping is separating elementary students within grades by ability. For example, in reading, students who read well are grouped with other students who read well while students who read poorly are grouped with other students who read poorly.

There are arguments both for and against ability grouping.

The survey also touched upon drug and alcohol abuse in schools, teacher salaries, a community pool and creative arts center.

Twenty-six percent of survey respondents identified drug abuse as the school's biggest problem. Twenty-one percent identified financial support as the school's biggest problem. No other specific problem was identified by more than 10 percent of the survey respondents.

Some people say drug abuse among students has increased at an alarming rate and is one of our nation's most serious threats.

Others would contend that the problem of drug abuse, while serious and worthy of attention, hasn't increased, but the perception of the problem has increased due to intense media exposure following the death of basketball star Len Bias.

School finance and property taxes are something near and dear to everyone's heart and wallet. Since salaries and fringe benefits account for more than 80 percent of most school budgets the salaries of teachers and other school personnel merit public discussion.

How much should teachers be paid? Should teachers be paid on the basis of merit, with good teachers rewarded and bad teachers given the heave-ho? Who would determine which teachers are good and which are bad and what criteria would be used to make that determination? Why is it the public isn't allowed to know the figures on a tax-funded teacher salary increase until after it's too late to complain about it?

Items such as swimming pools and creative arts centers also can be viewed in different lights. To one person these facilities may be much-needed attractions which will enhance the community and benefit both young and old. Other people may view these facilities as luxuries which will be an eternal tax burden unless financed with private contributions.

All of the above issues deserve thought, debate and the concern of the community. If the survey spurs that, it will have provided a valuable service.

Winter missed?

Charlevoixans who move to warmer, sunnier climes really do miss snow.

Every time my daughter Katie, late of Okinawa, complained about not seeing snow for the past six years, I tended to groan.

In recent years, snow has been the bane of my life.

Now comes support for Katie's stand from Laura Stebe, a resident of Western Australia in what she calls the "Aussie bush."

Laura's folks are Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin of Charlevoix. Laura's husband is Scott Stebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stebe, also of Charlevoix.

Scott is in the Navy assigned to a Naval Communications Station near the town of Exmouth at the tip of a narrow finger of land extending into the Indian Ocean — 800 miles north of Perth.

"It rarely rains here, we have constant sunshine, and if and when we get a cloudy day it is a miracle," Laura writes. "While the town of Charlevoix is plowing, shoveling, skiing, skating, sledding and icefishing, we are going to the beach, having "barbies," bushwalking, cave exploring (spelunking), mowing the grass and getting sunburnt.

"And what we would give to see one single solitary snowflake!" she adds.

Laura says she also misses the change of seasons.

"In the Australian bush, you see two changes of seasons, summer and winter. I call it the change from brown to green," she writes. "Summer is extremely hot, full of blowies (Australian blow flies) and you live for your air conditioning.

"Winter is cooler," she continues. "It may reach 65 degrees if we are lucky, compared to 105 to 115 degrees in the summer.

"The one thing we have learned is not to take the change of seasons for granted. We miss snow a lot and look forward to seeing it again," she says.

SO MAYBE I HAVE been taking out rotten winter weather for granted.

Looking back, there was a time when I enjoyed winter — skiing, skating and savoring the ever-present possibility of being "snow-bound." Clogged roads do offer a modicum of relief from routine chores.

But the older I get, the less I like winter. Icy pavements pose a direct threat to bones more than a half century old and zero-degree winds send me running for cover.

By mid-January, I would give anything to hear the swoosh-slam of a screen door on a summer night.

I AM ALWAYS amazed at the number of Detroit area resients who head north on Friday night — even during our off-season when there is hardly enough snow for skiing and not enough open water for boating.

Friday after work Judy and I drove to Detroit and by the time we reached Bay City we were confronted by a solid caravan of north-bound cars stretching in the smoggy horizon as far as the eye could see.

After a weekend in Detroit and environs, however, I can understand why so many people want to get out, if only for a weekend.

Developers have ruined all of Southeast Michigan — almost beyond repair.

You start running into urban sprawl around Flint and it continues without abatement for the next 50, 60, 70 miles.

The chief characteristic of the countryside — an area once dominated by attractive farms and woodlands — is the cheap high-rise office building sheathed in green plastic. Around it are residential complexes — row after row of nondescript single-family homes, duplexes, apartment buildings and house trailers.

Some are shielded from the expressways by sound-deadening walls. The chief advantage, however, goes to the motorist whose view is protected from the surrounding scenery.

Every major roadway is polluted by billboards and every major intersection supports a shopping mall — garishly lighted and signed.

Weekend traffic — even afer the mass exodus north on Friday night — is horrendous.

I don't like to bad-mouth my old hometown, but how did Metropolitan Detroit arrive at such a sorry state? Have they no zoning laws? Where are the planning commissions? Haven't they heard that strip development is a dirty word?

I suppose Southeast Michigan will look a little better when the leaves sprout and the grass turns green. But right now It's the pits.

Letters to the Editor:

Bandshell should move forward

Editor,

Although I am no longer a resident of Charlevoix, I subscribe to your paper and keep informed of the local events. Reading about the recent conflict regarding the proposed bandshell has made me remember the times I enjoyed concerts and other events in East Park both as a performer and a member of the audience. Please allow me this opportunity to express my thought on this issue.

The headline of the March 15 edition of the Courier read: "Bandshell: After one step forward now it's moved two steps back". This phrase unfortunately is able to generalize the entire sequence of events regarding the construction of a new bandshell in East Park. It is disappointing for me to hear about the strong differences of opinion over the bandshell which have resulted in a virtual standstill of activity where actual construction is concerned.

I, too appreciate the beauty Charlevoix has to offer and can well understand the concerns of those who oppose obstructing the view of the lake. However, the natural beauty of Charlevoix is hundreds of years old. If scattering condominiums around the shore of the lake is acceptable, then it seems that the community is entitled to one decent bandshell which can be used to provide music, art, entertainment and cultural activities to both part-time and year-round residents. Mr. Clarence Odmark, who recently passed away, was a major contributor to these types of events and is well deserving of having the bandshell dedicated to his memory. When people talk of "scaling back" the bandshell, they are also scaling back this dedication and everything that it represents.

A quality bandshell will not only provide proper facilities for the concerts and events which I previously mentioned, but will offer residents an opportunity to enjoy themselves and their community in a pleasurable and peaceful environment. It's too bad that the bandshell will be completed sooner. Instead of spending Spring and Summer evenings enjoying the benefits of a newly refurbished park, it appears that some would prefer to spend their Winter evenings bickering and squabbling amongst one another inside the City Hall building where no one can see any lake or hear any concert on any bandshell of any shape or size.

The Charlevoix County Hospice would like to take this opportunity to thank all the wonderful people who helped make our 'Ides of March" Fundraiser a success. First we want to thank all the people who purchased a ticket. We know you all secretly wanted to win the Grand Prize of $10,000 - but we also know that you purchased a ticket to help the hospice to continue to be able to offer services to the terminally ill and their families in Charlevoix County. We truly thank you for we did make $4,750 after dispersing prize money of $10,750.

There need to be some very special thanks to people who worked very hard to make this fundraiser a success. First to the people who sold many tickets: Chris Carlson, Dan Engstrom, Camille Greene, Linda Mansfield, Sue Miller and Jim and Sharon White. A special thank you to the people who helped with publicity: Dianne Murray, Sheri Rhoades, KHQ and WMBN. A very special thank you to the organizations who purchased tickets with the express purpose of returning any winnings to hospice: Boyne City Lions Club, Boyne City Rotary Club and the Northwestern State Bank in Boyne City. You truly care.

Thank you to Stafford's Weathervane for giving us a special room to have the drawing and for the wonderful hors d'oeuvres.

Meeting will explain Neighborhood grant program

Responding to a request from Senator Mitch Irwin, the state Department of Commerce has agreed to conduct a northern Michigan workshop for future applicants for Neighborhood Builder's Alliance grants.

"The Builder's Alliance grants are an important and innovative tool for helping local governments and service organizations improve their communities," Irwin said. "I was concerned that original plans called for workshops only in Lansing. That's too far away for many of our citizens to travel, and so I asked Commerce officials to come north."

The northern Michigan session is scheduled for Tuesday, April 18 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sylvan Resort in Gaylord, Irwin said.

"Many of our northern Michigan communities applied for funding this past year – the first year of the program – but not all of the projects could be funded. These workshops are intended to help the unsuccessful applicants, as well as new applicants, structure their projects and applications to be more competitive," Irwin said.

Past projects that have received funding include neighborhood beautification projects, senior citizen center rehabilitation projects, picnic pavilions, student tutorial programs, purchase of new ambulances, construction of community centers and rehabilitation of housing for low income families.

"I urge any group with a worthy project to attend the workshop to learn more about applying for these grants," Irwin said. "Anyone needing more information is welcome to call my office, also."

Erosion damage

—Under a new agreement with the Federal Insurance Administration, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has been approved to certify structures in danger of collapse because of Great Lakes erosion for payment under the national flood insurance program.

Prior to this change, buildings had to be condemned by local officials before a property owner could file a flood insurance claim.

Certification of structures in danger of imminent collapse may be provided to property owners after the site has been inspected by the DNR. Once the certification is received, an insurance claim may be filed.

If the claim is approved, the federal government will pay up to 40 percent of the value of the structure for its relocation. If the owner chooses to demolish the building, payment could equal 110 percent of the market value, which would include costs of demolition and cleanup.

To make a claim, a flood insurance policy had to be in force on or before June 1, 1988. Otherwise, a two-year waiting period is required.

To request a site inspection for certification of imminent collapse, contact the DNR's Land and Water Management Division, Box 30028, Lansing 48909; 517-373-1950.

Fish and wildlife survey available

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's 1985 National Survey of Fishing, Hunting, and Wildlife-Associated Recreation is now available. It is the seventh in the series of comprehensive nationwide surveys of wildlife-associated recreation conducted by the Service every 5 years since 1955.

These surveys represent the most extensive periodic examination of the participation of Americans in wildlife recreation. The data are used widely by public and private wildlife managers to help them more appropriately meet increased or changing demands on fish and wildlife resources.

The Survey concludes that in 1985:

46.4 million, or more than one in four, adult Americans fished.

16.7 million, or more than one in ten, adult Americans hunted.

109.6 million, or over half of all adult Americans, actively participated in nonconsumptive activities such as feeding, observing, or photographing wildlife.

Copies of the survey may be ordered by mail or phone: Publications Department, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 4401 North Fairfax Drive, Room 130, Arlington, VA 22201. (703) 358-1711.

Invalids should contact sheriff

Citizens in Charlevoix county, who reside within a 10 mile radius of the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant, and who are of "an invalid status or who would be unable to evacuate in the event of a general emergency because of physical disabilities" are requested to contact the sheriff's department within the next 10 days.

The sheriff's department would like the name, phone number, location of residence and type of disability of all area residents who would need assistance during an evacuation.

When the information has been compiled, the citizens will be "keyed" on the evacuation plan and arrangements will be made to see that transportation is available to remove invalids from their residence to a proper shelter.

Soprano to perform

Emily Burchill, lyric-coloratura soprano, will appear in concert for the Jordan River Arts Council "Arts Alive" series at 7 p.m. Friday, April 7, at East Jordan High School and Saturday, April 8, at Mancelona High School.

Both Burchill and her piano accompanist William Barto Jones are professional New York City musicians who are performing locally as a favor to Burchill's aunt, Fran Pletz, JRAC president.

Their repertoire will range from favorites like "Billy Boy" and "Ching-A-Ring Chaw" to music by Giacchino Rossini, Hugo Wolf and Leonard Bernstein.

Burchill, who has a Ph.D. in Music Education from New York University, will introduce her selections with background information on both the composers and the music. Her extensive experience includes soloing with the Kurt P. Reimann Opera Studio, the New York Sinfonia and the International Symphony.

Jones, winner of several distinguished pianists's awards, has served as assistant conductor for New York City Opera and chorus master and rehearsal pianist for Westchester Opera.

Their performance is the second of five scheduled by the arts council in two locations. Still to come are: Patty Clark, storyteller, in East Jordan April 14 and Mancelona April 15; Anne-Marie Domen and Raymond Nargis, poets and dramatists in East Jordan April 28 and Bellaire April 29; and the Fitch Dance Troupe in East Jordan May 12 and Bellaire May 13.

All performances will begin at the high schools at 7 p.m., except Patty Clark's East Jordan appearance, which will be at the East Jordan Elementary School.

Tickets are available at the door ($5 adult, $3 student), and series tickets are priced at $8.25 per person, $11 per couple or $16.50 per family. The programs are supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

Conservancy movement growing

In northern Lower Michigan, the growth of the Little Traverse Conservancy has outpaced the national trend. Tom Lagerstrom, LTC Associate Director for Membership and Finance, points out that membership numbers have more than doubled since 1986. From a total of 682 people in 1986, Conservancy membership rolls have swelled to over 1,613 for 1988. And the dollar amount of contributions from members has more than doubled as well, reaching $168,000 in 1988.

Lagerstrom attributes much of the recent growth in LTC membership to successful projects to preserve the Colonial Point Forest at Burt Lake and the North Point sand dunes near Charlevoix. These two projects, costing a combined total of over $2.1 million, proved that LTC is a major force for land conservation in northern Michigan, Lagerstrom said. "If you add the Colonial Point and North Point projects to our successful efforts to help local governments win grant funding for local parks and open spaces," Lagerstrom said, "you will find that the Little Traverse Conservancy has been responsible for bringing about nearly $2.5 million in land conservation projects inthe last five years."

The Conservancy's Executive Director, Tom Bailey, indicates that this increased interest in land conservation will continue in northern Lower Michigan. "Nearly everyone is concerned about preserving the quality of life in this area," Bailey said, "and the best way to do that is to make sure that we save parts of this area in a natural state while growth takes place; otherwise, we run the risk of waking up one day to ask what happened to the natural beauty of the North."

Rather than serving as opposition to growth, Bailey noted, the preservation of land by the Conservancy is seen as an enhancement to growth. "The important question is one of balance," he says, "As more and more is invested in new homes, businesses and other development, we must make sure that investment in parks, playgrounds, and natural areas keeps pace or else the quality of our area will decline."

Bailey is pleased to note that this approach is one which has been supported by the business community. "One definite sign that our approach is sound is the support we receive from business," Bailey says. "The business community contributed nearly $100,000 to the North Point project, and many business leaders have endorsed the Conservancy's approach to preserving our quality of life."

These leaders recognize, Bailey says, that in a tourist and resort oriented economy, business people see the need to preserve and enhance the natural beauty that serves as the area's principal appeal.

DNR funds land acquisitions

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Board are interested in learning about land that is available for public acquisition.

The Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund program, administered by the DNR, provides funds to the Department and local units of government for the acquisition of land for public recreation or resource protection purposes.

"We are looking for lands that will provide access to Michigan's water resources, particularly the Great Lakes," said DNR Director David F. Hales, "as well as lands that have outstanding natural features in need of protection."

The Department is also interested in acquiring land in southern Michigan that would provide quality outdoor recreation opportunities.

Through this program, any individual – not just a landowner – can identify and nominate parcels of land for public acquisition.

"The nomination process has proved to be a successful feature of the Trust Fund program since its inception," O.J. Scherschlight, Recreation Division Chief said.

"It provides a method through which private individuals may notify the DNR of quality recreation lands or resources available for public acquisition."

Last year, $17.5 million was approved by the Trust Fund Board toward land acquisitions, several of which resulted from the nomination of land by private individuals. However, the Department is limited to paying fair market value, as determined by an appraisal.

Nomination forms are available by contacting the DNR's Recreation Division, Grants Management Branch, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing 48909; 517-373-1660.

Nominations received prior to April 1, in any year, will be considered for grant funding in that year's grant cycle.

Area group also grows

The Little Traverse Conservancy, one of the nation's 743 individual land trusts, is part of what has become America's fastest growing conservation movement.

The Land Trust Exchange, the national organization for land trusts, released figures today showing that during the past two years, on an average, one new group wss formed every seven days. The separate trusts reported a membership of more than 640,000 – making their collective size greater than most national conservation organizations.

Jean Hocker, executive director of the nonprofit Land Trust Exchange, noted, "The trend is clear. Support for the land trust concept – which is based on grassroots, community conservation action – is building dramatically. Although the idea dates back to the mid 1800's almost half of today's land trusts began during the last decade, nearly a third during the past five years. People realize that land trusts work – they are a responsive and cost-effective way to produce conservation results."

Land trusts are nonprofit conservation organizations formed by local residents to protect specific areas. Projects include preserving wildlife habitat, urban gardens, farmland, parks, greenways, and historic buildings. Funding comes from individuals, foundations, and corporations. A few large land trusts operate statewide, but most focus on projects within a region or community.

Hocker pointed out, "The survey highlights the tremendous conservation contributions made by land trusts like the Little Traverse Conservancy. Some are large, sophisticated organizations. Others operate with small budgets and without staff. Yet together – large and small – land trust have helped protect alomost two million acres from Maine to California."

Land trusts acquire properties through gifts and purchases. Land is also protected through conservation easements, leases, agreements, exchanges, and in cooperative venture with government agencies. Together, land trusts own 290,000 acres, hold easements on another 295,000 acres, and have been instrumental in safeguarding an additional 1.3 million acres.

The data was compiled by the Land Trust Exchange for a new directory profiling groups in 45 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The Land Trust Exchange works to increase the effectiveness of the nation's land trusts by providing services to strengthen their programs and leadership to promote their intersts. Offices for the Land Trust Exchange are in Alexandria, Virginia.

FHA loans are available

Farmers Home Administration emergency loans are still available for eligible family farmers in Emmet, Charlevoix, or Cheboygan Counties who suffered qualifying losses covered under last year's weather related disaster designation. In order to qualify a farmer must provide evidence of having suffered a qualifying physical loss, or a qualifying production loss of at least 30 percent of normal per acre or per animal production in any single enterprise which is a basic part of the total farming operation. Among other requirements, applicants must be unable to obtain suitable credit from other sources.

Lois J. Carey

Funeral Services for Lois Jane Carey, 69, of Charlevoix was held Friday, March 31, at the Adair Funeral Home in Tucson, Ariz.

Mrs. Carey died unexpectedly at her winter home in Tucson, March 29, 1989.

The former Lois Goldie was born in Detroit June 16, 1919, the daughter of Roy and Hazel Goldie. She attended Detroit schools and received her bachelor's degree in education from Alma College in 1941. She later taught school in Detroit, Elkton and Midland.

In 1943, she was married in Detroit to Keith Carey of Charlevoix, former teacher and coach at Midland High School.

The Careys lived in Midland most of their married life, retiring to Charlevoix in the 1970s.

Mrs. Carey practiced quilting as a hobby and was a member of the Little Traverse Bay Quilters Guild.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Carey is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Marquardt of Houston; Mrs. Nancy Grunch of Hayden Lake, Idaho and Mrs. Amy Russell of Charlevoix; and six grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held in May in Charlevoix.

The family suggests that memorial contributions in Mrs. Carey's name be made to the Peggy Carey Northway Nursing Scholarship Fund at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Church music seminar April 18

A church music workshop will take place from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 18 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

The workshop is for all church musicians, be they choir members, choir directors, organists or handbell ringers.

Guest clinician for the workshop is Andy Zerban, director of music at the First Congregational Church in Traverse City. Zerban has a bachelor of science degree in music education and a masters degree in church music.

Choral music will be the focus of the morning session of the workshop which originally was scheduled for March 18, but had to be rescheduled due to inclimate weather.

People planning to attend the workshop should preregister by April 13. To do so, call Fran Tollas at 547-9479 or 547-9122.

Christian radio listeners will convene

The entire radio staff of the Children's Bible Hour of Grand Rapids will be in northern Michigan for a radio rally on Sunday, April 16 at 3 p.m. in the Kalkaska Middle School gymnasium.

This family event is sponsored by Northern Christian Radio which operates WPHN 90.5 FM, Gaylord and WOLW 91.1 FM, Cadillac, and airs the CBH radio broadcast Saturday morning at 10 a.m., the daily kids devotional program Keys for Kids weekdays at 7:15 a.m., and Storytime Tuesday afternoons at 3:30 p.m.

The radio rally will feature Christ-centered music, a dramatized story, and all performed by the 27-voice Cousins Choir under the leadership of Charlie Vandermeer, "Uncle Charlie", director of the international Children's Bible Hour ministry.

This event is something the entire family will enjoy. There will be something for everyone no matter if you are three or 103. Families and church groups are urged to attend for a time of blessing and inspiration. Admission is free. However, a freewill offering will be taken to cover expenses.

The Kalkaska Middle School gymnasium is located at 1700 West Kalkaska Road. For more information call Northern Christian Radio at 1-800-678-4672.

BUSINESS

Car expenses increase

The average annual cost of operating and maintaining a new model car increased $496, a 12.1 percent jump, according to AAA Michigan.

An annual AAA-commissioned study found the average operating cost for a late-model car driven 15,000 miles rose to $4,595 in 1989, up from $4,099 in 1988. The per-mile cost increased 3.3 cents to 30.6 cents.

Operating costs are based on average figures for finance charges (based on a four-year loan), depreciation, registration fees, license and insurance. Added are costs of gasoline, oil, tires and maintenance expenses based on 15,000 miles driven.

Figures were based on the testing of a 1989 Ford Escort, four-door, four-cylinder hatchback; a 1989 Chevrolet Celebrity six-cylinder, four-door sedan; and a 1989 Chevrolet Caprice eight-cylinder, four-door sedan.

Average national annual operating expenses include:

Gasoline and oil – costs 5.3 cents per mile or $795 a year.

Maintenance — 1.9 cents or $285.

National insurance costs climbed $89 to $645, a 16 percent increase. In Michigan, insurance costs increased 6 percent.

Taxes, license and registration up $13 to $144.

Since 1980, the per-mile operating cost for new cars has increased 9.5 cents.

Big Rock passes review

A report card from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) gives good grades to Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant.

The report card is the NRC's Systematic Assessment of Licensee Performance (SALP) – a document which rates seven areas of plant regulatory performance over a 16-month period from September 1, 1987 to December 31, 1988.

Of the seven areas rated, two received the NRC's highest rating – category 1 – indicating that "licensee management attention and involvement are readily evident and place emphasis on superior performance of nuclear safety or safeguards activities." The other five areas received category 2 ratings indicating the "licensee managment attention to and involvement in the performace of nuclear safety or safeguards activites are good."

"This report card is a good one," said Thomas W. Elward, plant manager. "It confirms the solid performance turned in by the plant and its employees, while offering some constructive comments for improvement. It also confirms that the employees of Big Rock Point are operating this plant in a safe and professional manner," Elward said.

"These ratings reflect good performance by management and staff," said A. Bert Davis, NCRC regional administrator, in his cover letter accompanying the SALP report. "Furthermore, management personnel generally demonstrated a high degree of personal involvement in overall plant operations, and they were aggressive and proactive in responding to safety concerns. Your communications with the NRC are open and direct and are conducive to a good working relationship. In my opinion, Big Rock Point is a good performer."

In its analysis of plant operations, the SALP report noted that the utility "benefits from shift supervisors and line managers who are knowledgeable in the history and operating characteristics of the facility." The report noted improved performance in emergency preparedness which it said was "the result of improved training, an independent audit program, management responsiveness to concerns and excellent interface with off-site emergency response officials."

Although the report indicated no areas of decline since the last SALP rating period, it did note some areas where there is an opportunity for improvement. These include maintenance, the commitment of resources to ensure completion of scheduled modification projects and the number of reactor trips and forced outages. "We will review all of these areas with the NRC," said Elward. "None of them presents any significant problems for us."

Owned and operated by Consumers Power Company, Big Rock Point is capable of producing 69 megawatts of electricity, enough to serve a community of 50,000 people.

New agreement will benefit wetlands

The potential for conservation and improvement of thousands of acres of wetlands managed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers throughout the United States will be advanced under a new agreement between the Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service and the Department of the Army.

The two Federal agencies have signed a formal pledge to work together to conserve wetlands on the more than 9 million acres managed by the Corps. The properties include wetlands in navigation and flood control projects, many of which are important waterfowl habitat. Under the agreement, the Corps and the Service will cooperate in studying additional opportunities for wetland management at the project level.

The effort is in support of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan, a project in the United States and Canada to reverse the decline of wetlands and waterfowl. The service's National Wetlands Inventory Office currently estimates the annual loss of wetlands to be approximately 458,000 acres, mainly because of development. President Bush has said he wants "no net loss" of those resources in the future. Wetlands are essential not only for ducks and other wildlife but also for the storage and cleansing of water supplies in many areas.

The Governments of the United States and Canada, states and provinces, and private conservation groups are cooperating in the continent-wide project. U.S. Federal participation in the effort is directed by the Service's North American Waterfowl Management Plan Office. The campaign's goal is to protect and enhance 6 million more acres of wetlands by the year 2000. Less than half of the 215 million acres of wetlands that existed in the United States before Europeans arrived remain today.

The cooperative agreement was signed by John S. Doyle, Jr., Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works, and Becky Norton Dunlop, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks. Other federal land management agencies that previously agreed to support the plan are the Forest Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the Bureau of Reclamation, and Bureau of Indian Affairs.

"This agreement is another step forward in our efforts to conserve wetlands and reverse the decline of America's waterfowl," said Assistant Secretary Dunlop.

"We are pleased," said Doyle, "that the Army Civil Works Program can provide opportunities to advance this important goal of the North American Plan."

A major provision of the agreement is that the Corps and the Service will exchange information outlining civil works projects within the boundaries of the North American Plan's six joint ventures, located from coast to coast. The Corps will describe current waterfowl management activities, seasonal waterfowl use, and the potential for increasing benefits to wildlife. The Service will brief the Corps on national, regional, and local objectives and identify opportunities for improvements.

After this information is shared, the two agencies will determine how Plan activities and goals relate to present and future Corps projects. Objectives of the plan will be considered in the conception, engineering, design, and construction phases of Corps civil works projects. The agreement is effective for 3 years, subject to renewal and modification.

Barry Parker puts the finishing touches on one of the cabinets which will go in the new police department offices. Remodeling of the old fire hall portion of city hall is nearing completion. The old fire hall is being converted into offices for the police department and city assessor.

Pothole repair costly

How much does it cost to fill a pothole? About $7 for a small pothole patch. About $17 for an average pothole.

Michigan's first major thaw revealed numerous potholes, cracks and disintegrating pavements and the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is working constantly to patch and repair highways as problems appear. So are the 83 county road commissions and hundreds of municipalities.

MDOT estimates it will use at least 18,000 tons of patching materials during the first six months of 1989 to patch holes on the 9,550 miles of state highways. The average pothole requires 30 pounds of filler.

Because potholes and cracks are primarily caused by moisture under and on the pavement, couples with Michigan's freeze and thaw cycles, the best way to reduce the number is to ensure that roads are well sealed and have good drainage systems. That helps keep water out of the sub-base beneath the pavement.

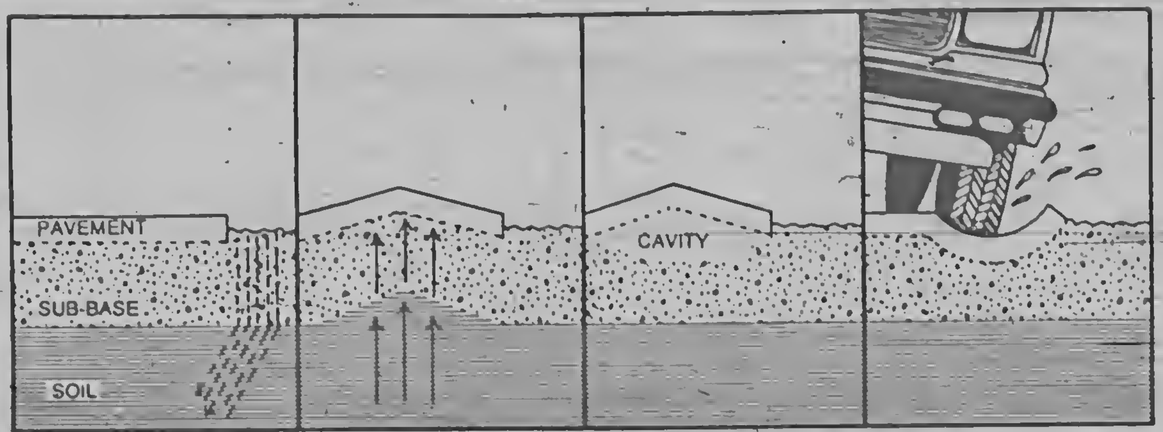
In fiscal year 1987-88, the department let out contracts totaling $284 million for improvements and new highway construction on more than 470 miles of state highways. During the same period, it spent $10.2 million for routine surface maintenance on the state highway system.

MDOT takes preventive measures to protect its highways.

One is a special crack-sealing program using a "hot-pour" liquid material to seal cracks on highway surfaces. Department maintenace engineers estimate the material, made of 75 percent rubber and 25 percent asphalt, will last eight to 10 years.

The department also imposes weight restrictions on certain highways during the spring break-up period when pavement is highly vulnerable. These are imposed on trucks when the ground begins to thaw.

ANATOMY OF A POTHOLE



Potholes begin after snow or rain seeps into the soil below the road surface. This moisture freezes when tempratures drop below freezing, causing the ground to expand, rise and push the pavement up. Then, when temperatures rise, the ground returns to normal level before the pavement does, creating a cavity, or pocket between the ground and the pavement. When cars and trucks drive over this cavity, the surface cracks and falls into the hollow space. Thus, another pothole is born.

Wedding rules change

If you want to get married, you will need to know that starting March 30, all individuals applying for a Michigan marriage license must obtain a certificate indicating that they were counseled by a doctor or their local health department about the transmission and prevention of venereal disease (VD) and HIV (AIDS) infection and were offered tests for both VD and HIV infection. The new law replaces the former requirement that individuals have been certified free from venereal diseases. The new certificates will be valid for 60 days from the date of counseling. Old certificates obtained prior to March 30 will be honored for 30 days or through April 30, 1989.

"This change in the law mandates VD and HIV counseling. It does not mean that couples must be tested for AIDS (HIV infection) or venereal disease before they can get married, but they should be informed on where to get the tests," said Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director of District Health Departments No. 3 and 4. "Testing must only be offered." Youngs said that if a marriage license applicant does get tested for HIV and the test shows that he or she is infected, the results will be shared with both applicants and HIV counseling will be provided.

It is anticipated that effective March 30, 1989 the process for application for marriage license relative to this portion of the law will be as follows:

1. Applicants will obtain new Health Certificate from county clerk's office, their physician, or their local health department.

2. Applicants will obtain signature certifying counseling and being offered testing for venereal diseases and HIV from their physician, their local health officer, and returns completed Health Certificate to the county clerk.

3. County Clerk will distribute license and package of educational materials including new brochure to applicants at the time the license is issued. The state health department brochure, "Because We Care For Each Other", discusses prenatal care, VD and HIV transmission.

Youngs advised that if a Michigan resident is marrying an out-of-state person, it would be useful to send a copy of the new health certificate to that person which indicates the requirements of the new law.

Individuals who want to obtain a Health Certificate for Marriage License and counseling from the health department should contact the health department for an appointment. Offices are open 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Group counseling sessions will be held during the day lasting for about one hour. The cost of the counseling will be $20 per individual or $30 per couple.

The new premarital requirements are part of a comprehensive set of laws going into effect March 30 to prevent and control the spread of HIV in Michigan. For further information regarding health certificate requirements for marriage, contact your local health department office (Charlevoix 547-6523) or county clerk.

Solid waste clarification

An editorial which appeared in last week's Courier pertaining to the Charlevoix County solid waste planning process referred to five counties in addition to Charlevoix County being allowed to haul waste to Charlevoix County. Permission for those five counties to haul to Charlevoix County is conditional upon them drafting solid waste plans which provide for landfills or incinerators to be sited in their counties at a future date.

School seeking millage increase for transportation

Charlevoix School District voters will be asked to renew 17.05 operational mills and approve a nine-tenths of mill increase for two years to fund school transportation improvements at the June 12 school election.

Following Monday evening's school board meeting, school business manager Vince Olach explained the millage proposals.

He said the 17.05 is simply a renewal of the operational millage Charlevoix taxpayers are already paying.

The nine-tenths of mill is an increase which is projected to net the school approximately $400,000 over two years. That money would be used to purchase six new school buses at an estimated total cost of approximately $230,000; two new pickups; a new minivan; and build a polebarn type shelter for the school bus fleet.

Olach said that although the state still doesn't require schools to replace all buses built before 1977, they're talking about it and probably will require it soon. Of Charlevoix's 16 bus fleet, four regular buses and the Rayder bus were built prior to 1977.

Until about four years ago, the school updated the bus fleet by regularly replacing two buses every other year with money from general operational millage. Olach said that replacement program stopped due to budget limitations.

In regard to bus storage, Olach said the school used to store buses at the old voc-ed shop in the summer, but the school has sold that building. Now, school administrators would like to build a shelter adjacent to the current bus garage on May Street to house the entire fleet.

Olach said placing the buses indoors will protect them from the effects of weather and vandalism.

Prior to the board's approval of placing the millage issues on the ballot, school board member Bob Drenth asked how much the school district's state equalized evaluation (SEV) would be increasing this year.

Olach said that as of Monday evening, he hadn't received those figures from the county, but estimated the school district's SEV (or tax base) will increase by approximately 10 or 11 percent overall.

A portion of the SEV increase in the DDA and TIFA districts of the city of Charlevoix will go to the DDA and TIFA funds rather than to the school district.

Last year, Charlevoix taxpayers also paid .47 of a mill for debt retirement. However this year is something of a landmark in that all of Charlevoix's school buildings are paid off and pending election results the school will levy no debt retirement millage.

Five candidates to run for three board seats

Two former mayors and three incumbent school board members will be on the ballot for school board seats in the June 12 school election.

Former mayor Ralph McRae will challenge incumbent Scott Beatty for a one-year term. Beatty was appointed to the board several months ago to fill out the term of Elaine Martin. Martin resigned in mid-term due to expanded responsibilities in her employment.

Former mayor Ken Staley will be challenging long-time board members Max Novack and Doris Pearl for one of two four-year terms..

Novack has been on the board since the mid 1970s and has served as board president for the past several years.

Bandshell moves ahead

The new bandshell is closer to a reality than before, but there's still some polishing to be done.

A new design was brought before the city council Monday evening.

The new design, done by architect Jack Begrow, is patterned after buildings in the community which were designed by the late Earl Young. Begrow's bandshell design features a soft-line, more rounded roof as opposed to the peaked roof shown in previous designs.

Also included in the new design to give the new bandshell character while blending in with other architecture in the community are stone columns at the front of the stage. Previous designs indicated steel columns. The columns will support the front portion of the roof of the structure.

An apprehension expressed regarding the design was that the eves of the roof finish with an upward, rather than a downward slope.

That concern is something which will be discussed further with the architect between now and construction.

It is a concern which pales in comparison to previous disputes regarding the bandshell. In recent months, different factions in the community have debated both the overall size and look of the facility.

The bandshell committee and a group of people concerned about the impact the new bandshell will have on the view of Round Lake from Bridge Street met several times in an effort to

All's fair in industrial arts

Cabinets worth hundreds or thousands of dollars, handmade canoes, drafted designs of dream homes, elaborate metal woodstoves, plastic devices, robots and mechanical contraptions of various kinds. All of these things can be seen at the Regional Industrial Arts Fair Friday evening in Boyne City.

Approximately 20 industrial arts students from Charlevoix will have projects entered in this year's fair. Junior high and high school students from about two dozen area high schools will be competing.

Friday evening, the public will be welcome to come in and view the students' handiwork. There is no admission fee. People who have never been to an industrial arts fair have missed something worth seeing.

The creativity and craftsmanship shown by the student entries is eye-popping. The thought of all the hours of work put into the projects is mind-boggling.

Anyone who is even remotely interested in puttering around the house with wood or metal projects will probably find the art fair not only entertaining, but also educational.

It's not uncommon to find the student who made a blue ribbon project somewhere in the vicinity of the project. If a spectator is curious about the finer points of the project, he almost always will find the student happy to offer an explanation.

The craftsmanship of the projects is generally superb. One area high school industrial arts teacher tells his students that what they're doing is building tomorrow's treasured antiques today.

Students whose entries finish in the top four of their category will advance to the State Industrial Arts Fair which takes place next weekend at the Grand Traverse Resort.

Pool committee speaks to board about plans

Members of the swimming pool planning committee will meet with the school board's curriculum and building and sites committees in coming weeks to discuss where a proposed pool should be located and how it should be administered.

Pool committee cochairman Dave Strawbridge addressed the school board Monday evening. He referred to results of a recent school survey in which approximately 80 percent of 277 people surveyed said they favored a community pool in Charlevoix.

"From those results, there seems to be a fair amount of interest in having a swimming pool in Charlevoix in the near future," Strawbridge told the board.

Strawbridge also made reference to the pool committee's most recent timetable for the proposed pool.

The committee wants to break ground for a pool in the spring of next year. Between now and then, they plan to: meet with the Elementary School PTA and people living near the elementary school; attend at least two grant-writing workshops; launch a fundraising campaign; and apply for State of Michigan Recreational Bond funds.

A lady in the audience at the board meeting asked Strawbridge how the pool would be kept up and if taxpayers will have to pay for the upkeep.

Strawbridge said employees would be hired for the pool. He estimated the cost to the average taxpayer would be about $4 per year to run the pool.

A question on the school survey mentioned "$4 per year equaling one-quarter mill" for pool operations. Of 278 people responding, 200 said they would support one-quarter mill for pool operations while 69 people said they would not. The remaining nine expressed no opinion.

Another survey question asked if people would support "$10 per year equaling half a mill" for pool construction. Of 278 people surveyed, 181 said yes, 91 said no and 6 gave no answer.

The $4 and $10 figures are for homes and property with a market value of approximately $40,000. A quarter or half a mill would be more or less than those figures for homes and properties with a market value of either more or less than $40,000.

The survey was not a random, although not scientific, sample of registered voters in the Charlevoix School District.

Whether or not survey results offer any insight as to how people will vote in a millage election is debatable. In 1984, a similar survey showed more support than opposition to a pool as well as construction and operating millage for it. However when pool millage questions were subsequently put on an election ballot, they failed by substantial margins.

At Monday evening's school board meeting, the pool committee did not ask for millage proposals to be placed on a ballot.

Strawbridge pointed out that the pool committee continues to seek alternative sources of funding (i.e. funding other than a property tax increase) for the pool.

Strawbridge said the committee feels that since one of the priorities of the pool is teaching children to swim, the logical place for the pool is at the elementary school. He said it follows that if the pool is on school property, the school might want to have some stake in the ownership of it.

Strawbridge suggested that the format of pool administration might be patterned after the public library.

Regarding the elementary school location, Strawbridge stated that the pool committee presently has money available for design study.

School superintendent Gordon VanWieren said the matter would need to be studied because there are other plans and projects such as a science center and outdoor area targeted for the elementary school which will need to be taken into consideration.

Both the Mesquite and the Star of Charlevoix await the increased activity of the coming boating season.

The Mesquite returned to her home port of Charlevoix last week after spending much of the winter on patrol in the Caribbean Sea.

High Island featured in magazine

The March-April issue of Michigan History magazine contains a story relating to life at the House of David Colony on High Island in 1925. High Island is one of the islands in the Beaver Island chain and familiar to many Charlevoix area boaters and fishermen.

In 1925, Ramon Nelson was a young boy living with the colony on High Island. The House of David Colony were a group of followers of Benjamin Purnell. Purnell convinced a group of people that they were descendants of one of the lost tribes of Israel and would live through end of the world. He persuaded his followers to believe that if they donated all of their savings and property to him and lived in his colony, he would take care of them and protect their goodness and they would never die.

Purnell died in December of 1927.

The main colony of the House of David was located in Benton Harbor, but a branch colony which Nelson and writer Ann Woodward describe in the magazine story existed on High Island.

Michigan History magazine is published by the Michigan Department of State. For information concerning the magazine, people may write to Editor, Michigan History, Michigan Department of State, Lansing MI 48918. Single copies of the magazine cost $2.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

He makes animals cower

Why aren't there more one-armed veterinarians in the world? It seems like there would be.

One day a lady and her medium-sized collie walked into the vet's office.

"And what seems to be problem today?" the vet asked the lady.

"Gumbo's not feeling well," the lady replied in reference to the collie. "He doesn't have any energy and he hasn't been eating."

Well, let's have a look at him then," the vet said.

With that, he bent over, picked up that dog, put it on an examining table and applied a thermometer to take Gumbo's temperature. And dogs don't say "Aaahh" and thermometers under their tongues.

The vet did this just as casually as if he were doing nothing more frightening than tieing his shoes. This was a man without fear.

When annoyed, dogs can bite and bite hard. Any hunter who's ever heard the bones crunch as a hound dispatched a rabbit will testify to the strength of a dog's jaws.

Why, most men would sooner officiate a machine gun duel between two blind opponents prone to muscle spasms than to pick up a dog like that and risk getting chomped on.

But not the vet. The vet holds some special power over animals. A dog that would think nothing of devouring mero mortal men quivers and quakes at the sight of a vet.

The aforementioned collie never snapped, snarled nor even growled. Somehow, he knew he was in the presence of a being that knew his every strength and weakness.

Sasquatch the dog stands about waist high and weighs around 100 pounds. He'd fetch small cars if only his owner would let him. He has no fear of other dogs. If another dog growls at him and it's anything smaller than a German shepherd, he doesn't even consider it worth his time to growl back.

But huge and hairy as that dog is, when he walks into the vet's office, he turns into a big baby. As soon as he walks in the office door and smells the smell of a vet's office he becomes a coward.

His last trip to the vet's office, he refused to leave the rug by the front door and be led to the backroom for his heartworm shot.

When his owner pulled on his leash, the big dog slipped his collar off over his head, then pushed open the swinging door, ran out into the parking lot and hid under the truck.

It took some pretty smooth talking to get him out from under the truck and back into the office.

And the vet's strange power over animals isn't confined to just the canine world. Even cats - untrainable, uncivilized and psychotic as they are - recognize the vet as one of the few people in the world they can't just arrogantly ignore and get away with it.

But unlike dogs, cats aren't as inclined to just quake in fear and accept their medicine. Cats are too obstinate for that. Even when a cat knows in its heart that its fate is sealed, it will at least puff up and hiss a little just for the show of it.

Yet let the cat hiss as it may, the vet knows animals and won't be buffaloed. He does his job regardless of the dog's fear or the cat's antipathy.

It is a strange job the vet does. In a way it's kind of sad. Most people who become vets, do so because they love animals. But it is a love doomed to be unrequited. No animal leaps for joy and says, "Oh good!" at the prospect of a trip to the vet.

It's a sad state of communications, but there's no way a vet can explain to an animal that he's only trying to do it good. An animal will never understand that.

The only thing a vet can do is continue to hold his strange power of understanding over the animal kingdom. It's the only thing that keeps the world from being filled with one-armed veterinarians.

Letters to the Editor:

Cystic Fibrosis benefits

Dear Editor:

There are times when such good things happen in a community that everyone should be able to "read all about it" in the papers.

The successful completion of the 1989 "March Madness" Benefit in memory of R.J. Flowers is such a time.

The exercise and fitness event chaired by Candy Smith and Vital Options North raised well over $300 for cystic fibrosis research. This will help to improve medical treatment and further prolong and enhance the lives of children with cystic fibrosis.

On behalf of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, Greater Michigan Chapter, thanks are extended to Candy for five years of volunteer service, to the area merchants for their contributions and to the citizens of Charlevoix and Petoskey for their generous support of cystic fibrosis research and last but not least to the Charlevoix Courier for their complete news coverage of the event.

Keep storefronts nice

Dear Editor,

I have owned a home in Charlevoix for nearly twenty years. I have enjoyed the opportunity of being a customer in the majority of the shops on Bridge Street, downtown Charlevoix.

This past winter our downtown area has taken on the appearance of a dying business center. The number of closed stores and papered windows have given Bridge Street a negative image.

I would suggest that the shopkeepers who elect to close in the winter months should have the courtesy to other retailers to dress their windows so as not to detract from the area.

Those shops "for rent" would certainly enhance the prospects of rental if they would become more creative with their storefront.

I hope this suggestion is taken in a positive light and immediate corrective steps be taken to brighten downtown Charlevoix.

Volunteers appreciated

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this time, National Volunteer Week, to tell the Charlevoix County Hospice volunteers just how special they are, and to let them know how much they are appreciated. To be a hospice volunteer - working with the terminally ill and their families - you have to be a special kind of person - and you are truly that special person!

Thank you for being, and thank you for caring about your fellow man!

North scam is disgusting

During the past few days I have become disgusted at the grotesque injustice that is gaining shape and substance at the Oliver North trial in Washington.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell should declare a mistrial, turn the poor son-of-a-gun loose and insist the prosecutors go after the real culprits who supplied illegal aid to the Nicaraguan Contras — former President Ronald Reagan and then Vice President George Bush, the man who now occupies the White House.

It is fairly obvious after the federal government's deposition was entered into the trial record last week that the real lawbreakers are going scot-free.

The deposition affirmed that Bush negotiated with Honduras to supply the Contras with arms and money after Congress voted to discontinue American military aid to the rebels.

In exchange, the United States reimbursed Honduras to the tune of $100 million from the U.S. Treasury.

Similar deals were worked out with at least nine other countries.

Technically, I suppose, Reagan and Bush could claim that they were not giving direct assistance to the Contras. But they certainly were violating the expressed desires of Congress and the spirit of the law by operating through the back door.

Holy Moses! Doesn't it make you sick?

EVEN MORE DISGUSTING is that Reagan and Bush are letting poor Ollie North take the rap for them.

What kind of men are they? Are such people really fit to run a country? Wouldn't you hate to have either one for a friend? How do they manage to sleep at night, knowing what they are doing to Ollie North, the fair-haired errand boy who did their dirty work for them?

North told the court that he found himself in the middle of a "bitter political dispute" between Congress and the White House over the Contras.

"I felt like a pawn in a chess game being played by giants," he claimed.

Even though he is being made a scapegoat, North is not lily white. Certainly he knew about the congressional ban on Contra aid and that what he was doing was illegal. But he also was a good Marine, and when your commander-in-chief and his top deputy tell you you're doing the right thing, are you going to argue with them?

IF THE GOVERNMENT'S 42-page deposition is correct, Bush — and his former boss Reagan — are the ones who should be in the dock, not North. Regardless of their faulty reasoning, they knew they were acting against the will of Congress:

The whole scam is so reminiscent of the Watergate coverup it's frightening.

Are we incapable of electing a president who understands how the American system of government is supposed to work?

The Oliver North trial is as shameful a charade as any ever foisted upon the American people. The wonder is that most of us still appear to be unaware of the monumental injustice that is being perpetrated in our name against Oliver North.

—Will Reagan and Bush ever stand before the bar of justice?

I doubt it.

North specifically is charged with lying to Congress, destroying official documents, tax fraud and accepting an illegal gift (a security system at his home).

Considering the testimony to date, there is a good chance that North will be found guilty on one or all charges.

If so, the penalties are heavy: up to 60 years in prison and up to $3 million in fines.

You would almost think that common decency would persuade Reagan and Bush to step forward and tell exactly happpened before the testimony becomes any more damaging.

If they continue to stonewall and let Oliver North face his accusers alone, history is going to judge them with Richard Nixon as the most dispicable men ever elected to the nation's highest office.

Oyster Bay fire was arson

Fire officials feel arson caused a March 8 fire at a home under construction at Oyster Bay. The fire did more than $100,000 in damage to the home owned by Paul Andoni of Bloomfield Hills.

"It was a set fire," Charlevoix City Fire Department chief John Martin said following an investigation by the city fire department and state fire marshals. "They (the arsonists) used some type of a combustible liquid to set it."

Charlevoix city firemen were called to the fire at 9:26 p.m. Township firemen were called a short time later. A slippery and steep private road, in conjunction with the lack of water supply on site, hampered firefighters' efforts.

Firemen had to put down a large supply hose several hundred feet from the house up the private road to Boyne City Road where they set up a pumper truck and portable water tank. Tanker trucks hauled water from town to the portable tank from which it was pumped down to the fire.

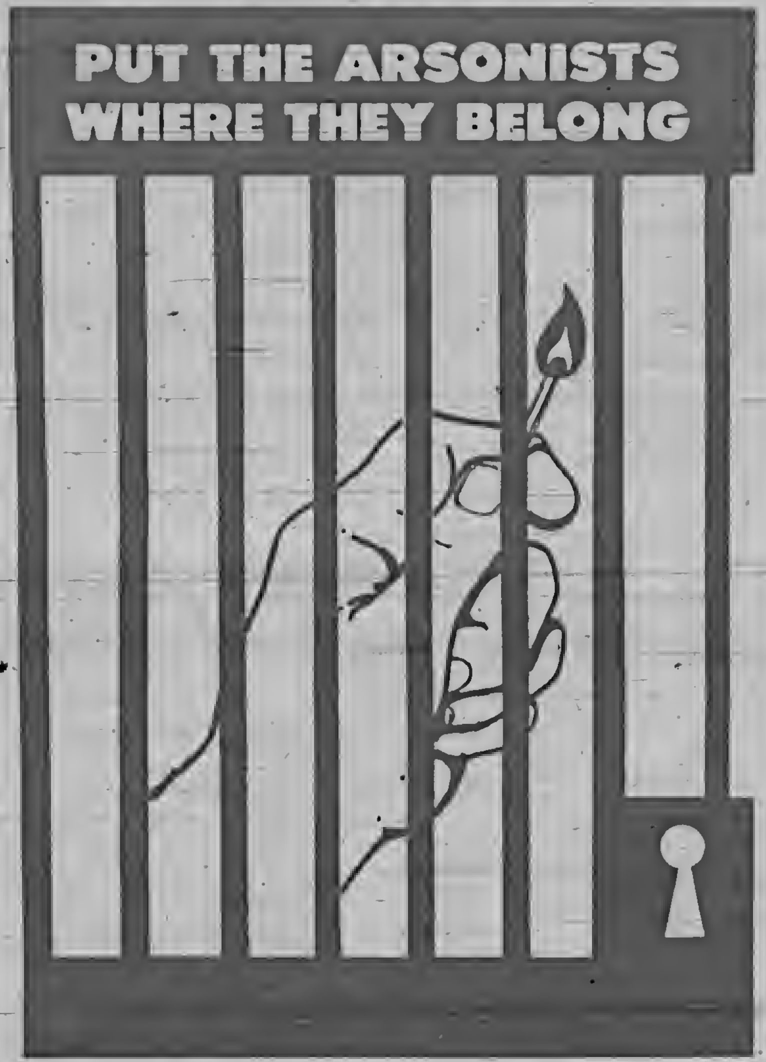
Firemen managed to keep the home's garage and kitchen intact, but the rest of the home was destroyed.

Reward money totalling $3,000 is available to anyone providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist. The reward money is a combination of funds put up by a state program and the homeowner.

"We're looking for some help from somebody as to anything they might have seen or heard or might know about it," Martin said.

People with information may call arson control collect at (517) 322-0469, the Charlevoix City Fire Department at 547-3266, the State Fire Marshal's office in Cadillac at (616) 775-6000, or the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department at 547-4461.

According to information put out by the state of Michigan, "Each year some $60 million in direct costs is lost due to arson within our state. This amount does not take into account outside or indirect financial and emotional costs - funeral expenses, medical expenses, fire fighting expenses, lost wages, business interruptions and increased law enforcement."



PUT THE ARSONISTS WHERE THEY BELONG

Irwin wants landmark-sign program

Senator Mitch Irwin has proposed a new two-pronged strategy to boost tourism in Michigan through a cooperative public-private partnership.

"I am asking Transportation Department officials to implement a directional signing program to help guide visitors to our many attractions and businesses across northern Michigan," Irwin said.

"I am also proposing that we add designations to our state highway maps to denote major resorts, golf courses, and other significant attractions across our state.

"Billboard advertising is coming under increasing fire in our state, and an official system of directional signing could help alleviate that pressure, while also helping to boost business," added Irwin, who released his proposal during the Governor's Conference on Tourism.

The state of Virginia has a unique directional signing program incorporating easily identifiable logos and designations to guide tourists and visitors around towns and to key attractions, the northern Michigan Senator explained. "Michigan could look to that program as a starting point for our own system," Irwin said.

Round up kindergarteners

Yipee-ti-yi-yea get along little kiddies. It's getting to be time for the annual kindergarten round-up and registration; time for parents with children who will be entering kindergarten next year to be spurred into action.

Parents must call the school office at 547-3215 to reserve a space in one of four registration sessions scheduled for May 2 from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. or from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., or May 3 from 9 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. or from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Parents should bring in their children 10 minutes ahead of starting time.(Afterall, what kind of example would you as a parent be setting for your kid if you had to go to the office and get a tardy slip at kindergarten registration?)

This year's registration will include a 90-minute kindergarten mini session for the enrolling child.

While parents are in the gym registering the kids, the kids will go to the mini session to give them a feeling of what kindergarten will be like.

Along with their child, parents must bring the following information to the registration: a certified copy of the child's birth certificate which is a copy for the county clerk's office with an affixed seal (a church, baptismal or hospital record is unacceptable); up-to-date immunization records; social security numbers for father, mother and child; a photograph (which will be returned at a later date) of the child.

The Charlevoix Board of Education recommends that children entering kindergarten be five years old by Sept. 1, 1989. Also, in the event a child is to be registered and will not be living with the natural parents, it is required that guardianship or court placement papers be presented to school personnel at the time of kindergarten registration.

For additional information, contact the elementary school at 547-3215.

Storyteller to appear

Children throughout northern Michigan who have enjoyed Patty Clark's school assembly performances know she makes stories come alive with exciting narration and enticing songs. With her appearance for the Jordan River Arts Council's "Arts Alive" series, adults too will have an opportunity to enjoy Clark's expertise as a raconteur.

Clark will perform at 7 p.m. Friday, April 14, at East Jordan Middle School and Saturday, April 15, at Mancelona High School. The evening's stories will be a Yiddish story, "It Could Always Be Worse," and a Japanese story, "The Stone Cutter," both featuring audience involvement in acting out parts.

To complement the stories she will sing songs by the well known children's composer and singer, Ravi, including "Thanks a Lot" and "All I Really Need." Also in her repertoire is "The Turtle Song," popularized by singer Carol Johnson.

Instruments she plays include a mountain dulcimer, 12-string guitar and auto-harp. Besides her growing reputation as a storyteller, Clark is also making her mark as lead singer for Blue Moon, a contemporary folk group which was opening act for folk singer Sally Rogers' recent Petoskey show.

Her performance is the third of five scheduled by the arts council in two locations. Still to come are:

Anne-Marie Oomen and Raymond Margis, poets and dramatists, in East Jordan April 28 and Bellaire April 29, and the Fitch Dance Troupe in East Jordan May 12 and Bellaire May 13.

All performances will begin at the high schools at 7 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door ($5 adult, $3 student), and series tickets are priced at $8.25 per person, $11 per couple or $16.50 per family. The programs are supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

Folk singer and storyteller Patty Clark will perform this weekend as part of the Jordan Valley arts group entertainment series.

Politicians questioning T.C. state hospital closure

Senators Connie Binsfeld (R-Maple City), Mitch Irwin (D-Sault Ste. Marie) and Representative Tom Power (R-Traverse City) have announced that a study conducted at their request by the Senate Fiscal Agency to examine the issue of closing Traverse City Regional Psychiatric Hospital stated concerns similar to a study done for the legislators by the State's Auditor General.

"The Senate Fiscal Agency is 'convinced that the total dollars spent within the mental health system will increase as a result of closure'," said Sen. Binsfeld in announcing receipt of the agency's report, "just as the Auditor General's review questioned the overall accuracy of cost projections made by the department and contained in the Health Management Associates, Inc., study."

"Further, the Senate Fiscal Agency is of the opinion that, 'the State will spend the same total State dollars on mental health whether or not the facility closes.' This is not in agreement with the financial information supplied to us by the department during the initial legislative discussions on the issue, and I feel that we now need to take the time to examine this option very carefully before proceeding," Rep. Power continued.

"While we have always strongly supported the 'quality of care' issue, we fail to see the advantage to the patients, their immediate families, or the taxpayers of Michigan if the additional expenses incurred will only provide a change in service location, while keeping existing services at the current levels. There is no advantage to anyone under those circumstances," said Rep. Power, commenting on the Senate Fiscal Agency's contention that the total dollars spent for mental health would increase with closure of the hospital.

On the quality of care issue, Sen. Binsfeld said, "The Senate Fiscal Agency report echoes our orverriding concern in this matter. They, like we and the comments contained in the Health Management Associates, Inc., study done for the department, 'are not convinced that the community mental health system,' which will be called upon to fill the void left by closing the hospital, 'can currently handle the increase in patients.' We cannot allow nearly one-third of the State to operate without readily available in-patient hospital mental health services."

"The related issues of quality of care and expense have always been foremost in our minds," Sen. Binsfeld continued. "We are not, based on the two reports we now have received, convinced that the proposed actions of the department, in the short term, are in the best interests of either the patients or the taxpayer. While community mental health programs will undoubtedly expand their efforts and services to meet the need, they cannot accomplish that task overnight. To operate in the hope that no major event will occur while this expansion takes place is courting disaster."

"Nothing requires closure of the hospital by the currently proposed date of October 1st," concluded Rep. Power. "I would hope that any final action taken on an issue of this magnitude and importance would be based on realistic and verifiable facts. At this point in the process, I don't believe that we have the kind of information, and I hesitate to support the department's position given the contradictory information we have received from two fiscal agencies of the state that are well known and respected, not only for their fiscal analyses, but also for their overall work product."

Nitrate test offered

The MSU Cooperative Extension Service Mobile Nitrate Testing Van will be in the area Monday, May 1 to test soil and water samples for nitrates. Nitrate testing of soil is an excellent, inexpensive way of evaluating the available nitrogen status of your soil. Michigan State University research and demonstration studies have shown that many farmers could reduce their nitrogen fertilizer applications rates on corn and potatoes without risk of reducing yields.

Nitrate nitrogen in drinking water may be a sign that some contamination has occurred. Concentrations above 10 ppm are considered unsafe for human drinking purposes. Sources for contamination may include animal manure, fertilizer, leaking lagoons, or septic systems. High concentrations of nitrate nitrogen in drainage water usually means that excessive use of fertilizer or manure has occurred.

This is your opportunity to reduce your fertilizer cost as well as preventing further contamination of critical water resources.

Deep soil samples to a depth of 24 inches are required to accurately measure the amount of nitrate nitrogen in the field. Fields which have received heavy amount of manure and-or large amounts of Nitrogen fertilizer should be tested.

If you are interested in participating call either the Charlevoix CES office at 582-6232 or the Antrim CES office at 533-8706 by Monday, April 24. We will come out and take the test. Cost for soil test are $5 per field. Water samples are $1.

Hospice will train volunteers

Virus alters fish planting plans

A virus which infected fish at the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Marquette rearing station last spring has reappeared, and state officials are taking steps to mitigate fish planting losses and begin the disinfection process.

The virus, called Epizootic Epitheliotropic Disease (EED) was first discovered in spring of 1988. It is causing problems at federal fish hatcheries across the mid-west. It poses no threat to human health.

John M. Robertson, Chief of the DNR's Fisheries Division, said while the yearling lake trout and splake will be destroyed, a surplus of rainbow trout and brown trout will replace them in the inland lake planting program.

"We will be able to offset about 70 percent of the splake loss," Robertson said, "The lake trout plant in Whitefish Bay will be met with fingerlings in the fall and we will plant out brood stock into selected landlocked Upper Peninsula lakes."

Robertson said the disease has not been detected inside the hatchery building, only in outdoor raceways. "We will keep the fingerlings inside the building for normal rearing and disinfect the outdoor raceways," Robertson explained.

Extensive modernization and reconstruction is scheduled for the Marquette facility beginning in the fall of 1990.

Water quality is subject of April FOCUS meeting

Two people concerned with water quality will be guest speakers at this month's FOCUS Forum at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, April 19 at the high school.

Jack Norris and Doris Schaller will address the topic, "Michigan Water Wonderland?"

Norris is water quality chairman for the Three Lakes Association. His duties include planning and following up water quality programs involving Torch Lake, Clam Lake and Lake Bellaire.

"Pollution and chemical contamination require very fine monitoring given their ability to poison large water areas even though amounts of contaminants may be tiny," says the retired researcher and management consultant.

Schaller is co-chair of the northern chapter of Don't Waste Michigan, a group which is opposed to having a low-level radioactive waste dump sited in Michigan. Michigan is a member of a seven-state compact. The compact has selected Michigan as the site for radioactive waste dump which will accept waste from all seven states for the next 20 years.

Schaller and DWM people point out that the Great Lakes contain 95 percent of the nations fresh surface water and supply drinking water for 27 million people. DWM maintains that radioactive waste sites are notorius for leaking and that a site in Michigan could contaminate the Great Lakes.

DWM members have been active in letter writing and contacting politicians at the local, state and national levels. This past winter, pressure from DWM and other groups contributed to Gov. James Blanchard saying he would demand additional assurances from the compact. DWM wants Michigan to withdraw from the regional compact.

Monthly FOCUS forums were initiated in 1987 by several Charlevoix residents who felt there was a need for more information on community issues. Question and answer periods are part of each forum.

There is no charge for admission to the meetings.

Sexual abuse is meeting topic

A meeting to inform the public of problems related to child sexual abuse will take place at 7 p.m., Thursday, April 13 at the American Legion Hall.

The meeting will feature a panel composed of members of an adult victims group from Traverse City, therapists, doctors, court officials, foster parents, Department of Social Services workers, parents of victims and law enforcement officers.

A group called SAVE (Sexual Abuse Victim Escape) is sponsoring the meeting and has been passing out informational sheets titled "Innocent Shame -The Silent Crime."

The sheets ask, "If this (sexual abuse) happened to a child you knew, would you know how to help? Would you know the proper professionals to contact? Would you know how to react to the child so that they would experience the least amount of trauma?"

Choral seeks performers

The Board of Directors of the Little Traverse Choral Society invites singers and keyboard accompanists to audition for the new Little Traverse Chamber Singers, on Tuesday evening, April 18, at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. Approximately 12 voices are needed for performances of the ensemble, but the Choral Society's Music Director, Jeffrey Bell-Hanson expects to select additional singers for membership. Members of this select group will sing with the larger Choral Society chorus during the winter concert season in addition to their own performances throughout the year.

Waterfowl limits may be reinstated

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is considering keeping last year's waterfowl hunting restrictions in place for the upcoming fall season, according to a notice published in the March 27, 1989, Federal Register.

Early results of waterfowl harvest studies confirm that duck production was very poor last year, as predicted. Although complete harvest information will not be available until summer, preliminary analysis of wings submitted by hunters indicates that mallard and pintail populations contained less than one young for each adult bird, whereas in years of good production the young outnumber the adults. Pintail production was down dramatically, with only one young for every two adults. Wood duck production also declined, reflecting the effects of drought in the southeast.

The current waterfowl situation underscores the importance of long-term efforts to conserve and enhance waterfowl habitat through the North American Waterfowl Management Plan. The North American Plan is a joint effort between the United States and Canada to preserve and restore key waterfowl habitats, and is considered particularly crucial now because widespread drought has accelerated habitat loss, particularly in Canada. Many areas important to breeding ducks have been permanently affected. Several years of good weather conditions will be required before remaining habitat areas can recover, revegetate, and produce ducks.

Because a large harvest on populations with poor production is not in the best interest of waterfowl or the future of waterfowl hunting, the Fish and Wildlife Service is tentatively proposing to continue restrictive hunting regulations in 1989, including suspension of the following: The September teal season, extra teal and scaup options, and the point system. Proposals for outside season dates, bag limits, and season length will be deferred until results of nesting, production, and harvest surveys become available later this year.

The Service is also proposing to open shooting hours at sunrise and close them at sunset for all migratory birds, with two exceptions: (1) shooting hours will begin one-half hour before sunrise for doves and pigeons, and (2) migratory bird hunters may shoot one-half hour before sunrise prior to the earliest duck season opening date (including sea ducks) and after the latest duck closing date.

These proposals are contained in the March 27, 1989 Federal Register. This document also contains details of proposed regulations for early migratory bird hunting seasons (those opening before October 1). A public hearing on early season regulations, including those for Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, will be held June 22, 1989, at 9 a.m. at a location to be named later. A public hearing on late season regulations will be held August 3 at 9 a.m. Public comments on proposed early season regulations will be accepted through July 21 and for late season regulations through August 28 and should be submitted to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

Have you ever read a passage in the Bible that so gripped your heart you had to find some way for it to come true in your own life? There have been many times since I've become a Christian this has happened to me. But, just recently, I literally stumbled across a passage while studying something different that took a vice-like grip on my life in Christ.

I was studying through the second book of the Bible, Exodus, and concentrating on the Ten Commandments and all the hows and whys surrounding the topic. Then seemingly, out of nowhere, my heart was gripped by Exodus 34:29-35. I knew from that pointon that God was wanting me to live the passage out in my Christian walk. The more I looked at the passage; the more I could see my failure of not living it.

Moses had just come down from Mt. Sinai with the second set of Ten Commandments. (Remember Moses threw the first set to the ground shattering the tablets of stone after he saw the Israelite community disobeying God by worshipping the golden calf.) Here's what gripped my heart: "When Moses came down from Mt. Sinai with the two tablets of the testimony in his hands, he was not aware that his face was radiant because he had spoken with the Lord" (Ex. 34:29,NIV). Moses' face was radiant. Why? I knew the Lord wanted me to live out the passage, but why was Moses literally, according to the original Hebrew, "sending out rays"?

Then the conviction hit as I was reminded that in the two preceding verses. Moses finished 40 days and nights of "true" communion with the Lord. The Lord wanted me to have "true" communion with Him. As with Moses, I knew the rays of God would soon flow from this Christian life.

I've been a Christian for many years, but have I truly radiated the fullness of God's glory in my Christian walk? I must confess, probably not, along with 99.9 percent of others claiming Christ as their personal Savior. Yes, I've had communion with God all these years and have lived a righteous life, but do I radiate the fullness of God's glory like Moses had?

I know that when I begin to radiate, I'll make a radical difference in this world for the Lord. No longer will I be complacent in my Christian walk but constantly taking risks to see others come to know Christ as their personal Savior and have Him as Lord over their entire life. I want to be radically different for my Lord. What about you?

Grant app info offered

A four day grant writing workshop planned for May 15-18 in Traverse City continues to generate much interest. Registrants to date include representatives from natural resource agencies, human service organizations, local units of government and other special interest groups that need grants to meet the needs of their clientele.

In today's world it is increasingly more difficult to compete for limited grant dollars especially at the private foundation level. The workshop is sponsored by the Northwest Michigan and Huron Pines Resource Conservation and Development Councils and will be presented by Dr. Barbara Bader and Mr. Steven Carr, Directors of Community Systems of Bozeman, Montana.

The comprehensivo workshop covers all aspects of grant-writing from developing and assessing proposal ideas, researching and contacting potential funders, building support for grant ideas, to writing and submitting proposals and following up with funders. Special attention is devoted to proposal writing, with detailed instructions in such technical aspects as needs assessment, program design, project evaluation, and budgeting. Each workshop participant will receive a detailed 150 plus page training manual which includes a proposal writing guide, specific instructions, background reading, and an extensive reference section. Participants in the workshop will also receive follow-up consultation to review their proposals.

The Northwest Michigan Resource Conservation and Development Council has developed a mini-library of standard reference works for grant-seekers, including resources for foundation, corporate, and public funds. These resources and their use will be available during the workshop.

Because of limited class size it is important to register as soon as possible. The registration deadline is April 28. For more information or to register for the workshop contact Jim Haveman at the Northwest Michigan Resource Conservation and Development Council office in Traverse City or phone (616)946-6817.

DNR sends out toxic waste notices

To insure that Quality of Life Bond issue money will not be used to pick up the bill for cleanup of toxic wastes where private parties should pay, Director David F. Hales of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) today notified more than 100 property owners, corporate executives, investors or company owners that they are potentially responsible for cleanup costs at 40 contaminated sites where actions are proposed for this year.

"We have notified those who appear to have some form of financial interest or responsibility at these sites that state funds have been requested for cleanup under the Michigan Environmental Response Act (MERA)," Hales said, "We are asking those responsible to assume that responsibility and cleanup the site."

Hales said those being contacted have 15 days to respond to the letters of notification. After that, state funds may be spent to cleanup the sites and recovery sought from the responsible parties. And in some cases, he added, other legal action may be requested from attorney General Frank J. Kelley.

The sites in question were recommended for funding by Governor James J. Blanchard on March 9 as part of the very first sites to be targeted with bond issue funds. Voters in November approved an $800 million bond issue to be used for cleanup of toxic wastes, refurbishing and repair of the state parks system; water pollution control projects; local recreational projects and a Great Lakes Protection Fund."

Charlevoix councilmen for the most part reviewed the latest bandshell design which was presented Monday evening. They said they would like the eves to tip down rather than up. The design above shows the proposed bandshell as it would look to someone facing the stage. There will also be a terraced pond in front of the stage.

iron out their differences. In the end, the two groups agreed on several aspects, but the city council made the decision on how large the area behind the stage should be.

Monday evening's council meeting was only a work session and the council could not formally approve the new bandshell design.

The old bandshell was torn down last fall and currently there's an ugly hole at the south end of East Park. All factions in the bandshell dispute have indicated a desire to see the dispute resolved in time for the new bandshell to be constructed by this summer.

Burnside design discussed again

A proposal to renovate the Burnside Building at the edge of Bridge Park was in a familiar place Monday evening - back before the city council.

Charlevoix Development Company, which owns the building, wants to renovate it and put windows and a door on the north side of the building. That side of the building abutts the park. City councilmen previously rejected the plan, expressing concern about people walking through the park to enter and leave a private building.

There currently is a narrow sidewalk on city property alongside the building. According to the renovation design, the door to the building would be off of that sidewalk.

Following the council's rejection of the design earlier this year, the development company appealed to the zoning board of appeals. The zoning board of appeals referred the matter back to the council, asking the council to give a specific reason for rejecting the plan.

At Monday's meeting, the council referred to a legal opinion drafted by city attorney Jim Young. The opinion was similar to opinions offered on the matter by previous city attorneys.

In a letter to city manager Mike Wiesner dated April 8, Young wrote, "Pursuant to your request, I have examined the Burnside Building Development Plan, the Zoning Ordinance and the packet which you have prepared for Council on this matter. Moreover, you took me to the site since I wanted to see if there might be potential safety problems regarding the door entering onto a park. No such safety problems were readily apparent to me. It is my understanding that the Planning Commission and Planner have not identified any reasons which would justify denial of the plan.

"Based on the forgoing I see no reasons for denial of the plan which would withstand a legal challenge.

"If Council decides to deny the plan, then it should do so only if significant reasons exist based on the Zoning Ordinance or public safety considerations. Moreover these reasons must be able to be proven in Court and should be identified in the minutes of the meeting.

"If Council decides to approve the plan, then the approval resolution and subsequent correspondence to the developer should note that 'this resolution must not be construed to limit the rights of the City to develop its property as it deems appropriate and that such development may at sometime in the future interfere with the use intended by the developer."

With that in mind, councilmen noted that although they may have to approve the plan, the city may in the future wish to remove the present narrow sidewalk and replace it with a hedge. The city may also construct a wider sidewalk in the center of the park.

Monday evening's meeting was a work session rather than a regular council meeting so the council could take no formal action on the matter.

City council disputes commission appointments

Mayor Gary Probert's commission appointments were not routine Monday evening.

Planning Commission appointments were the most controversial with a Downtown Development Authority appointment not far behind.

Probert appointed Clem Olach to take Dave Novotny's seat on the planning commission. Novotny's term had expired. Novotny has been the planning commission chair and has been instrumental in initiating a review of the city's land use master plan. Olach has previously served on the planning commission.

Carol Sullivan's reappointment to the planning commission was initially rejected by the council on a 3-2 vote. Councilmen Ken Whitley, Butch Russell and Jim Potter voted not to reappoint Sullivan while Earl Muma and Norm Probert voted to keep her.

Later in the meeting, Potter had a change of heart and asked to vote again. The second time around Sullivan's reappointment was approved with Potter siding with Muma and Probert.

When the council discussed not reappointing Sullivan, Bruce MacArthur, who is active in a number of community projects, spoke in support of Sullivan.

He noted that Sullivan is a professional planner and said, "There's nobody more qualified to serve in the position she's appointed to be in than Carol Sullivan."

A third planning commission appointment was not resolved Monday evening and at the moment is vacant.

Mayor Gary Probert said planning commission Russ Lewis has resigned. Probert sought to replace him with Curt Thompson.

Potter said he heard Lewis was pushed off the planning commission. Potter, Whitley and Russell voted against Thompson's appointment to the planning commission.

Following the meeting, in a discussion with the Courier, Gary Probert said he had talked to Lewis about resigning and Lewis indicated he either wanted to get more involved with the planning process or get out of it. Probert said that Lewis made the decision to resign.

Probert said recommends Thompson for the planning commission because Thompson is a member of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department and Probert believes the planning commission would benefit from having a fireman as a member. Probert said he isn't sure that he can legally appoint a city

Revised bandhsell design receives council approval

If all goes well, the new bandshell could be under construction within six to seven weeks, city manager Mike Wiesner said at Monday evening's city council meeting.

All did go well for the latest bandshell plans at the council meeting as the plans met with council approval by a 4-1 vote. Councilman Norman Probert voted against the plans and councilman Bill Haggard was absent from the meeting.

Councilman Butch Russell, who made the motion to approve the plan, said, "I have no problems with this design. I think it'll be real nice."

However, Russell did stipulate in his motion that he wanted three minor things either reviewed or modified.

Those things were:

+He wanted to be sure that stone pillars at the front of the shell wouldn't cause structural problems. Norm Probert raised that question at last week's council work session. Architect Jack Begrow said that point is being reviewed with a structural engineer.

+Council wanted a small hedge put along one side of the bandshell, so that there will be shrubbery on both sides of the structure. Begrow said that wouldn't be any problem.

+Russell wanted Virgina Olsen contacted for her input on the Earl Young style design of the facility. Begrow said he has been trying to get in touch with Olsen and will make another attempt.

Following Monday evening's approval, Begrow will develop bid specs. The plan will again come before council prior to advertising for bids. That should occur in about a month.

Bids should be opened approximately two weeks after that.

Begrow said the most recent design should cost about the same to construct as the previous design. Since the project began, soil borings have indicated that pilings will have to be driven to provide support for the structure. Begrow said those pilings could add as much as $22,000 to the project's cost.

Mayor Gary Probert asked if temporarily filling the hole would hamper putting in the pilings. Begrow said it would because the soils have to be down as far as possible when the pilings are driven.

People who led the movement to downsize the original bandshell design and preserve more of the harbor view were in the audience when the latest bandshell design was approved and did not speak in opposition to it.

Council supports bridge opening change

If the Charlevoix City Council can get the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and the U.S. Coast Guard to go along with them, bridge openings won't be as much of a burden to automobile drivers on summer evenings.

Currently the bridge, commonly referred to as "that — bridge" by people trying to drive through Charlevoix in the summer opens on the hour and half-hour from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. and whenever a boat wants through anytime other than that.

If a resolution adopted by the council Monday evening meets with the consent of MDOT and the U.S. Coast Guard, between Memorial Day and Labor Day the bridge will open on the half-hour and hour between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. and whenever a boat wants through anytime other than that.

Council approved the resolution 5-0 with councilman Bill Haggard absent.

Council considered a second

PTA hosts carnival Friday

The annual PTA Elementary School Spring Carnival will be a happening thing from 5:30 p.m. to 8 p.m., Friday, April 21 in the elementary school gym.

Although the PTA has changed over the years, the school carnival is something, with a tradition extending back generations.

This year's carnival will have the traditional cakewalk and various other carnival type games as well as jewelry engraving, cookie decorating, an obstacle course and helium-filled balloons.

Carnival co-chair Linda Tache said the carnival is the PTA's only traditional annual fundraising event. She said it's a nice event because it allows kids to come into the school and play and also gives adults a chance to come to the school and familiarize themselves with the facility.

Highlighting this year's carnival will be a drawing for an overnight stay for two at the Amway Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids. The grand prize was donated by Charlevoix Chrysler and Pat McKeown Ford. Other drawing prizes include a "Boom Box" and a pocket stereo.

Tickets for the drawing are available at the elementary school office.

In recent year's the carnival has attracted a crowd of about 600 people and brought the PTA approximately $3,000. The money helps fund elementary school programs such as R.I.F. (Reading Is Fundamental), special assemblies and field trips, audiovisual equipment, playground equipment and cross-country skiing equipment used in the physical education program.

The elementary PTA program has undergone some changes in recent years and become revitalized. The PTA formally was known as the Parent Advisory Council (PAC), but has changed to the Parent Teacher Association. The benefits of the change were state and national PTA affiliation and public familiarity with the PTA concept.

There will be one particularly notable change in this year's Spring Carnival. Rather than hot dogs and chips, the featured food item will be pizza and tossed salad.

Tickets for the drawing cost $1 each or $5 for six. Tickets for the games cost 25 cents apiece.

Students sing for dinner

An intimate cabaret style dinner theatre will be created Saturday evening, May 20, in Charlevoix High School, when the Performing Arts students collaborate with Terry Left to present an evening of theatre and fine food.

Titled "Out of Bounds" this will be the final public performance of the year by the Performing Arts students. Tickets for the limited seating performance are now on sale.

The cast of over 55 students will offer a montage of selections from Broadway Musicals and dramatic theatre, combined with a varied offering of modern and traditional musical pieces. Dance numbers, skits, live music videos, and even vaudeville will highlight the evening.

"The students titled this 'Out of Bounds' because they are using everything we always wanted to perform for the public but had not, for lack of unifying theme," explains Performing Arts coach Connie Ford. "This will be a show with a lot of variety, spotlighting the diverse talents of our students."

The dinner theatre will begin with a special dinner prepared by Terry Left with the assistance of Jerry Pease. The students will serve the 200 theatre guests before their performance.

The dinner menu includes a choice of prime rib of beef or baked whitefish, tossed salad, fresh green beans almondine, baked potato, and a choice of chocolate or strawberry cheese cake for dessert.

On the performance menu are songs, dance numbers and sketches from "Phantom of the Opera," "Les Miserables," "Grease," "Sweeney Todd," "Oliver," and a number of original skits and adaptations.

Tickets may be purchased at the Charlevoix High School office or through Performing Arts students and parents. Only 200 tickets are available. The ticket price is $12.50 per person. Festivities begin at 6:30 p.m.

Sheriff George Laster honored members of Charlevoix County's Victim Advocates program. firemen to the city planning commission.

An appointment to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) was also controversial in that the incumbent Jeanine Wallace was not reappointed.

Probert said that although Wallace apparently wanted to stay on, he didn't want her to stay on because she has been unable to make it to the DDA meetings.

Probert recommended Dennis Kusina to fill Wallace's seat on the DDA.

DDA chairman Gene Steele spoke in support of retaining Wallace. He said some of Wallace's attendance problems had been due to poor health. He indicated he feels Wallace is a valuable member of the DDA and he wanted her to stay on.

Probert said Wallace had also missed a recent DDA meeting because she had to be out of town on business.

"I'd like people who can make it to all of the meetings or a good majority of them," Probert said.

Councilmen approved Kusina's appointment to the committee by a 4-0 vote with Russell abstaining.

Two other appointments went through smoothly. Marge Dinwiddie has bowed out of the housing commission after serving for a number of years. She will be replaced by Chuck Marrow. Mike Hilligan, who has a growing family and a growing business to tend to, chose to leave the DDA. He will be replaced by Ed Johnson.

resolution which would have changed the bridge opening times to quarter to the hour and quarter after the hour. After talking about it, Wiesner and the majority of the councilman decided that might do more harm than good so nobody made a motion to act on the resolution and it died.

Councilman Norm Probert indicated he feels there still might be some benefit to changing bridge opening times and the matter may be discussed by the council again at a later date.

Fly with an idle mind

Planes tilt when they turn. I don't.

I flew to Beaver Island last week. It was the first time I'd flown to the island and only about the third time I've flown at all.

Generally speaking, an active mind is a desirable thing, but there are time when it's a curse and a person would be better off just shifting his mind to idle and not thinking too much.

At face value, flying to Beaver Island is as safe as crossing the street, probably safer than crossing Bridge Street in the summer. If a person just sits back and enjoys the scenery, there's no problem.

But for some reason I can't do that. I've got to start thinking about everything.

It started right away. As I settled into my seat on the plane and fastened the seatbelt, I thought to myself, "Now, this is probably a meaningless gesture."

I introduced myself to the pilot - told my name, shook his hand. He told me his name, shook my hand.

"I guess he seems like a nice enough guy..." I thought to myself as we taxied out to the runway, "which means that if by some chance we do crash and die, at least I'll have the satisfaction of feeling I'm going out in pleasant company."

Planes are different from cars in that they have a guest steering wheel and peddles on the passenger side. I've read stories about pilots unexpectedly keeling over ("unexpectedly" generally being the way in which people keel over) and then somebody with no flying experience taking over the controls and landing the plane safely.

While I enjoyed reading about those things, I have no inclination to participate. As we left the ground, I looked over to make sure the pilot looked healthy. He did, but if he'd have so much as sneezed, I would have grabbed his wrist to check his pulse.

The dashboard of a plane is filled with a lot of gauges, dials and knobs. As I recall, there wasn't even enough room left for a good-sized glove compartment.

Not that I could make the least bit of sense out of any of the readings, but I still kept a close eye on them. If I would have seen a dial suddenly changing without the pilot appearing to notice it, you can bet I would have pointed it out to him.

"Hey pilot, pardon me for disturbing you, but is that dial that says "ALT" supposed to be spinning counterclockwise so fast?"

Planes tilt when they turn. For some reason, I find that disconcerting. I did my best to correct the problem. Everytime the plane would tilt to the left, I would lean to the right until the turn was completed and the plane came back to an even keel again.

During the ride over in the morning, the weather was beautiful. The scenery was so nice that for a while I was able to put aside my thinking and just enjoy the view. It was the first time I'd seen Beaver Island from the air. It looked interesting - a couple of lakes, lots of woods and several bays.

The weather wasn't as nice for the afternoon ride back to the mainland. A little snowstorm chased us across Lake Michigan.

Mild turbulence was part of the flight. I use the term "mild turbulence" with respect to turbulence in general. No turbulence is mild when you're the one who's in it.

Under the effect of the mild turbulence, the plane occasionally would bounce or drop a little. It wouldn't drop far, just about the distance from the place where my heart normally rests up to my throat.

As we approached the mainland, I felt more secure.

"We're getting closer now," I thought. "Still not close enough so I could swim ashore, but close just the same."

We flew over the tower at the cement plant. I remembered that when I worked at the cement plant one summer I used to look out from the side of the tower and at the time was impressed with how tall it was. As I flew over the tower, it didn't seem so tall.

A few moments later the plane landed softly on the runway in Charlevoix. I got out, walked to my truck and drove home, resisting an urge to lean away from the turns.

Alano bowling a success

Editor,

The Charlevoix Alano Club-Serenity House, would like to thank everyone who contributed to the success of our 2nd annual Bowl-a-thon. This is our biggest yearly fundraiser. These monies help us with operating expenses and the purchase of our literature for people having questions about chemical and-or alcohol dependency. This year, we were also able to raise enough money to furnish our back building with tables and chairs.

Besides our bowlers and over 300 sponsors, we would like to add a special thank you to Paul Bunyan Lanes for the use of their facility on March 19 and the reduced rates, TNT Pizza for working on their day off so we could feed our hungry bowlers, and St. Mary's Catholic Church for allowing us to use their tables and chairs until we were able to purchase our own.

The entire community support is greatly appreciated.

Bashing billboards

I think that I shall never see
A billboard lovelier than a tree.
Indeed, unless the billboards fall
I'll never see a tree at all.

Billboards.

I'm not sure who wrote those lines, but Ogden Nash comes to mind.

If he didn't write them, he could have.

Nor am I exactly sure when billboards became a nuisance. But they definitely are today.

A good deal of urban blight can be attributed to the ungainly billboards that line the highways in metropolitan areas.

Northern Michigan always has had a few billboards, but not many. You used to be able to travel mile after mile without having the handiwork of man intrude upon our breath-taking vistas of woods and waters.

If there were roadside signs, they were limited to "Chew Mail Pouch Tobacco" painted on barns badly in need of a coat of paint.

One farmer was asked why he painted "Chew Mail Pouch Tobacco" on his barn.

"To protect the wood," he answered laconically.

The only other signs in evidence were those cute little knee-high placards touting "Burma Shave." They were always good for a chuckle.

NOW BATTALIONS of huge billboards, some taller than the surrounding forest, assail the eye at every bend in the road and they are growing by the hundreds every year, blotting out the natural beauty of the Michigan landscape.

What's worse, local and state governmental units say they are incapable of controlling the problem — which is a crock. Vermont has banned billboards and no one misses them.

Some billboards, I'll admit, serve an informational purpose. Driving on I-75, for example, I really don't mind knowing in advance that there is a MacDonald's, a Wendy's, or a Burger King at the next exit.

When the fuel guage is hovering around "empty," it's nice to know that there is a gas station just ahead.

Admittedly, the same information could be passed along by modest little green-and-white highway signs — and maybe that's the way all highway advertising should be handled.

The highways are definitely no place for product advertising — and that's what all of the new billboards seem to be about. I could get the same message in my newspaper, my magazines, on radio or on television — without having the message interfere with my enjoyment of the great outdoors.

WHY, FOR EXAMPLE, must I be advised every time I drive from Petoskey to Charlevoix that a Christmas decoration store in far-off Frankenmuth is waiting to serve me 360 days a year?

Obviously, the product advertisers don't give a rap about our enjoyment of the natural beauty that surrounds us.

The anwser to the problem is equally obvious: Stop patronizing advertisers who are so callous as to thrust their commercial messages in front of pine forests and placid lakes.

Although I object strenuously to organized boycotts, I think as individuals we could all make an effort not to deal with any public-be-damned company that insists on defiling the landscape.

Such an economic message would get through in a hurry and the billboards would come down.

What about the little-old-ladies-in-tennis-shoes who are living off the proceeds of billboard property leases? Would they starve to death?

I really don't know.

If abolition of billboards causes anyone a real hardship, perhaps the state could step in with some kind of stipend until the lessor finds another source of income from his or her highway property.

But the billboard companies themselves don't deserve any special consideration, in my opinion.

Where did they get the idea that Michigan's scenery is theirs to destroy?

High school students take tour of France during spring break

by Tim Henne

Under the guidance of high school French teacher Yvonne Wendt, 14 students from the junior class and seven from the senior class recently completed a nine-day journey through France, by van, plane, bus and boat they absorbed culture, hard bread, lots of poultry and lots of fun. This is their story.

March 28, 1989 - Disembark aboard vans for Sault Ste. Marie, where a commuter flight carried us to Toronto for our flight change to Charles de Gaul Airport in Paris, France. Bad weather kept us circling and it seemed we were slated for certain death. The rest of the ride was smooth except for the chicken dinner.

March 29 - Arrive in Paris at 11:00 France time - 4:00 U.S. time. After a wait at the luggage check we learn that our bags were currently at London Airport. Not good news for someone entering their second day in the same clothes. A metro (the equivalent of a subway) trip to downtown Paris follows a quick stop at the hotel. The ancient stone buildings and streets prove complicated, but everyone makes it back in time for our chicken dinner.

March 30 - Rise early for a trip to southern France and stop at the Palace of Versailles, home of the Sun King of France, Louie XIV. It really is a palace, the sculpted gardens surround the huge ornate stone chateau. Inside, huge symmetrical rooms house incredible paintings and tons of gold leaf.

Our guide, Claude, talks to a sleeping bus to the French Cathedral of Chartre. Here we are awed by the famous stain-glass windows and towering stonework. We then board the bus for Angiers again and are soon lulled to sleep by our nonstop talking guide. Luckily, we wake up in time for the nights chicken dinner. After this, we see the massive castle of Angiers, some pretty formidable stone work.

March 31 - The day is spent touring the chateaus of the Loire River Valley. The country here is really green, and the buildings are still stone. We led off with the Chateau Chaunso. Now privately owned it is a perfect example of old French architecture. It is surrounded by the typical gardens and moat. Inside, rich tapestries, furniture, and paintings are all explained to us by Claude.

From here, we go to the Chateau Chambourg whose famous spiral staircase was designed by Leonardo da Vinci. It is said that two people starting at opposite ends of the stairway cannot meet, and sure enough, we didn't.

On the way back to Angiers we stopped at the Vouvray Vineyards. After a tour through the caves we took advantage of the lack of a legal drinking age, and were well stocked with champagne upon leaving.

April 1 - The next morning we were back on the buses where once again we caught up on sleep courtesy of Claude's monologue. The houses slowly changed in design as we traveled north. Black slate replaced red tile as roofing material and the stone was darker.

... tour of France

Our first stop was Mont St. Michel, a medieval fortress town surrounding a huge cathedral. The town had originally been built on an island, but now a dike has been built to accommodate a road and the tide only surrounds it twice a year. Narrow cobblestone streets run by yet more stone buildings. According to Chad DeYoung it looked like a "stone Mackinac Island." The chapel was built high on a hill among the houses and stores, and although huge it had no fancy stain-glass. Instead, the soaring vaulted rooms were used first as a monastery and then, during the French Revolution, a prison. A huge hamster wheel, powered by men, was attached to a rope in order to bring up supplies. On top is a gold statue of the Archangel Michael.

From here it was on to Dinard, a small town located on the English Channel. The hotel we stayed in, Hotel de le Bains, was as old as the town, and not everything worked right, as three students found out while trapped in the elevator.

April 2 - The tour's first stop was the Normandy Beaches and the adjoining American cemetery. The impossibility of the D-Day invasion stretched before us, miles of beaches and overgrown bunkered cliffs looked almost impossible to conquer. Quieted by the hundreds of white crosses, we headed back toward Gay Paree.

April 3 - We started the day by busing to Notre Dame Cathedral. It topped most of the architecture we'd seen so far. Inside, deep voices sang in Latin and the stone columns and high ceilings were lit only by candles and flashbulbs. Lucky for us, Mrs. Wendt lit a candle for our safe return home. It worked. The second half of the day was free and we saw such things as the Eiffel Tower, the Paris Opera House, Sacre-Cover, the Champs Elysees, Napoleon's tomb, the Louvre, the Tuilerie Gardens, and a few of us were interviewed by CBS news on our views of France.

That night we ate in the Pink Flamingo Diner, conveniently located near our hotel. We were also treated to a cab ride through Paris. No speed limits or pavement markings made for a wild ride.

April 4 - Free day with a midnight cruise on the Seine River and poultry for dinner.

April 5 - Started home by bus to the airport several hours early, by 747 to Toronto, by propeller plane to Sault, by van to Charlevoix and finally...

April 6 - We were home having survived nine days on bread, water, chicken and Vivarin.

Weathervane will introduce new Michigan wine

Stafford Smith is welcoming Spring, Friday, April 21, with a celebration of his three specially labeled Stafford's wines, at three of his northern Michigan restaurants – The Pier in Harbor Springs, One Water Street in Boyne City and The Weathervane in Charlevoix.

Billed as an event to introduce the three Michigan wines labeled under Stafford's name and to introduce the new summer menus in each restaurant, Stafford is inviting the public to a celebration of the new wines and an introduction to summer menu Friday, from 5 to 6 p.m. at each restaurant, followed by an evening of dinner specials complimented with the three wines.

The chefs at The Weathervane, The Pier and One Water Street have created special entrees to accompany each wine.

Ron Benson, Stafford's Beverage Service Director, explained, "We have been sampling a variety of Michigan wines, seeking wines which complement our cuisine. We feel Michigan wines are really coming along."

The three wines a Johannisberg Riesling, a Vignoles and a "Blush," a white wine made with red grapes, were chosen by Benson and the chefs.

Stafford's Michigan Johannisberg Riesling comes from Chateau Grand Traverse on the Old Mission Peninsula of Grand Traverse Bay, where an unique "microclimate" produces a wine with the delicate natural sweetness of German Rieslings, but without the heaviness of its European counterpart.

The Vignoles, a Premium White wine, comes from the small white grapes of the Seven Lakes Vineyard in Oakland County. The Vignoles is a dry light wine, with a delicate, but not heavy body, and a refreshing bouquet.

The harbor Blush, a white wine made of red grapes, is a light fruity wine reminiscent of a white Zinfandel.

At the Weathervane, a "Seafood Broil" of salmon, swordfish and halibut is recommended with the Vignoles. Sauteed whitefish with wild mushrooms, capers and leeks has been selected to accompany the Riesling, and broiled spring lamb kebabs are recommended with the Blush.

Math students to match wits

A dozen of the middle school's finest math students will be in Traverse City this Saturday competing in a math competition sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Charlevoix will send four students from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades to compete in a field of 200 students from schools across Northern Michigan.

In the morning, the students will spend about an hour taking a math test. The sixth grade test will have 60 questions, the seventh grade test 70 questions and the eighth grade test 80 questions.

Scores will be computed and there will be an awards ceremony in the afternoon. The top 25 students from each grade at the Traverse City competition will advance to the state competition at Mount Pleasant later this spring.

Charlevoix students competing Saturday will be - Sixth grade: Callie Siwarga, Bryan Liotta, Daniel Diehl, Jason Hughes.

Seventh grade: Jesse Beatty, Bert Elliott, Dan Jackson, Stephanie Boss.

Eighth grade: Megan Friedly, Nancy Dammann; Mindy Noirot, Matt Smith.

Middle school math teachers Tori Fisher and Kay Fiedorek have been working with the students to prepare them for the competition. Fiedorek said the students have been putting in extra hours after school in preparation for the event.

Petunias to be hand-weeded

Rather than using a weed blanket as was done last summer, this coming summer Charlevoix's petunias will be weeded the old fashioned way; cultivation by hand and perspiration of the brow.

According to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president Bruce MacArthur the problem with the weed blanket is that it wasn't allowing enough water to soak into the petunia beds.

The weed blanket is a dark, meshed substance. Petunias grow through holes in the blanket while weeds can't grow through the mesh.

For most gardens or flower beds, the blanket would probably work fine, but the petunia beds next to the streets have some special needs.

The mesh weed blanket allows some water to seep through, but the petunia beds next to the street need more water than an average flower bed.

During the warm months of summer, the pavement of the street becomes very hot in the sun. When cars drive by, this heat is pushed onto the petunia beds. Therefore, the petunias need a lot of water. It's not the greenhouse effect. It's more the petunia dilemma.

Charlevoix has the technology to handle the petunias' water demand. The petunia truck can squirt as much water as those little petunia petals desire.

However, the weed blanket wouldn't allow the water to be absorbed quickly enough.

Currently KCB is in the process of picking up the weed blanket. Some of the blanket material will be given to the county jail for their garden program. The rest will be available to the citizens of Charlevoix at no charge.

To replace the weed blankets, KCB has hired a projects manager to supervise weeding. KCB hopes to utilize programs such as the Youth Corps, jail work-release, workfare and court referrals along with regular volunteers to do the weeding.

Petunias will be planted May 25 this year. This is the eighth year for Charlevoix's petunia program, which has been recognized as one of the finest beautification efforts in Michigan. This year there will be six colors of petunias: purple, red, three shades of pink and white.

Jim Ehrcke holds up a section of the weed blanket which Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is removing from the petunia beds.

Baseball team opens season with double win

The Charlevoix High School baseball team whipped up on Burton Bendle to open their season last Friday winning both ends of a double header 12-0 and 7-1.

Mike Himebauch pitched five innings in the opening game to take the win for the Rayders. He was relieved for the final two innings by Dave Loder.

James Putman had three hits in the game, including a double. Shawn Putman doubled and singled, Pat Elliot had two hits, Chris Dobrowolski a double and Himebauch and Dan Terryberry singled for the Rayder's opening game hitting attack.

In the second game, which only went five innings, Shawn Putman picked up the pitching victory, striking out nine batters in the process.

Charlevoix only had four hits, all singles by Himebauch, Putman, James Corwin and Elliott.

This Thursday the Rayders play at Central Lake and this Saturday they will play in the Indian River Inland Lakes tournament.

In the girls meet, Charlevoix had 23 points while Traverse City had 109 and Benzie Central 22.

Arts group sells bags

Just in time for spring clean up, Charlevoix Performing Arts students are launching their spring fund-raiser — a door-to-door sale of two-ply 30 gallon leaf and garbage bags, Thursday, April 27.

The top grade garbage bags will be sold in boxes of 100 for $13 per box. The sale will begin at 6 p.m. Residents living outside the Charlevoix city limits may call Charlevoix High School to place orders before Thursday, April 27.

Profits from the garbage bag sale help underwrite the costs of the numerous competitions entered by the Performing Arts students.

The Performing Arts season begins with the state-wide debate competition, in which Charlevoix has consistantly qualified for the state championships. Drama competition follows. This year Charlevoix won the Michigan Class C Drama Championship and placed third among all size schools with "Pirates of Penzance." This spring 21 students qualified to continue to the Regional level in the speech contest known as Individual Events. Each of these events involves considerable expense, from transportation to the major costs of launching the play. Students and parents support these activities through varied fund raising. Donations to Charlevoix High School Performing Arts are tax deductible.

Nature trail to be built

A proposal to build an outdoor learning lab in the woods behind the elementary school is close to becoming a reality.

Plans are to construct an outdoor learning area in the woods behind the elementary school. The area would include paths, signs marking various types of plants and trees and an outdoor place to seat students for classes.

Members of the committee spearheading the project are Betty Hoffmann, Carol Elliot, Mary Ann Chew and Pat Carland. The Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation has contributed $1,000 toward the project.

Earlier this month, the proposal came before the school board which greeted it with enthusiasm.

Trails for the project will be put in later this spring. Volunteers will be rounded up to help clear areas for trails, put in edging, spread wood chips and place signs.

During the summer, a booklet will be prepared to list and illustrate the different species of trees and wildflowers in the outdoor learning area. A semicircle of benches will also be installed.

In the future, the help of the Garden Club will be solicited to return native species which have disappeared to the learning area.

Cayte Christensen (left) and Kristi Avery (right) will be representing Charlevoix at Girls State this summer. Nancy Wood of the American Legion Auxiliary is in between the students. The Auxiliary, in conjunction with Medusa Cement Plant, the Kiwanis Club, Charlevoix City Firemen, the Coast Guard wives and the noontime Lions Club have contributed funds to send Charlevoix students to Girls State.

Mrs. VanLoo moved to Petoskey in 1984 and for the past year was living with her son James in Petoskey.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church in Zephyrhills and also the Berkley Community Church in Berkley, Mich.

Survivors include: four sons, William VanLoo and Roxy A. VanLoo, both of Charlevoix, Wylie R. VanLoo of Warren and James F. VanLoo of Oden; 16 grandchildren; 25 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Kate Noble of Aberdeen, Scotland, Helen Forgie of Harrison and Anne McClintock of Troy.

In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by two sons, Adrian and Jack.

The family suggests memorials to the Michigan Heart Association. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where arrangements were made.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Church of the Nazarene

Last week we discussed the idea of radiant Christian living. Moses gave us the example in Exodus 34:29-35 when he came down from Mt. Sinai with the second set of Ten Commandments and a radiant face. Moses didn't have to give a big and powerful sermon or start doing all these wonderful Christian acts (though both shouldn't be neglected in radiant Christian living); when he came down off the mountain, the Israelites knew he was different. Because he was radiating the full glory of God, he didn't have to say anything or do anything – they just knew he was different! Thus we concluded by seeking to make a radical difference for Christ by radiating the full glory of God. It should be such a difference that we shouldn't have to say anything or do anything for people around to see us radiate the full glory of God – radiant Christian living.

I believe that God wants us all as Christians to radiate His glory. If we are claiming to be His through the redemptive power of His Son's death and resurrection, then in some fashion we need to be radiant in our Christian living. Now before we can begin this radiant Christian life, two items must be completed. First we must know the redemptive power of God in our lives by seeking forgiveness for our sins (John 3) and be completely sold out to God's will by asking God to cleanse us from all impurities and consecrating (commitment plus) our all to Him (Rom. 12:1-2). Secondly, we must have the desire to radiate His full glory.

Here are the main two ways that I believe will produce radiant Christian living as I found them in the preceding verses of Exodus 34:

1. Communion with a Holy God - In Exodus 34:28 where it says, "Moses was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights without eating bread or drinking water." (NIV), we find that true communion. Not only did Moses take quality time to communicate with God but he took a quantity amount of time with God. During Moses' "prayer time", he didn't come to talk but to listen. Though God may not speak audibly to 99 percent of us, He speaks through His word, Christ-like impressions upon our mind, and other Christians. Moses also showed sacrifice through his fasting. This communion is readily found when we sacrifice our "much needed" energies and our "limited" time to communicate with God, not just talking but listening.

2. Concentration on God's Holy Word – Why was Moses communing with God? "And he wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant - the Ten Commandments" (Esocus 34: 28b,NIV). The whole time he was up there I believe he concentrated on God's holy words. So it should be with us.

BUSINESS

SHOPTALK

JACQUIE MERTA

This past week I had the opportunity to attend the Sixth Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism which featured the theme, "Service to Match the Scenery." As I listened to the program speakers who approached service from various angles, I couldn't help but think that this theme of "service to equal scenery" applies to every kind of business in Michigan.

You might be in the business of construction, or selling cement around the world, or providing milk to the Michigan Milk Producers Association to have distributed throughout the state; each business has customers who expect quality and friendly service.

We all need to raise our consciousness to higher standards to achieve world class quality of service. It's the little things that count like having your name remembered and giving attention to the smallest details. A familiar example of this is the TV program, Cheers, where the opening song lyrics include "you want to go where everybody knows your name." Customers want to feel special. Every group, individual, or business deserves the same service.

Being friendly is also crucial to the success of a business. People visiting Disney World indicated in a survey that what they liked most was the Friendliness.

It wasn't that long ago that the consumer opted for self-service in order to save money. They started pumping their own gas and serving themselves food.

Today and in the future the emphasis will be on service. For example, people want to buy a video cassette recorder from a person who can explain how it works and from a business that can repair it. Today's customer demands quality and that also means quality of service.

You either work in the private or public sector. Whether your salary is made possible because taxes have been collected for your services, or because of free enterprise, remember that each and everyone of us serves others. Recall and practice the Golden Rule and you shall benefit.

Realtors pass ethics course

Two members of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors recently completed an intensive, one-day training porgram on ethics. The program concentrated on the policies and procedures related to enforcement of the National Association of Realtors Code of Ethics.

Area realtors completing the program were Stephen Andreae, Coldwell Banker-Schmidt Realty of Charlevoix and Robert Winters, Century 21 Kowalski of Boyne City.

Topics covered in the program included procedures for handling grievances, mediation, arbitration and the conduct of ethics hearing.

The program was sponsored by the Michigan Association of Realtors and conducted by Michigan realtors certified by the National Association of Realtors.

Charlevoix parents will receive health survey

Parents of Charlevoix High School students will be receiving a health survey this week from the District 3 Health Department. The survey pertains to the health needs of area adolescents.

The parental survey is the second step of a three step survey process.

Earlier this spring, Charlevoix high school students were among 1,500 area adolescents who completed a similar survey. After parents are surveyed, area community service agencies which deal with adolescent health care problems will be surveyed.

Information from the three surveys will be compiled this summer. An adolescent task force will review the information next fall and make recommendations as to how health services for area adolescents can be improved.

Carol Paxton, director of personal health services for District 3, is coordinating the project and working with the task force.

She said the overall goal of the surveys and task force is to make sure area agencies are coordinating their efforts and directing them toward the needs which people feel should be addressed.

Task force meetings are open to the public. The next one will be April 21, but as of press time a location hadn't been decided. For further information, contact Paxton at 547-6523.

City alters Ferry grant

Three-fourths of a loaf would be ideal, but half a loaf is better than nothing at all.

City councilmen voted to revise a grant application for Ferry Beach renovations so that it will ask the state for 50 percent rather than 75 percent funding.

City manager Mike Wiesner and mayor Gary Probert explained that the city stands a better chance of getting a 50 percent funding request approved. In past years, the city has asked for 75 percent funding and been turned down.

The Ferry Beach project carries an estimated price tag of $411,000. Rather than asking for $308,000 from the state, the city will ask for $206,000.

The motion to change the grant request passed 5-0 with councilman Bill Haggard absent.

City considers raising permit fees

Charlevoix's city council moved a step closer Monday evening to dramatically increasing city zoning ordinance fees.

The fee increases affect development plan reviews, rezonings, lot splits, zoning permits, variance requests, special use permits, sign permits and sign violations.

Currently, the city charges $75 for all of the items listed above with the exception of zoning permits, sign permits and sign violations. Zoning permits presently cost $10, sign permits $1 and sign violations cost $25.

Under the proposed fee schedule which city planner Gerry Harsch explained at Monday evening's council work session, fees would be raised to the following levels:

Development plan reviews - $275.
Rezoning - $325.
Lot splits - $75.
Zoning permits - $25.
Variance requests - $225.
Special use permits - $250.
Sign permits - $25.
Sign violations - $25.

Earlier this year, councilmen asked the planning department to review the fee structure because the fees weren't and currently aren't covering the city's cost of handling developer's zoning and planning requests.

As mayor Gary Probert put it Monday evening, "We're not out here to lose money."

Councilmen indicated the cost of the process should be borne by the person making the request rather than by all of the community's taxpayers.

Harsch explained that the requests listed require city expenditures including staff time, photocopying and publication. He said the higher proposed fees are more in line with what the actual costs to the city are and with what other Northern Michigan communities are charging.

Councilmen favored the higher fees and said they would also like to see contingincies stipulated so that if certain requests entail special costs such as extra staff time or attorney fees, the person requesting the review, variance or permit also be required to pay those costs.

In order to adopt the new fee scale, the council will have to ammend the city zoning ordinance. In order to do that, a public hearing must take place. That hearing is scheduled for May 15.

Council discusses parking changes for downtown district

City councilmen discussed changing parking requirements for downtown building projects and referred the matter to the planning commission during a Monday evening council work session.

City planner Gerry Harsch said the downtown parking question is something that's been kicking around for some time. He said there are several single story buildings on Bridge Street which could add a second story. If that happens, the demand for downtown parking, which is already heavy in the summer, could increase.

Harsch said that if the one story buildings on Bridge Street were to add a second story, there could be a demand for 158 more downtown parking spaces.

Currently, the city requires building owners to provide additional parking spaces when they add floor space or renovate downtown buildings.

That being the case, councilmen Ken Whitley asked why the council is looking at changing the ordinance.

Mayor Gary Probert responded that there has been a problem with people renting or trading for parking spaces with other people downtown.

That causes problems because people frequenting a business don't use a parking space two blocks away that the business has rented, they use whatever parking space is open and close to the business.

Whitley said if that's a problem, then why not just close that loophole in the process.

Harsch spoke of not only closing that loophole, but also

New probate judge catching up and settling in

by PEG OIILE

Probate Judge Fred Mulhauser, who took office late last year, says the transition has been smooth: "I am fortunate in having two good staffs. They have been helpful in keeping things going."

Mulhauser succeeded the late John Murphy, who served as Probate Judge for 36 years. He took office with a sizeable backlog of cases awaiting attention, but by "whittling away," he reports the backlog is organized but not yet up to date. Already the court calendar is scheduled into early September.

Mulhauser is beginning his judgeship at a time when significant changes in handling probate and juvenile court cases are taking place. The recent "Coleman legislation" has, in fact, overhauled the whole juvenile court system, according to Mulahuser, and will result in doubling the court time used for case reviews. Review was formerly required every six months; now that must be done every 90 days.

There are also changes in probate court procedures, Maulhauser explained. Guardianships must be reviewed more frequently than they once were. The court has to be convinced a person needs a guardian–the better to preserve his self reliance.

The probate court focuses on human needs and lives, serving persons for longer periods of time than other courts. District and circuit courts usually handle a case, resolve it, and that is the end. In probate court, cases, such as those of neglect and abuse, often go on for years. And sometimes, as in cases of developmentally disabled children, they can go on for a lifetime. But this longevity does not mean a leisurely approach. Hearings for actions such as mental commitment and juvenile abuse must be held immediately, with the resultant strain of quickly preparing cases and getting juries together.

Recalling the long financial struggle between the late Probate Judge and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, we asked Mulhauser if his court was operating within its budget. He replied that it was, but it is not easy. "It's a challenge because we can't control our business. We can only predict based on historical data," Mulhauser explained.

Ahead-lines

It'll be a big time Saturday night

It's spring hoe down time and bound to be a good time Saturday evening up to the American Legion Hall.

The Barnard Grange and the American Legion are sponsoring a dance at the Legion Hall from 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, April 29.

Jasper and his Tag-alongs will provide the music so there'll be some fiddlin', stompin', and square dancing.

It ain't absolutely necessary for a person to know how to square dance in order to go to the dance Saturday evening. There will also be food served at the event, so those who don't know how to dance can keep occupled by eating. You'll find that most everybody at a Grange function knows how to eat.

Truth be known, a series of excuses designed to thwart some of the more peculiar aspects of human nature are behind Saturday's festivities. It works like this:

For some strange reason, your average human being won't just automatically of his own accord get out of the house every once in a while and go out and have a good time. A human being's not satisfied unless he's got an excuse, and a reasonable excuse, to get him or her off dead center and into action. Having a dance like this provides just such an excuse.

And sometimes even the excuse that gets a person out to have a good time isn't enough. When asked why they're going to something like a dance, silly human pride prevents a lot of people from giving a straight forward answer like, "Just to have a good time and swap stories with folks." No sir, an answer like that won't do for a lot of people. When someone asks them why they're going to an event, they've got to have an answer that sounds more dignified and important, something like, "Well it's for a good cause."

So Saturday night's dance has got to be for a good cause. There's going to be an admission fee of $5 per person. All proceeds from the dance will be donated to the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Building Fund.

1 MONDAY

Tennis: Charlevoix at Elk Rapids, 4 p.m.

Track: Traverse City Relays, 4 p.m.

Nutritional meals for senior citizens will be served at the VFW, 12:30 p.m.

Narcotics Anonymous meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, 8 p.m.

Alcoholics Anonymous meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, noon.

Alateen meets at Alano Club, 104 Mason, 7 p.m.

...new probate judge

"The cost of care is expensive. To treat kids with severe mental disorders runs as much as $400 a day. Detention facilities cost anywhere from $100 to $250 a day, and foster care runs from $15 to $40 a day. While the state provides some of this money, much of the burden falls on the county. Right now we are trying to get some of the money back from the parents".

Mulhauser recalled that once there were only two courts in the system–district and probate–to which was later added circuit court. In the restructuring, certain adult cases were turned over to circuit court and juvenile cases were turned over to probate court. "Probate court is a social court. It is a place for people, young and old, who can't get along with other people with whom they have to live," is the way Mulhauser described his court.

He added that probate court, like all courts, needs community cooperation. "The problems of juvenile crime and child abuse would be better served if they could all be handled locally. We are making some progress in drug problems, but there are many others.

"We have to place local efforts where people begin to get into trouble. We have to spend more time and money in prevention of first offenses. Our diversionary worker and vcolunteer programs are a big help, but, as in most programs, we need more volunteers".

Mulhauser continued, "We also need more local foster care parents to keep kids in the same neighborhoods and the same schools so they will be less disrupted."

He described the two recently organized foster care detention homes under his court's jurisdiction–one for Charlevoix County and one for Emmet County. "They are for kids too difficult for normal foster parents to handle", he explained. The idea is to get kids in line, to give them responsibilities and jobs to do, and to counsel them intensively. Their privileges and social activities are restricted. They could be in the detention home for anywhere from three days to 30 days. They might be sent there for the "spring break" week. It is an alternative to going to jail. Usually there are only four to six kids in a home at one time".

When asked what he believed is causing the increase in juvenile crime, Mulhauser said he thought pornography and relaxation of family values are responsible for increases in sexual abuse, while juvenile crime activity in general is caused by the same relaxation of respect for family values and personal property, fueled by drugs and alcohol. Homes where kids do not receive adequate supervision are also to blame, according to the judge.

Mulhauser is assisted in his Charlevoix County office by Juvenile Officer Brad Campbell, Probate Register Debra Campbell, Juvenile Register Cyndie Vandergriff, In-Home Care Worker Linda Mansfield, Diversionary Worker Mary Hickman, and Financial Officer Beverly Barret

Those three Charlevoix Middle School woodworking students took first place honors at the past weekend's State Industrial Arts Fair. The students are (from left) Ernest Antoine, Matt Smith and Tony Habel. Smith's walnut table was judged the best middle school woodworking project in Michigan.

A group of fourth grade students toured the Big Rock nuclear power plant last week. Their guide for the tour was Charlie MacInnis.

Woodworkers judged best in state

Charlevoix Middle School students brought home three first place awards from the State Industrial Arts Fair including an award for the best middle school woodworking project in the state.

The arts fair took place this past weekend at the Grand Traverse Resort. To qualify for the state fair, projects had to finish in top of four of their category in regional competition.

Charlevoix eighth grader Matt Smith entered a sculptured walnut wood table which not only took first place in its category, but also finished first in the middle school woodworking division.

Other Charlevoix middle school students taking first place were Ernest Antoine with a zebra wood and wenge pendulum clock and Tony Habel with a lathe-turned candle lamp composed of seven different woods of varying colors.

J.B. Withers took a second place with a Honduras mahogoney dining table.

Ben Whitley placed second with a carved steerhead.

Bill Dreyer took fourth place with a red oak and bubinga gun cabinet. Ed Johnson also placed fourth with a wrought-iron stove tool.

Chris Pease placed seventh with a walnut and maple candle holder.

Brad DeGrow finished eighth with a mahogony and maple candle holder.

Middle school students receiving honorable mention were: DeGrow with a white oak teardrop clock and a machined hammer; Ron Zellers with a wall clock; John Parish with a mahogoney candle holder.

Four high school woodworking students also did well in state competition.

Willie Habel placed tenth with a dining room table.

Julie Crandall and Leon Theil each received honorable mention for footstools.

Four drafting students received honorable mention at the state competition. Ed McLenon entered a mechanical drawing while Greg Lewis, Rachelle Vogel and Leon Theil entered architectural drawings.

Performers advance to state

Charlevoix speech students took top honors in eight categories in Regional Competition this weekend, qualifying 19 students to compete at the Michigan State Forensics Championships in Ann Arbor May 5 and 6.

In "Multiple" Competition Charlevoix teams took first and second place honors with: "Real Men Never Die," a performance based on several Vietnam War pieces including "Platoon," and "Full Metal Jacket," acted by Jason Wiser, Jon Terry, Jake Smith, B.J. VanLoo, David Salmonson and Bob Sell, (1st place); and "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats," based on a poem by T.S. Eliot, performed by Marci Wynkoop, Kari Hartnett, Darsi Spencley, Staci Ketchum, Lori Maue, and Chris Felton, (2nd place).

Freshman David Hunter placed 1st in Story Telling (9th and 10th grade), followed by freshman Becky Bellaires. In Open Story Telling, Tammy Felton took 2nd for Charlevoix, with Tina McLenon 4th. Chrissy Dillon took a 5th in Dramatic Interpretation and is an "alternate" for the state finals. In Poetry, Shelly Swegles took 3rd place, also qualifying for state; and in Prose F.L. Dammann placed 1st.

Society's latest abuse problem

Oh no. Another evil and insidious abuse problem threatening the very fabric of our society.

I cringed last week when a person on crutches told me that her doctor has forbidden her from playing basketball, biking or running anymore because she is a "knee abuser."

That's right, just as America is all in a sweat struggling to extinquish the raging inferno of substance abuse, the medical community has thrown another log on the fire - "knee abuse."

And make no mistake about it, this "knee abuse" is an ugly thing.

In many ways, it's much like other abuse problems. Its causes are hard to pinpoint and eliminate. Young people are susceptible. Once a person becomes a knee abuser, recovery is a lifelong process. And of course there ethical and moral questions society will have to face in dealing with the knee abuse problem.

Knee abuse is related to excercise and although certain people may be genetically predisposed to become knee abusers, socialization and peer pressure are more important factors.

Most knee abusers are enticed into knee use as adolescents. You know how kids are, they figure what the heck, all their friends are doing it.

Knee abusers usually begin with recreational knee use; a little jogging, maybe a halfcourt game of basketball. Their first few experiences with knee use may be pleasant. After a little excercise the knee user may even feel good.

But the problem with recreational knee use is that it almost always leads to the hard stuff. A little jogging becomes a four-mile run. A halfcourt game of basketball between friends becomes a fullcourt, five-on-five hoops war.

Young knee abusers are often evasive and it's not unusual for parents to be completely unaware that the problem exists. Tell-tale signs parents should look for in a child who may be a knee abuser are: changes in attire such as a once well-dressed young person now wearing sweat pants and a T shirt; knee abuser paraphrenalia such as basketballs, running shoes or tennis raquets; words from the language of the knee abuser subculture, words like ligaments, cartilage and arthriscopic.

A particularly frightening development in knee abuse is that it holds the potential to affect children even younger than those in high school or junior high. There have been documented cases of children as young as six years old playing tag on school playgrounds.

Society is going to have to confront a number of difficult moral and ethical questions in dealing with knee abuse. For example, should there be mandatory knee testing in the work place?

Proponents of knee testing argue that knee abusers could endanger their coworkers and the public. As one pro knee tester said, "Say you were a furniture mover and were the lower of two guys moving a big piano up some steep stairs. How would you feel if the guy on the other end of the piano had a trick knee?"

Opponents of knee testing claim that knees are a very private and personal thing and that mandatory knee testing is an invasion of privacy.

Treating knee abuse can be very tricky and it's not uncommon for knee abusers to suffer relapses. Many people argue that knee abuse is a disease which can be treated, but never cured.

Currently there are a few knee abuser support groups such as Knee Ab Rehab. At these meetings, knee abusers face up to their problem. Knee Ab Rehab members realize that while their knee abuse problem may be in remission, just one game of tennis could put them back on the path leading to the operating table.

Knee abuse affects people from all walks, and runs, of society. Many famous athletes and movie stars are also knee abusers. Perhaps these people will be able to get a former president who also had a knee problem to lend his name to the cause. Then knee abusers could check themselves into the Gerald Ford Clinic.

CLOCKWISE

The missing link

I am wrestling with a deep mystery.

How could the workers at a remote toy factory in far-off New Jersey know precisely which plastic scooter I would buy at a discount store in Petoskey, Mich., and fail to include one VITAL PART without which the scooter is inoperable?

If this only happened once, or even once in a great while, I could chuckle about it.

But it happens every time I buy anything that requires the least amount of at-home assembly.

A key part is always missing and I work myself in a frenzy tearing through bags of nuts, bolts, clips and screws and ripping apart mountains of packing materials looking for the lost component, which is usually no bigger than a dime.

My first clue should be the words "Minor Assembly Required" on the box. What the manufacturer really means is "Unless You Have a Degree in Mechanical Engineering, This Product Is Not for You."

But I have a hard time understanding such subtle messages and allow myself to be put upon time after time by unscrupulous manufacturers who coin money by selling knocked-down merchandise rather than products that are ready-to-use off the shelf.

Then, to further complicate my life, the company hires someone to stand along the assembly line to make sure one VITAL PART is missing from the box I am going to buy. I don't know how they know, but they always do.

It's positively uncanny.

WHEN I BOUGHT my plastic scooter last week I should have anticipated trouble. I was buying it for a little boy freshly arrived in the United States from Japan and I wanted to give him something American-made, not a product of the teeming Orient.

If you shop at all nowadays, you know how hard it is to find anything with a "Made in U.S.A" label.

That is why I was delighted when my eye fell on a hard plastic scooter for ages 2-4, manufactured in New Jersey, a state as American as pizza pie and fortune cookies.

After making my purchase, I hurried home to Charlevoix, opened the box and arranged the colorful components on the dining room table. I also found a sealed plastic bag containing two axles, a swivel to secure the handlebars and five strange metal objects called "capnuts" to fasten the wheels to the axles.

Thanks to the owner's manual which came with the scooter, I figured out where everything went. But one part — one VITAL PART — was missing. The part was supposed to keep the handlebars from falling off, but it was nowhere to be found.

Panic set in. My little friend was due to arrive the next day and I wanted to have the scooter waiting for him without making another trip to Petoskey.

So I raced down to Staley's Hardware and described what I thought the piece looked like. Of course the store had a suitable replacement part in stock and you'd never know it wasn't original equipment just by looking at it. It cost 32 cents, but it saved the day.

I intended to write a nasty letter to the manufacturer to let him know what I think about his stupid company, his stupid employees and his stupid mother. But I'm not going to bother. I have been short-changed so often by the purveyors of knocked-down toys, models and other do-it-yourself paraphernalia that it is becoming routine.

MY QUESTION IS: How do they know which item I am going to buy and manage to remove one VITAL PART from the package?

If they don't, is it possible that American manufacturers are treating us all alike, coming up with a short-count here and a short-count there just to see if we are paying attention?

If so, how come they are still in business?

And why isn't our trade deficit worse than it already is?

Goodness knows, life is frustrating enough without having to put up with pranksters in the marketplace.

Letters to the Editor:

O.M. teams fared well

To the Editor:

As you may have read in the Petoskey News-Review, seven Odyssey of the Mind teams from the Charlevoix schools participated in the East Jordan Region VII OM Competition, February 25, 1989. All the team placed either first, second, third or fourth. One of our middle school students, Lisa Borths, received the very special Renetra Fusea Award for creative portrayal and costuming of Medusa in her team's skit. Congratulations to each of the 43 students!

Last weekend, April 15, 3 elementary teams, 1 middle school team and the high school team participated in State OM Finals in Mount Pleasant.

These team members and the 10 parent coaches wish to thank those who Supported their trip to State Competition. Oleson's Food Store and the Coca-Cola Beverage Company donated refreshments for the teams. The Educational Endowment Fund, the Charlevoix Student Activity Fund and the Charlevoix Elementary Parent Teachers Association deserve a big thank you for their financial support of the trip.

In addition, the teams appreciate help given by Mr. VanWieren, the board of Education, building principals and teachers.

The biggest thank you must go to the volunteer parent coaches. This special group of fourteen have made the Odyssey of the Mind Program especially successful in achieving its goal of teaching creative problem solving skills to Charlevoix OM team members.

Peg's impressions of a southern vacation

by PEG OHLE

A vacation, according to Webster, is "a period spent away from home or business in travel or recreation".

The definition does not imply that the time must be spent at the seashore, under sunny skies, or in a state of do-nothingness. So our six weeks away from home and business WAS a vacation, and a thoroughly enjoyable one at that.

Bill and I were headquartered in Evanston, Illinois, Chicago's adjoining suburb to the north, from where we fanned out over three counties, seeking out information for genealogical research, visiting old friends and relatives, and recalling events of the past.

Much was the same as it has been for years, but much has changed. The purple and white crocuses onthe Campus of Northwestern university were in full bloom, as they have been every spring for years, even before we trod the campus walks. The large Evanston Victorian homes are still carefully tended, although many have been purchased by the University to allow for future campus expansion. The elevated transit trains still whiz people to Chicago's loop in 28 minutes (although now it costs $1), and those who prefer to be their own chauffeurs crowd the lanes of Sheridan Road morning and night.

While the residential areas of the near-in northern suburbs have not changed materially, the growth of what we remember as sleepy country towns has been phenomenal. We stood at the edge of the property my great-great grandfather bought from the federal government in 1845 for $1.25 an acre and surveyed the million-dollar estate homes now being built there. The area is at least 35 miles from downtown Chicago, where most of the homeowners work, and several miles from any public transportation. The exploding population is forcing those who can afford it, to move farther and farther out into the country.

Great-great grandfather William Adams brought his wife and four children to this prairieland of Barrington Township, Illinois in 1942 from Cortland County, New York. There is no record of how they traveled or why they picked that particular spot to start new lives. Those of us interested in family history would have to do less "digging" if even a few lines of family history were written and preserved each year.

While we spent a lot of time in county offices, libraries, cemeteries, and archives searching out records, wa did many other things on our vacation.

We attended a performance of the new musical "Les Miserables" in the beautiful refurbished Auditorium Theater in Chicago. This tale of the poor people of Paris and the French Revolution is thoughtfully produced, with imaginative scenery and catchy, interpretive music. The theater was packed, proving there is still room for quality productions.

For lighter entertainment, we traveled to Milwaukee to take in some of the competition of the World Curling Championships, in which the United States, Canada, and nine European countries participated. Canada won in both the men's and women's divisions. This game is still not widely known in the United States, but in many places, especially Canada, it is very popular.

As regular listeners to the MacNeil-Lehr News Hour on public radio, we were glad to have a chance to hear Robin MacNeil speak in Evanston. He has written a new book, "Woodstruck", about the English language and the words that comprise it. It is fun reading, and if Marybeth has not yet gotten it for the library, ask her to do so.

We visited the Evanston Historical Society , which is housed in the beautiful lakefront home of the late Charles Gates Dawes, vice president of the United States under Calvin Coolidge. This 28-room brick structure was built in 1894 and contains most of the Dawes furniture, rugs, and accessories. It is really a museum portraying the Patrician life of a by-gone day.

The Society hostess the day we were there was a Mrs. Cook (sorry we didn't get her first name), who spends summer vacations on "Breezy Point" in Ironton. It was fun to talk with a stranger who had attended the Horton Bay Fourth of July parade last year.

We attended a book auction at a local book store and watched book collectors and dealers bid on 270 volumes with titles such as "The Life of Erasmus", William Faulkner's "Mosquitoes", and Audubon's "Western Journal". They sold for $75, $35, and $85 respectively. There seemed to be something for everyone.

Another attraction was the Chicago Botanic Garden, which is located on a huge tract of land near Glencoe. It is owned by the Forest Preserve District of Cook County and managed by the private-member Chicago Horticultural Society. It is made up of several different specialized gardens, each on a small island. It is not only a delight to see, even on a chilly spring day, but it provides a setting for all kinds of classes in horticulture.

It is also an example of what can be done when a public and a private body decide to work together.

Lake levels remain reasonable

By the end of March 1989, the water levels of all the Great Lakes had begun their normal spring rise. Preliminary indicators show that for March, precipitation was near normal on the Lake Superior basin, somewhat above normal on the Lakes Michigan-Huron basin and slightly below normal on the Lakes Erie and Ontario basins.

The Great Lakes forecast, published in the Monthly Bulletin of Lake Levels for the Great Lakes, shows that Lakes Superior and Michigan-Huron are expected to be near their long-term average levels during the next six months. Lakes St. Clair and Erie should remain above their long-term average levels during the same period. Lake Ontario, which is currently about one foot below its long-term average level, is expected to rise above its average in May. This rapid rise in Lake Ontario levels is being facilitated by actions being taken, by the International St. Lawrence River Board of Control, to reduce the outflow from Lake Ontario below that prescribed by the regulation plan (Plan 1958-D).

Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of March were at elevation 577.92 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 13 inches above Chart Datum. This was about 9 inches below what it was a year ago, but 2 inches above one month ago. The March monthly mean level of 577.77 feet was about 2 inches below the long-term average for March. The lakes, however, remained about 29 inches above their all-time low March monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1964. The forecast shows that at the end of April, the level of Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about 5 inches above what it was at the end of March. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July. The water level in September 1989, is expected to be about 2 inches above the long-term average for that month.

Community concert members sought

For over 40 years, the Community Concert Association has provided quality performing arts programs for our community. Not only does the association bring enjoyment to its patrons, it also exposes our young people to professional artists. Each season, a cross-section of talent is selected so that a variety of programs will be experienced.

The advanced sales for memberships to the 89-90 season is underway. Thirty-four volunteers will be seeking renewals from former members and soliciting new members. Individuals purchasing memberships for the first time prior to April 28, will be given a complimentary ticket to enjoy Linda Maxey, marimbist, on Friday, April 28, the last Community Concert of the 88-89 season.

The new season opens with the Neal Ramsay Duo on Thursday, October 12. Saxaphonist, Neal Ramsay has appeared on National Public Radios "All Things Considered," "A Prairie Home Companion" and on CBS's "Sunday Morning." Ann Newton, pianist, is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the Julliard School of Music.

The New Christy Minstrels will perform on Tuesday, March 13, 1990. Given rebirth in 1961, the original Christy Minstrels date back to 1842 when Edwin "Pops" Christy brought together a folk group that turned into the most popular minstrel variety show of the day. Since 1961, they have helped develop such stars as Kenny Rogers, Kim Carnes and John Denver.

Duo harpists, John Escosa and Michael Rado will perform the season's final concert on Wednesday, April 25, 1990. Mr. Escosa has toured extensively. He is an author of harp technique and has written music for theater and scores for ballet. He has given master classes and workshops at major universities. Michael Rado has performed with the Boston Opera Theatre, the Boston Concert Opera and has appeared on state with Johnny Mathis, Melissa Manchester and Tony Bennett.

Those holding the Patron Membership will be invited to attend the afterglow receptions for the performing artists following the concerts.

Memberships are available at the McCune Community Arts Center, 347-4337. Patron $35; Adult $20; Student $10 and Family $48.

Julia Leedy Baer, Barbara Gallagher, Jean Warner and Edith Gilbert are selling memberships in the Charlevoix area.

This sixth grade team finished eighth in the state Future Problem Solvers competition in Ann Arbor this past weekend. The team was only a few points away from finishing in the top handful of teams. Team members are (from left) Mark Schairbaum, Ryan Smith, coach Tom Sothard, Chris LeButt and Paul Henne.

Although they finished in the lower part of the state finals Future Problem Solvers competition, this group of fifth graders will be back in the intermediate division again next year and will be a year smarter and more experienced. Team members are (from left) Casey Crain, Mark Boss, coach Carol Elliott, Brett VanderHeide and Seth Kilandor.

Future adults address future problems

A team of four Charlevoix sixth graders placed eighth among 58 intermediate division squads at the Future Problem Solvers state finals at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor this past weekend.

Members of the team were Chris LeButt, Paul Henne, Ryan Smith and Mark Schairbaum. They were coached by middle school librarian Tom Sothard.

Approximately 600 teams began the year in the intermediate division. The field was pared to 58 for state competition.

Along with Charlevoix's sixth grade team, a fifth grade team composed of Mark Boss, Brett VanderHeide, Seth Kilander and Casey Crain and coached by elementary teacher Carol Elliott also qualified. The fifth grade team finished in the lower echelon of the state finalists.

The Future Problems Solvers is for mental heavyweights. The groups research, discuss and formulate possible solutions to problems such as energy sources, young people and the law, nutrition and employment.

The program encourages the students to think analytically in addressing a problem.

At the competition, each squad discusses an issue, chooses 20 problems associated with that issue and then chooses one of those problems to attack.

The students compile a list of 20 possible solutions to deal with the problem. Then they establish a set of criteria to evaluate the solutions. Using the criteria, they select first the top 10 and then the best solution. The team then states why the solution chosen is the best way of addressing the problem.

Sothard said Charlevoix's team was in the first place after the state preliminary evaluation. He said that although the team finished eighth, they were just a tick away from finishing in the top two or three.

Band plays well

Fifteen Charlevoix Middle School band students participated in the Junior High Solo and Ensemble Festival in Gaylord Saturday, April 15. Twelve Charlevoix entrants received first division (I) ratings.

Instrumentalists who received superior ratings were: Jake Porath, flute solo; Annette Gardner, bassoon solo; Maria Seaman, alto saxophone solo; Dan Jackson, cornet solo; Russell Hand, trombone solo; Eliana Gebott, baritone solo; Mike Patrick, viola solo; Amy Spang and Annette Gardner, flute duet; Lina Doan and Jenna McElroy, clarinet duet; Sheila Siegwart and Jessica Oleksy, cornet duet; Russell Hand and Eliana Gebott, trombone-baritone duet.

Receiving second disision (II) ratings were: Janel Campbell, clarinet solo; Melissa Mosher and Amy Pfister, flute duet.

The students were judged by musicians recognized in the state for their instrumental expertise, and each student was given written comments on their performace. Piano accompaniments for the events were played by Steve Stargardt.

Math students among area's top calculators

A third of a dozen, which is four, middle school math students will be advancing to the state finals of the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathmatics competition in Mount Pleasant.

This past weekend, 12 Charlevoix students participated in the regional math competition in Traverse City with hundreds of other area students.

The top 25 area math students from each of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades advance to state competition.

Matt Smith was Charlevoix's top finisher, placing fifth in the eighth grade division. This is the third year Smith has qualified for the state competition.

Three of four Charlevoix seventh graders qualified for state. Jesse Beatty finished sixth, Bert Elliott tied for 19th and Dan Jackson tied for 24th. It is the second trip to state for Beatty and Jackson.

Math teachers Kay Fiedorek and Tori Fisher practiced with the students and accompanied them to the competition. Fiedorek said the teachers were very pleased with the students' performance.

Other students who competed were: Callie Siwarga, Bryan Liotta, Daniel Diehl, Jason Hughes, Stephanie Boss, Megan Friedly, Nancy Dammann and Mindy Noirot.

The state finals competition will take place May 20 at Central Michigan University. The Northern Michigan region included students from schools south to Cadillac and north to Mackinaw.

Falting-Koehn

St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix was the setting of the April 1 wedding of Vicki L. Falting and Mark A. Koehn. The Rev. James Mausolf performed the double ring rites before 300 wedding guests. The altar was decorated with Easter lilies and floral bouquets for the 2 p.m. service.

Parents of the bride are Art and Jane Falting of Charlevoix. The groom is the son of Bruce and Barbara Koehn of Huntington Woods.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a satin gown with a Queen Anne neckline, modified Elizabethan sleeves and a basque waistline trimmed with Venise lace. Chantilly lace ruffles created the chapel length train. The bride's veil of illusion and blusher was attached to a pearl headband. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers which included iris, yellow roses, daisies, gladioli and carnations.

Margaret Thomson, organist, played a program of traditional wedding music.

Beth Falting, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Maria Tierney and Lisa Hillis. The girls wore gowns with close fitting bodices, each with a white satin bow accenting the bustline, a dropped waist and tiered pouffed skirt in black. The girls wore elbow-length white gloves and each carried a bouquet of spring flowers, including iris, yellow roses, daisies, gladioli and carnations.

Michael Koehn, brother of the groom, was best man and groomsmen were Matthew Koehn, brother of the groom, and Eric Smitterburg.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, followed the ceremony at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Petoskey.

The parents of the groom hosted the rehearsal dinner at Nanny's of Charlevoix on March 31. The newlyweds are residing in San Diego, Calif.

The bride is a graduate of Russell Sage College in Troy, N.Y., and is a field consultant for Southland Corporation in San Diego. The groom is a sonar technician second class and is stationed aboard the USS David R. Ray, Long Beach, Calif.

Werner-LaRouche

Mary Ann Merrill Werner and Richard L. LaRouche will be married May 13 at the Norwood United Methodist Church.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Merrill of Alpena, and her fiance, who lives in Ellsworth, is the son of Mrs. Betty LaRouche of Charlevoix and the late Louis LaRouche.

Both are graduates of Central Michigan University. She is currently Alpena County treasurer, and he is owner of Michigan Mineral Abstracts. (Photography by Aartvark Studio)

Pool committee seeks design

The design committee, which is part of the Pool Steering Committee, will be interviewing architectural and engineering firms next week concerning proposals for a conceptual pool plan.

Pool Steering Committee members want to have a pool design by mid June in time for summer fund raising events.

A letter sent to design firms read; "Plans must be detailed enough to qualify for (a) brochure for fund raising, displays at high traffic areas, presentation to major donors, etc.

"Any suggestions you may have re(garding) fund raising, model preparation, available grants etc. would be appreciated."

The committee has contacted several pool design firms, but is willing to listen to proposals from any other interested firms. Other interested pool design firms should contact pool committee cochairman Dave Strawbridge at (616) 547-4148.

Stories must be told vocally

"Human Voices Talking to Human Hearts" will be the theme of a program of poetry, comedy and drama presented by the Jordan River Arts Council at 7 p.m. Friday, April 28, at East Jordan High School and Saturday, April 29, at Bellaire High School.

The presenters are Split Ivorie, a two-person team dedicated to promoting and preserving the oral tradition of reciting and storytelling.

Anne-Marie Oomen and Raymond Nargis both have entertained audiences at Elk Rapids' well-known Stone Circle, where recitations begin at sunset and continue into the night every summer Saturday.

Both have also acted and directed at Old Town Playhouse in Traverse City. Together they have written and published their first chapbook, "Moniker," and both have been published in literary magazines.

They bring to the stage the same excitement they have shared at performances, workshops and presentations at major conferences and writing workshops throughout the state.

Their performance is the fourth of five events scheduled by the arts council in two locations. Still to come is the Fitch Dance Troupe in East Jordan May 12 and Bellaire May 13.

All performances will begin at the high schools at 7 p.m.

Tickets for attendance to both of the last two series events cost $16.50 per family, $11 per couple and $8.25 per person. Equally low-priced single event tickets include special prices for families, seniors and students.

Tickets are available at the door and at chambers of commerce throughout Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

The programs are supported by the Michigan Council for the Arts and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council.

Two local paintings recognized

A watercolor painting by local artist Jan Glass will be included in the Farmington Hills corporate headquarters of the Michigan National Corporation.

The painting, called "On the Winds of March: Daffodils" is one of 233 works by 117 artists which will be exhibited by the company.

Michigan National Corporation established an art purchase program to display Michigan art by Michigan artists. A total of 1219 works by 297 Michigan painters, printmakers and photographers were considered for purchase and exhibit, but only the 233 were selected.

Another painting by Glass, entitled "Fractured Light" has been chosen for exhibit in the Lansing Art Gallery's annual Botanical Images show which is in progress through May 5. The painting is a watercolor of a Water Lilly.

Congress proposes $1 coin

Congressman Bob Davis has cosponsored legislation to provide for the minting of a new dollar coin that would be 90 percent copper and gold in color.

"Minting a new dollar coin would save taxpayers well over $100 million a year," Davis said, "Because coins generally remain in circulation for 20 years comparied to 18 months for dollar bills. The cost of replacing these worn-out bills is enormous." Currently half of all bills produced are one dollar bills. Coins cost only slightly more than a dollar bill to manufacture - three cents apiece compared to 2.6 cents for a bill.

"In today's economy, a dollar buys what a quarter did in the 1950's," Congressman Bob Davis said. "With increasing automation, and with the popularity of vending machines, the coin dollar is simply more convenient in many instances than paper dollars."

This legislation avoids the problems of the unsuccessful Susan B. Anthony dollar by requiring the coin to be distinctly gold in color and smooth around the edges. The confusion between the Susan B. Anthony dollar and the quarter was caused by the identical silver color and the fact that both coins had small ribs on the edges.

County transit making plans for annual week

In observance of National Transportation Week, May 15 to 20, the Charlevoix County Transit System is planning two events.

The first is an open house Thursday, May 18, to show off the new Transit Building on Brockway Street, behind the County Road Commission Building in Boyne City. The facility will be open to the public from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m., with an official ceremony at 11:30 a.m. Refreshments will be served throughout the day.

The second event is a poster contest for Charlevoix County students depicting transportation in Charlevoix County. One or several types of local transportation (buses, boats, planes, etc.) may be shown in the posters, which must not exceed 24 by 24 inches in size. They may be in any medium, on cardboard or construction paper.

The poster competition will be in three age groups: up through seven years, from eight through 11 years, and 12 through 14 years. Three savings bond prizes will be awarded in each age group: $100, $50, and $25.

Entries should be mailed or taken to the Charlevoix County Transit System, Brockway Street, Boyne City, by Wednesday, May 17. They will be hung in the Transit Building for judging by the public during the open house on May 18. First place winners will be used in the 1990 Transit System calendar. Name, age, school, and phone number of entrant should appear on each picture.

Further information is available from the Transit System, phone 582-6900.

US 131 Association monitors MDOT route selection

The Board of Directors of the U.S. 131 Area Development Association expressed their strong concern over the recently announced delay by the Michigan Department of Transportation in the holding of the final route selection meeting in Cadillac that had been scheduled to be held in Cadillac this spring. The announced delay may be for several months due to difficulties the MDOT is having with the company to whom they contracted for the Environmental Impact Study.

Talking to MDOT Director James Pitz, Transportation Planning Deputy Adams and members of the State Transportation Commission, board chairman Dick Goldfogle protested the delay in the strongest terms and stated that the association would take further action if this delay in any way affects the planned dates for construction of the south of Cadillac to north of Manton link in the U.S. 131 freeway. MDOT Director Pitz has given assurances that he will do everything possible to avoid construction delays.

In other business, the board learned:

- approval has been received to erect a new billboard facing motorists heading south from Mancelona.

- videotapes and radio cassettes are in the process of distribution to 64 cable television stations, 27 live television stations and 45 radio stations in northern Illinois and northern Indiana urging motorists to use U.S. 131 to travel in to and through western and northern Michigan.

- more West Michigan legislators in the Congress need to sign on to House Resolution 41, sponsored by Rep. Glen Anderson (D-CA), expressing the sense of the House that no federal gas tax be passed in order to reduce the federal budget deficit. This House Resolution replaces a similar one submitted by Anderson in the last Congress before the recent elections.

- the State Transportation Commission will be holding its April 26th regular monthly meeting in the new Eberhardt Center in Grand Rapids, rather than in Lansing and members were urged to attend.

Tennis team looking strong

By Tim Henne

In their second match of the year, Charlevoix's High School tennis team dominated Traverse City St. Francis this past Friday. Charlevoix won six of seven matches and outscored Traverse City 78-15.

Following the match, Charlevoix coach Erik Lundteigen was cautiously optomistic about his team's prospects this season.

"Our team looks pretty good, but we still have to improve in some areas," he said. "We have a big week coming up."

Next week Charlevoix has four meets.

Lundteigen said the team's goal this year is to win regionals and qualify for state finals.

Traverse City's Greg Miller provided his team's only victory last week, beating top Charlevoix singles player Ryan Holmes 6-1, 7-5. At the number two spot, Charlevoix's Tim Jervis won 6-1, 6-1. Dave Puhl won 6-3, 6-2 and Tim Holms' 6-0,6-0 shut out closed out singles play.

Charlevoix also dominated in doubles.

Dan Bickersteth and Charlie Witthoeft opened with a 6-0, 6-2 win. Webb Friedly and Scott Crain as well as Chad DeYoung and Bob Sell triumphed 6-0, 6-0 over their Traverse City counterparts.

Charlevoix's boys team finished with 117 points while St. Ignace totalled 72, Harbor Springs 39 and Boyne City 26.

In the girls meet, St. Ignace compiled 86 points, Charlevoix 77, Harbor Springs 46 and Boyne City 35.

Softball; too few runs, too few hits, too many errors

In a softball doubleheader against Gaylord this past Saturday Charlevoix's hitting wasnt' bad. Unfortunately, their pitching and defense more than made up for it.

Charlevoix got shellacked 16-2 and 33-8.

The first game actually wasn't as ugly as the final score indicated. Going into the fifth and final inning, Gaylord only had five runs. However Charlevoix gave up 11 runs in the final inning.

Tammy Holm was the losing pitcher in the first game. She struck out five while allowing eight hits and five walks. Heather Keller, Stacy Skeel and Andrea D'Angelo had hits for the Rayders.

The second game began in a valley and went downhill from there. Stacy Tilton opened at pitcher, but was relieved by Holm in the first inning as Gaylord was enroute to an eight-run inning. Tilton and Holm combined in the game to strike out four while allowing 16 walks and 17 hits.

Charlevoix had two hits in the second game, one by D'Angelo and one by Skeel.

Charlevoix played without their top pitcher; Darsi Spencley.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

As this is being written, there are families in Traverse City and in Central Lake giving thanks for the safety of their loved ones aboard the U.S.S. Iowa. If you were to ask some of the wives and the crew of our own Cutter Mesquite, I imagine you would find that they are thankful to be back together in Charlevoix after a long winter cruise.

Let me wonder aloud if there aren't veterans in our town who can identify with both sets of feelings. We have not seen a major military conflict in over a decade and that has caused too many of us to forget the sacrifice and the dangers military families must live with even in peacetime.

Those who serve us in uniform need to be more a part of our prayers. Those who keep the watch at home until their loved ones return from duty need solid expressions of support from all of us as their friends and neighbors. Whether they are Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, Airmen, or Coast Guardsmen, let us never forget they play a big part in keeping alive the freedom we all value.

There is someone else that too many of us forget when things are going well. He has never stopped in His love for us or care for us even though we don't give Him near the honor and respect He deserves. His life among men was characterized by tireless devotion and service. His reward was anything but appreciation.

Yet He overcame the heartaches and misunderstandings He faced. He reaches out today in very real ways with proven compassion. His name is no secret. If anything, it falls from our lips too easily as if it were something, rather than someone.

It should not take a life-threatening tragedy to wake us up to the presence of Jesus Christ. Instead of restricting or hampering your liberty, His whole purpose is to expand your horizons of life farther and wider than you ever possibly could on your own. Rather than leaving you to fend for yourself and flirt with disaster, He seeks to be your brother, your partner, and your friend.

His title is Savior and Lord. But the distance from Calvary to your heart is very short. Revelation 3:20 records His words, "Here I am! I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in and eat with him, and he with me."

Methodists host luncheon

There will be a buffet luncheon, bazaar, and bake sale at the United Methodist Church Friday, April 28, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the women of the church, the luncheon will feature a variety of salads, hot dishes, beverages and desserts for $4 a person ($3.50 for senior citizens).

The bake sale will include home-made rolls, bread, and pies.

Murray joins PR staff

Dianne C. Murray, a reporter who has experience with medical issues, has become Northern Michigan Hospitals' Manager of Public Relations. Her appointment was announced by Kathleen LaGreca Reibling, Director of Marketing and Public Affairs.

Murray, 31, assumes responsibility for all publications produced by the 299-bed regional referral hospital and its affiliated organizations, and for all contact with the news media. "I'm here to tell the hospital's story, to make people aware of what we do, why we do it, and how we do it. As I have done in the past, I'll do my best to make people understand that what we do is important to them. One of my goals is to facilitate the communication of NMH medical and scientific information between physicians, the public and the media," Ms. Murray said.

For eight years Murray was a staff writer for the Petoskey News-Review. During the last five years, she primarily reported on medical, government and environmental issues.

Dianne C. Murray

Several of her articles won state or national awards. Before moving to the Petoskey paper, she was a news editor for more than a year with the Charlevoix County Press. She earned a Bachelor of Arts in Journalism at Michigan State University after beginning her studies at the University of Michigan, Dearborn.

There are many different types of things to see and do in a big city and surrounding areas. In Chicago, there are now as many different types of ethnic restaurants as there are countries in the world, it seems. The influx of Asiatics since the Vietname War, and of Latin peoples, has added to the city neighborhood proliferation of Scandinavians, Germans, Italians, Polish and Irish with which we were once so familiar. An automobile ride through the neighborhoods is a mini tour to several foreign countries.

It was interesting to be in the area as the Chicago mayoral election approached, listening to the tirades of each candidate against the other. There was no central issue; just big city politics and personal potshots. On the other hand, elections in the suburbs centered on a variety of issues, not the least of which was gun control, which passed easily where it was on the ballot. Other ballot questions were a 911 emergency service, also approved, school millages, and public purchases of land for "open spaces," which was approved in about half of the districts where it was a question.

On our way north to Wisconsin on the morning of the $67-million Illinois lottery drawing, hundreds of automobiles were parked along the interstate highway just south of the Wisconsin border, and long lines were formed in front of the small markets and service stations which sold lottery tickets. Those Wisconsin people were really eager to give Illinois some of their money.

It's been sunny but cool since we returned home, but now we know what to look forward to in the next two or three weeks—blooming bulbs, budding forsythia, green grass, and chirping birds. That's the way it was 400 miles south. And now we start our 16th year with the Courier.

After discussing the matter, councilmen decided the matter needed further work and referred the issue to the planning committee.

Book tells people where to look for vital records

Vital records are just that... vital. We need access to them for many reasons.

In this age of bureaucratic documentation, everyone has need of copies of records of birth, death, marriage or divorce. An application for benefits from the Veterans Administration or Social Security, a passport or marriage license must have the information containted in these records and sometimes copies of the records themselves.

All these records are stored permanently by municipalities, counties, states and the Federal government.

The Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group, found that there was little uniformity on where the records were available and the costs. In some states, birth records are kept by the city and in others by the county or state. To further complicate matters, often older records are held in a different place than current ones. In addition, the addresses where the records are kept are changed quite often.

The consumer group found many people had difficulty in locating the records they needed. In many cases it was necessary to make expensive long distance calls just to find out where to write, what information was required and how much money to send. For that reason CERC has been publishing a book entitled Where To Write For Vital Records since 1977. They have just issued the updated 1989 edition which contains a state-by-state listing of the addresses and telephone numbers of where each record can be found, the cost of a copy of the document and sample form letters containing all the information needed to get these and other vital documents.

In the 1989 edition the organization has added a section with a list of United States offices of every country with the name of the office that will help people born in foreign countries obtain documents located in the country overseas where the event occurred.

Even U.S., citizens born overseas, on a ship or aircraft can locate the place where their birth records can be obtained as can children born overseas and adopted by parents in the U.S.

Since the organization found that many people were using previous editions of Where to Write for Vital Records to trace their family trees, this edition has information on the Family History Library of the Mormon Church which contains over 200,000 volumes of records of family histories and a list of almost a quarter-million people who are willing to share information to help you find your roots.

To obtain a copy of this useful book, send $6.50 to CERC, Documents, 350 Scotland Rd., Orange; NJ 07050 or call 1-800-872-0121 for credit card holders.

Robert L. Berko, executive director, of CERC says that originally the book was published to satisfy the needs of persons applying for various benefits but many others have found it useful. He has received letters from libraries, coroners, law enforcement, social agencies, credit grantors, collection agencies, stock ownership tracers, lawyers, persons searching for missing heirs and even those interested in searching their family roots. All these and others have found use for a book that helps them locate and prove the status of individuals.

Many times documents can be used to prove things other than what they record. For instance, one woman wrote to the group telling them that a birth certificate for her child proved her residence at that time in the United States and helped her in efforts to become a legal permanent resident and finally a citizen.

The date of this Bridge Street picture can only be guessed by the year of the convertible in the foreground and other cars down the street. However, it was when The Clothing Company was a "dime store." Mont's Cafe was operating, and the Dockside Pharmacy was just a plain old Walgreen Agency drug store. Water tower fate to be decided by voters in August election

After being batted around in council chambers for several years, the question of what to do with the old water tower will go before the voters in the August general election.

City voters will be asked if they are willing to pay three-fourths of a mill for one year to keep the old water tower standing. The additional millage would fund having the water tower sandblasted and repainted and having 100 cubic yards of sand placed inside the tower.

At a Monday evening public hearing on the fate of the water tower, city manager said accord ing to estimates he received from painters it will cost approximately $40,000 to sandblast the old paint off the tower and apply a fresh coat of paint.

A fresh coat of paint would last perhaps 10 to 20 years. When the water tower is repainted the next time, it shouldn't be as costly. The paint presently on the tower is lead-based and special precautions which have to be taken in removing it add to the cost of repainting.

In addition to repainting, sand would be placed inside the tower to stabilize it. According to an engineering report issued to the council this past winter the tower, which was built in 1906, is still in fairly good shape. However to keep from straining the tower's support, it needs to remain stable. More weight inside improves the tower's stability.

By the time the project is completed, the total initial cost of keeping the tower standing is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

A mill is $1 per thousand dollars of a property's state equalized value. Each mill levied in the city of Charlevoix generates approximately $83,000 in revenue so three-fourths of a mill ($62,500) would cover the renovation costs.

The majority of approximately a dozen people who spoke at the hearing favored repainting the tower and leaving it standing.

"I'd like to see you just leave that old tower where it is," said Lou Orlowski. He suggested painting the word "Charlevoix" on the tower and putting lights on the tower so boaters could use it as a navigational aid.

There were also people, including some councilmen, who leaned toward tearing the old tower down.

"I like the tower, but I think we're not using, it's time to get rid of it once and for all and that's that," Russ Lewis said.

Councilman Ken Whitley voted in favor of putting the millage question on the ballot and said he could live with leaving the tower up. However, he said his personal inclination is to tear the tower down and make a park out of the area where the tower now stands.

Councilman Butch Russell expressed sentiments similar to Whitley's.

The estimated cost of tearing the tower down is about $25,000.

Dale Boss, who has been a proponent of converting the water tower into some type of viewing platform, proposed installing an elevator with glass sides up through the center of the tower.

Boss said he has talked to elevator company engineers who have told him an elevator is Council grants approval, but ...

A public hearing Monday evening on development plans for 212 Bridge Street (also referred to as the Burnsides Building) added one more discussion to the history of the proposal, but didn't change matters from what they were going into the hearing.

Charlevoix Development Company, owners of the building, wants to remodel the building. Remodeling plans include installing a door in the north side of the building. The door would be recessed into the building but people would enter or leave the door by a narrow sidewalk down the southern edge of Bridge Park.

City councilmen initially balked at allowing the door, noting that people would be walking across a public park to access a private business.

Prior to the matter coming before the council, the city planning commission approved the plan. However, at their Feb. 6 meeting, councilmen rejected the site plan.

Charlevoix Development Company appealed the council rejection to the city zoning board of appeals.

At their March 29 meeting, the zoning board of appeals indicated they needed to know specific reasons from the council for turning down the plan. With that, the board of appeals referred the matter back to the council.

City attorney James Young was asked to review the issue and advise the council. In an April 8 letter to city manager Mike Wiesner, Young indicated that he had reviewed the issue and even toured the site. He wrote that he could "see no reasons for denial of the plan which would withstand a legal challenge."

However, he stipulated that if council were to approve the approval should note, "this resolution must not be construed to limit the rights of the City to develop its property as it deems appropriate and that such development may at some time in the future interfere with the use intended by the developer."

At a council work session April 10, councilmen decided to approve the plan, but to note that the city intends to tear out the sidewalk at the southern edge of bridge park and replace it with a edge. The sidewalk will be relocated to the center of the park.

At Monday's public hearing, the council affirmed that decision.

At the end of Monday's council meeting, after the 212 Bridge hearing and following discussion of several other matters, former councilman Bob Timms again raised the issue of the building site plan and the city's plans for Bridge Park.

Timms questioned exactly what the city's plans are for

Kids receive trees for Arbor Day

Nearly 200 children in the first and fifth grades at Charlevoix Elementary School were busy planting over the weekend after each received a three-year old Scotch Pine transplant in observance of Arbor Day Friday, April 28.

The seedlings were donated by Charlevoix Area Garden Club which has sponsored various Arbor Day events for a number of years. After this year the organization hopes to expand the program with the cooperation of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, the City Shade Tree Commission and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc.

"We want each child to have some awareness of the vital role of trees in our ecological system and to have the pleasure of seeing a tree grow as she or he grows," explained Inge Ledahl, club president.

A former newspaper man from Detroit, J. Sterling Morton, originated the idea of Arbor Day in 1872 after moving to the treeless plains of Nebraska. Schools began to observe the Arbor Day tradition in 1882 and it has since spread to many countries in the world. In Nebraska, Arbor Day is a legal holiday celebrated on April 22, Morton's birthday.

The American Forestry Association applauds such efforts saying that local actions can help reduce global warming. It urges that 100 million new trees be planted in towns and cities to counteract the "greenhouse effect."

Helping to coordinate the event were Gayle Gennett, Kiwanian liaison and school counselor, class teachers Chris Bentley, Catherine Britton, Elizabeth Hoffman, Alison Mellon, Ronald Cox, Carol Elliott, Kathy Gowell, Patricia Miller and Jeanne Seymour together with club members, Nancy Murray, Nancy Wood, Nancy VandenBerg, Shirley Jones and Barbara MacArthur.

feasible. He said it would cost approximately $200,000. He proposed that it would be funded either through the city leasing it to a private company which would charge for rides to the top of the tower or through seeking recreational grants for the handicapped.

Boss said it might take time three or four years before the elevator would become a reality, but he noted that the city has already been talking for several years about what to do with the old tower.

Councilmen were at one time considering the view platform option, but the idea lost favor when the additional insurance costs to the city were estimated at $12,000 per year.

Boss said that according to the elevator people he talked to, insurance would be part of a service contract on the elevator.

Bridge Park.

Mayor Gary Probert asked Wiesner to elaborate on the park plans. Wiesner said that over time the city has talked about a lot of possibilities for Bridge Park, but that he had to defer to the council on the latest specifics.

Timms said he feels the council is being "a little vindictive" in taking out a sidewalk that's been there for 50 years.

Councilman Ken Whitley said it's a matter of improving the park.

Timms asked Whitley if he was saying it had nothing to do with the doorway.

Whitley indicated that as far as he was concerned, the matters are separate issues.

Timms said the park plan "just sounds a little fishy."

Federal budget talks affect Michigan boating

Michigan is home to more boaters than any other state in the country. And, Congressman Bob Davis says that his Northern Michigan district — which ranks first in the continental Unied States for miles of shoreline — also leads the nation in recreational boating.

According to registration figures provided by the U.S. Coast Guard, 746,979 boats were registered in Michigan in 1987 surpassing by more than 40,000 the number of boats in second-ranked California, a state with twice the population.

"Boating is big business in Michigan and it's especially big business in our area," Davis said. "Anyone who has ever driven north on I-75 on a Friday afternoon in July can appreciate just how big it is. It seems that every other car is towing a boat."

Davis said he expects the Bush Administration to propose the same $25 per boat user fee recommended by the Reagan Administration year after year that Davis was instrumental in stopping. "This is really just a new tax on boaters. Boaters already pay a motorboat fuel tax, half of which goes to the Coast Guard now."

Davis praised President Bush for rejecting a proposal to cap at $100 million disbursements from the popular Wallop-Breaux program which is funded through motorboat fuel taxes and excise taxes o[illegible]shing gear.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Ice cream doom

A sense of impending doom pervaded the car. And it's not easy to drive a vehicle through the heart of a pervasion.

If Henry had it to do over again, certainly he would do things differently. But it was too late for that now. At the instant he purchased the ice cream bar, the wheels of fate - huge, ugly and inalterable fate - were thrown in motion.

There was no stopping those wheels. Henry had no choice but to drive on and meet cruel destiny.

Although there were clouds, there were just enough of them to keep the blue sky from becoming monotonous and not enough of them to be a nuisance. The sun clearly ruled the sky on this spring day and comfortable and at ease with her power, she was generous with her warmth on the earth below.

Henry was in luck. It was a beautiful, warm spring day and he had a trip to make between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Henry hopped in his car, as he pulled out onto Bridge Street, he thought to himself, "I'm a little hungry. I think I'll stop and get something to munch on while I drive."

So he stopped at a little store, went inside and began looking around. What did he want? he didn't want a candy bar. They were too sweet. Sometime in his mid twenties, he'd lost his once infinite capacity for candy bars.

What about some peanuts, or cashews or smoked almonds? Maybe even some beef jerky?

No. No. Those were too dry. They wouldn't do.

A freezer sat near the front of the store. Henry looked down into it and saw a variety of ice cream bars. Fond memories came to his mind; memories of days long past when he was a short little fellow with a quarter clenched in his fist as he peaked up over the edge of such freezers and took so long in making a selection that he risked getting frostbite on his nose.

An ice cream bar for this drive, an ice cream bar it would be. He bought an ice cream bar and returned to his car.

Driving with one hand and an elbow, Henry unwrapped the ice cream bar with the other hand and his teeth. The feat challenged his dexterity.

Henry took a bite of the ice cream bar. The chocolate shell melted in his mouth and mingled with the ice cream which was cold and good.

Suddenly, it dawned on Henry that he was a little too close to the edge of the road.

"Whoa! I'd better pay closer attention to what I'm doing," he thought as he steered the car back to where it was supposed to be.

He rested the hand with the ice cream bar on top of the steering wheel so he could watch the ice cream bar and road at the same time.

As he looked at the two, he noticed a difference. The road wasn't melting, but the ice cream bar was. Ice cream oozed down the stick toward his fingers.

Henry moved quickly to confine the spill and get this problem licked. An ice cream bar in warm weather is not a pleasure to be drawn out. It's a thing to be enjoyed while it lasts and before it becomes a burden.

Henry ate all of the ice cream bar except the last little chunk which was wrapped around the middle of the stick. It was the part that was too far down to be eaten from the end of the stick, the part that had to be eaten from the side. That part of the ice cream bar that a person can easily eat half of, but unless a person is painstakingly careful, the other half falls off.

Henry was driving on a warm spring day. Soon the ice cream would melt. He had to watch the road and keep at least one hand on the steering wheel.

Henry felt doomed. Henry would soon have a piece of ice cream roll down his shirt and settle in his lap. He knew it. There was nothing he could do, no two ways about it. He had but to face his fate and meet with destiny.

JOA should be done away

Every once in a while one of our branches of government does something so right you want to stand up and cheer.

A case in point is the U.S. Supreme Court's decision — announced Monday — that it intends to take a long, hard look at the proposed joint operating agreement (JOA) between the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News.

The business merger was ready to take effect last August when it was stopped in federal district court after opponents objected, largely on grounds that if the Free Press is a failing newspaper, it is failing on purpose in order to join hands with the News.

The combined operation, if approved, is expected to produce profits of about $1 billion over the next century, far more than the papers could expect to earn independently.

However the money questions are superficial compared to the question of whether the Newspaper Preservation Act — which makes JOAs possible — is constitutional.

JOAs not only fly in the face of the nation's antitrust laws but also introduce government (read Big Brother) into the publication of your daily newspaper.

The Act, in effect, is a form of licensure — a gimmick tyrants have used to try to control and muzzle the press for centuries.

It is hard to imagine any self-respecting newspaper man or woman embracing the concept of a JOA the way it has been embraced by the management of the Detroit Free Press.

Licensure is also a form of intimidation. We already have seen how the Free Press soft-pedaled its reporting and comment on the ethical problems confronting former Attorney General Edwin Meese last summer — at a time when Meese was considering the Detroit JOA.

The Freep's silence last summer told all. Detroit newspaper readers would hardly have known Meese was in hot water if it hadn't been for the Detroit News — which isn't all that gung-ho about a JOA in the first place. A JOA would mean that after five years the News would have to split profits down the middle with the Free Press.

It makes you wonder what the News's parent organization — Gannett — was thinking about when it agreed to enter into such an arrangement.

Although the JOA is supposed to affect only business operations, the mere fact that the two papers share the same till would cast a shadow on their editorial positions. Which issues are real? Which have been manufactured to give the illusion of competition?

It's a problem that I, as a reader, don't have time to deal with.

I sympathize with Free Press employees who will lose their jobs if the Free Press makes good on its threat to close up shop if the JOA is denied. But I am not wasting any tears over the newspaper's management which has allowed the company to lose barrels of money year after year.

They ought to be ashamed of themselves not being able to turn a profit while the rest of the economy is booming.

The real losers in the whole JOA mess may be two little outstate newspapers — the Traverse City Record-Eagle and the Monroe Evening News — which have started publishing Sunday newspapers of their own in anticipation of the day when all of Michigan would be served by only one metro Sunday paper.

Under the terms of the JOA, the Detroit newspapers would publish combined editions Saturday and Sunday.

But Traverse City and Monroe still may make out like tail dogs — either if the Free Press folds or if the JOA eventually is approved by the Supreme Court and Detroit is reduced to one Sunday paper.

I believe the latter scenario is unlikely. The Newspaper Preservation Act simply cannot survive careful scrutiny by the high court.

If it does, why not a Shoe Store Preservation Act? Or a Fudge Shoppe Preservation Act?

EDITH GILBERT

It's always fun to return to San Francisco, where I went to school, and lived happily for seven years. The French bread doesn't taste as good anywhere else, nor the cracked crab, nor the fresh artichokes in spring. Nostalgia forces me to walk Union Square, cruise the marina district, and cross the majestic Golden Gate Bridge with the sparkling, sunlit harbor below.

But there are exciting new discoveries in store for the homecoming as well. Take the San Francisco Centre which houses one of the great new department stores called Nordstrum. This store's philosophy, believe it or not, is to give the customer service! The help is always pleasant and accommodating. It's a treat to shop there because you can get waited on! People will show you merchandise and answer questions. Escalators curve up eight stories through the center of the building like a giant drill. This magnificent new building is filled with light and space. No crowded aisles. Modern technology with old fashioned service.

On the lower level are boutiques and a fine book store called Brentano's. Of course I checked the etiquette section and happily found several copies of Complete Wedding Planner on the shelf. I asked the salesperson if she'd like me to autograph these paperback books and she was delighted to have me do so. The volunteered that the book is selling very well and they have repeated requests for it. (Now isn't that music to an author's ears?) Then she affixed special stickers to the book which said, "Autographed Copy", and off I floated until I came to the eye-stopping counter of Nouvelle Pattiserie, where in celebration I indulged in a double chocolate mousse!

I later attended the thrilling performance of a young violinist, Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg at the gorgeous Davies Symphony Hall. Please forgive this digression, but the lady seated in front of me turned, looked at me and said, "I see we have Barbara Bush with us tonight!" which explained the double takes I'd been getting in restaurants and shopping malls. One very nice looking woman even approached me and said, "Hello, you look so familiar." I swear the next time it happens, I'm going to say, "Please don't tell anyone. I'm traveling incognito."

Back to the symphony. The brilliant violinist received a thunderous ovation from the three thousand people attending this concert. How I wish we could fill the three hundred seats at the McCune Arts Center for our Community Concerts! I have attended these series for over ten years and never been disappointed.

Tickets for next season's concert series are on sale now, which include the Neal Ramsay Duo. He's a handsome young redhead who plays the classical saxophone, accompanied by lovely Ann Newton at the piano. Since his Kennedy Center debut he has become one of the most widely heard saxophonist in the history of the instrument. The date is Thursday, Oct. 12.

The new Christy Minstrels follow on Tuesday, March 13. This group has been a major phenomenon in the music business. They have surpassed virtually every milestone of professional achievement, including Grammy and Academy Awards, television and film credits.

Duo Harpist, Escosa and Rado, are returning by popular demand. Both have a long list of professional credentials. Their concert winds up the series on Wednesday, April 25, 1990.

Tickets are available at the McCune Arts Center, 347-4337. Tickets are reasonable priced for the series at $20 for adults, and $10 for students. Family membership is $48 and Patron tickets, which includes an afterglow, are $35. Symphony tickets in San Francisco are $30 for only one performance, so you're getting a good deal! Treat a musical friend to the series and they will be grateful for your thoughtfulness. Enjoy the comfortable new seats at the refurbished Ross Stokes Theater. You won't be sorry!

Spring dance raises $1,379

When the money was added up, it totalled out to $1,379. The money was raised for the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center building fund by a dance cosponsored by the Barnard Grange and American Legion this past Saturday evening.

Dance organizers said the event went well and the approximately 200 people who attended had a good time. Jasper and his Tag-alongs played steady from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Organizers are considering a similar event either in late summer or early autumn.

Smith-Disney

The altar of the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix was adorned with vases of peach spider chrysanthemums, lilies, white mini carnations, and greens for the March 25 candlelight wedding of Dawn Marie Disney of Charlevoix and Kenneth E. Smith of Brockport, New York.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bordas of Charlevoix and Herman Disney of Pennington Gap, Virginia. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith of Brockport.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom participated in the ceremony by lighting the candles beside the unity candle, which was graced by lilies of the valley and lace.

The Rev. Thomas Black officiated at the double-ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her parents. Approximately 75 guests were seated in pews marked with white sonja satin bows. Swags of asparagus ferns decorated the church doors.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white Venise satin fashioned with a Victorican neckline of illusion, lace, sequins, and pearls. The sleeves were puffed, and satin-covered buttons ran down the back to the Basque waist and full swooped skirt, joined by a candy box bow. The chapel-length train was finished with tiers of lace and the illusion veil was crowned with a wreath of satin roses, sequins, and seed pearls.

The bride's bouquet was a colonial arrangement of white roses and lilies of the valley centered around a white orchid and baby's breath.

The bride's attendants were Dawn Koolstra, maid of honor; Leslie Knoop, bridesmaid; Julie Miller, junior bridesmaid; and Erin Buckner, flower girl.

Jeff Smith, brother of the bridegroom, was best man; David Bordas, brother of the bride, was groomsman; and Niel Boyer was ring-bearer.

Mr. & Mrs. Kenneth Smith

A candlelight reception at the Edgewater Inn, given by the bride's parents, followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Marv Kurkiwiewiz served as host and hostess, and Don Schneider was master of ceremonies. The tier wedding cake was served by Donna Lafean.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the couple's parents on March 24 in the church parlors.

Taxpayers should be aware of rights when audited

In 1988, Congress passed the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act (TAMRA) to correct some provisions in the Tax Reform Act of 1986. The TAMRA provides a "Taxpayer's Bill of Rights" which protects taxpayers when they are called by the IRS for an audit.

If you are audited this year, you should know that you have these rights:

If you are called in to explain a certain deduction, you must answer questions pertaining to that deduction only. If the auditor asks you questions regarding any other part of your return, you do not need to answer.

If during the interview, you feel you must consult with a tax advisor, the auditor must stop the interview and allow time for you to seek advice.

You are allowed to make an audio recording of your audit interview, as long as both you and the auditor are aware that a recording is being made.

If you prepare your return based on inaccurate written information from the IRS, you are not required to pay interest and penalties for the error.

TAMRA now requires a 30-day waiting period before the IRS can put a lien on a delinquent taxpayer's property; the old law allowed only ten day's notice.

Before the audit begins, the IRS must inform you of these rights.

The IRS audits millions of returns annually; the General Accounting Office notes, however, that 31 percent of these notices are sent erroneously. If you receive an audit notice, check with a tax professional who can review the IRS notice and your return.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Lowell Anderson
Assembly of God

Consider this statement: There is no record in the Gospels of anyone Jesus Christ forgave of their sin having asked for forgiveness! It's true!

The love of God expressed to us through Jesus Christ in the forgiveness of our sin is not dependent on any action or any prerequisite on our part.

The Scripture describes unilateral forgiveness this way in Romans 5:8 (NIV) "But God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us." That's fantastic. Before we were born, before any possibility existed that we could do anything to merit His love and forgiveness, God loved and forgave us. He forgave us, knowing that we would sin. He continues to extend forgiveness knowing that I will continue to sin from time-to-time.

The Gospel of Matthew records the healing of the paralytic in chapter 9. In this story a paralytic is brought to Jesus to be healed. Jesus first words to the man are, "Take heart, son; your sins are forgiven" Mt. 9:2(NIV). The skeptics standing nearby accused Jesus of blasphemy, since the power to forgive sins resides in God alone. And that was precisely the point. Jesus had made the statement to prove that He had the authority to forgive sins. He then turned to the paralytic and bid him get up, take up his mat and go home. The man had been brought for healing. Jesus first forgave his sin, then healed him. Forgiveness of sin was given and had not even been asked for!

Luke the Physician records in his Gospel (Luke 7:36-50) the forgiveness Jesus gave to the "sinful woman" who washed His feet with her tears and dried them with her hair and there is no record of her having asked for forgiveness. The love of Christ flowed to her in unilateral forgiveness.

It's hard for us to understand the love of Christ, and to accept His unilateral forgiveness because it is so vastly different and far superior to human love and forgiveness. As humans we insist that certain conditions be met before we will love someone (they must be "our type", they must act nice, they must be "likeable", etc.). If we are to forgive someone who has offended us we insist that they first come and apologize. How often have we said, or heard someone say, "I'm not going to forgive that so-and-so until they come crawling on their knees and say they are sorry!" Our forgiveness depends on their apology. God's forgiveness requires nothing first.

Do not confuse God's unilateral forgiveness with approval of our sin. Sin always separates us from God. Yet His forgiveness flows unilaterally to us, not demanding anything first. Repentence must follow forgiveness of course, but it is not a requirement before forgiveness is granted! There isn't anything we can do to merit God's forgiveness, it is unilateral, it flows from the forgiver. "But God demonstrates His own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us."

Receive His forgiveness. Go and sin no more! (John 8:1-11)

Helen W. Paddock

Helen W. Paddock, 86, of Edwardsville, Ill., died Monday, April 24, 1989 at Castlehaven Nursing Center.

She was born Feb. 13, 1903, in Charlevoix, the daughter of Amos and Edith Cram Webster. She married Richard Paddock on Jan. 1, 1924, in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death March 10, 1989.

Mrs. Paddock is survived by a son, John W. Paddock of Edwardsville, Ill.; two daughters, Mary Jane Barbian of Fresno, Calif. and Roberta Sinclair of Midland, Mich.; six grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

One brother, Clair S. Webster, preceded her in death.

Graveside services will be conducted by Rev. Philip Schairbaum of the First Congregational Church on May 19, 1989 at 11:30 a.m.

Winchester Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Rural areas have emergency medical care needs

You are twice as likely to die in an accident when it occurs in a rural area. Congressman Bob Davis says one reason for that disturbing statistic is that smaller communities don't always have the most sophisticated Emergency Medical Systems.

"Many rural communities simply cannot afford the most up-to-date EMS equipment or expensive training for emergency personnel," Davis said. "The rescue workers in our area do a remarkable job especially when you consider the conditions they work under. Distances are longer, the terrain and the weather are more severe, and '911' systems are almost non-existent."

Davis says put those factors together – along with the alarming rate of rural hospital closures – and the result is less than optimal for accident victims. Studies show that 70 percent of all highway fatalities take place in rural areas.

Davis is an original cosponsor of legislation to help address the problem. The Rural Emergency Medical Improvement Act establishes a new $45 million block grant program to states to recruit and train emergency personnel and to purchase, upgrade and maintain emergency medical equipment. The bill requires states to spend the grant money in rural areas only.

"Current federal programs focus on planning EMS systems," Davis noted. "But planning is pretty useless if the community doesn't have the basics. This bill provides the necessary tools."

Because of the dangers inherent in many rural occupations (farming, mining, and logging are obvious examples) grant money would also be available to develop preventative education programs for rural occupational safety.

Rathke to speak to Women's Club

"Let Your Voice Be Heard" is the title of a talk by Jane Rathke at the annual breakfast meeting of the Women's Fellowship of the First Congregational Church Saturday, May 6, at 9:30 a.m. in Fellowship Hall.

Mrs. Rathke will describe her personal journey to becoming involved in public issues that concerned her. She is a substance abuse prevention specialist at CHIP Counseling Center, a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education and an officer of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Upon moving to Charlevoix four years ago Mrs. Rathke served with the Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service. One of her assignments was to help coordinate a leadership development course for Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

She has a BA degree in Home Economics and a master's degree in counseling from Easter Michigan University.

Mrs. Rathke is the wife of Richard Rathke and the mother of a grown son.

Baseball team suffers first loss of season

Charlevoix's baseball team fell from the ranks of the undefeated last Thursday, but hey a record of 9-1 ain't all bad.

In the first game of a doubleheader against Rogers City, the Rayders lost 7-5. In the finale, the Rayders came back strong with an 8-1 win.

Charlevoix could muster only three hits in the opener against Rogers City pitcher Kevin Gorlewski. Tom Herriman and Shawn Putman had doubles while Mike Himebauch had a single. Himebauch took the pitching loss, giving up five hits and for walks and striking out nine batters.

In the second game, Charlevoix scored a trio of runs in inning number two and never trailed. Putman got the pitching victory with relief help from Dave Loder in the seventh and final inning. Putman struck out eight, walked three and allowed only two hits.

Charlevoix hit much better in the second game, totalling eight hits. Jordan Spen cer led the Rayder hitters with a double a single and for RBIs. Jason Corwin had a pair of hits while Himebauch, Pat Elliott and Loder each contributed a single.

Softball team close, but loses two games

Charlevoix's softball team lost two close games to Rogers City this past Thursday in falling to 1-7 on the season.

Charlevoix lost the opening game 10-8 and the second game 14-13.

In the opener, Darsi Spencley took the pitching loss for the Rayders. Over seven innings, she struck out two, walked 13 and gave up 10 hits. Spencley and Stacy Skeel led the Rayder hitters as each had three hits. Dana Haney added a double.

In game two, the host Hurons jumped out to an 8-0 lead before Charlevoix made a comeback attempt which fell short by but a run in the five-inning game. Rogers City won the game in their final at bat.

Tammy Holm was the losing pitcher, striking out one while walking eight and giving up 10 hits.

Skeel and Haney each had two hits in the game while Andrea D'Angelo had a double.

A fire which started in a wood-burning kitchen stove did extensive damage to this home on Novotny Road Sunday morning. Charlevoix city and township fireman responded to the fire. Two ladies who lived in the home had to crawl out of a window to escape the fire.

Fire severely damages local home

Charlevoix city and township firemen responded to a house fire on Novotny Road shortly before 9 a.m. Sunday morning.

According to city fire chief John Martin, the fire started in a wood-fired kitchen range. Fire quickly spread from the kitchen and as Martin phrased it, "basically totalled the house."

There were two people in the home when the fire started, owner Lily Novotny and Mary Hardy. Fire blocked the doors and the women had to escape by crawling out of a window.

The two women suffered some minor cuts and smoke inhalation and were taken to the hospital as a precaution.

People passing by reported the fire. The city fire department responded initially and subsequently the township fire department was called to bring in additional water.

Sea lamprey funds needed

U.S. Senators Donald Riegle and Carl Levin have urged members of the Senate Appropriations Committee to provide the Great Lakes Fishery Commission with an additional $4.3 million to fight deadly sea lamprey (eels) in the Great Lakes. This increase would bring total FY 1990 funding to $9.4 million for the Commission, which is responsible for sea lamprey control.

Sea Lampreys are parasitic fish that attach themselves to and ultimately kill valuable Great Lakes fish; primarily trout, salmon and whitefish. Sea lamprey have no natural predators and in the late 1940's virtually wiped out the Great Lakes' trout and whitefish stocks.

In the past, a chemical called lampricide has been used to control sea lamprey. However, dramatic increases in the price of this chemical (73 percent increase since 1986) is threatening the effectiveness of sea lamprey control.

Senator Riegle said, "Current federal funding for sea lamprey control is clearly inadequate. Without this increase, the amount of sea lamprey in the Great Lakes could double by the year 2000. This would deal a devastating blow to our fishing industries."

Recent estimates show that without this additional funding, the trout and salmon supply in the Great Lakes could decline by 50 percent by the 2000 and Great Lakes States could face economic losses in excess of $1.4 billion annually.

Ellsworth bike-a-thon

Wheels For Life, the annual St. Judes Bide-A-Thon In Ellsworth will take place from 10 a.m. to noon beginning at the Circle Drive. Lunch will be provided by the Ellsworth Lioness Club.

All able-bodied men, women, and children are urged to take their rakes and other lawn tools to the cemetery for the bee, which will begin at 8:30 a.m.

It is expected that work will be finished by noon, when a potluck luncheon will be served at Friendship Hall in the village. A cemetery business meeting will follow.

Prayer breakfast at Edgewater

A community prayer breakfast will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. Thursday, May 4 at the Edgewater Inn. The Charlevoix Minesterial Association is sponsoring the breakfast in observance of National Day of Prayer. Cost for the breakfast is $3 per person.

Several local, state and federal officials have been invited to the event. Music will be provided by Steve Stargardt and Joe and Sandy Johnson.

County equalization report issued

by PEG OHLE

Year after year, there is one constant figure in the Charlevoix County Equalization Report.

It is the number of acres of land within the county: 210,189.

Even the number of acres of land within each township remains the same. St. James Township on Beaver Island is the smallest of all 15 townships in the county, with 2,722 acres. Charlevoix Township is a close second with 2,992 acres.

On the other hand, Peaine Township, also on Beaver Island, with 23,615 acres is the largest township in the county, followed by Melrose Township with 20,265 acres.

The value of this acreage does change from year to year, however. In the 1989 County Equalization Report submitted to the County Board last week by Joan Blanchard, it is noted that in the past year, the value of all Charlevoix County acreage has increased 8.37 percent, from $492,639,539 to $533,871,457.

While this may seem like a modest increase, for the first time in history, it brings the total equalized assessed valuation of Charlevoix County over the half-billion dollar mark. Since the assessed valuation is approximately one-half the market value of the property, this also means that for the first time, Charlevoix County acreage and the real properties on it are worth over $1 billion!

Examples of nearby increases are: St. James Township, from 1988 equalized valuation of

Tip of the Mitt gets grant for wetlands program

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council has recently been awarded a $62,431 grant from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation of Flint. The grant will fund the first year of a proposed three-year program to develop a coordinated wetlands policy within the Great Lakes basin. The project will provide environmental groups in the region with support for the development of sound wetlands policy. Stephen Brown, Environmental Policy Specialist for the Watershed Council, will coordinate the new program.

The program consists of two simultaneous efforts. First, the Watershed Council will form a Great Lakes Wetland Policy Consortium made up of approximately 25 members from environmental groups in the Great Lakes region that are active on wetlands issues. This group will develop comprehensive policy and management guidelines for wetlands in the Great Lakes Basin.

Second, the Watershed Council will create and publish the Great Lakes Wetlands Newsletter, a quarterly publication covering wetlands policy, management, and research. The newsletter will provide a forum for communication among the groups in the Consortium, other environmental groups, state wetland managers, scientists working on wetlands, and concerned citizens.

Stephen Brown explained the reason for development of the project, "Wetlands have increasingly been shown to play a vital role in the maintenance of the water resources of the Great Lakes region. Nevertheless, wetland losses continue throughout the region. In many cases, political opposition to wetland regulatory programs has limited the effectiveness of environmental groups working on Great Lakes wetlands issues."

"The Watershed Council's Great Lakes Wetland Policy Program will increase the effectiveness of individual groups at improving wetland policy in the region."

Some of the groups which have agreed to participate in the Consortium include: Great Lakes United, Center for the Great Lakes, National Audubon Society, Sierra Club, National Wildlife Federation, Michigan United Conservation Clubs, Michigan Environmental Council, Ducks Unlimited Canada and the Federation of Ontario Naturalists. Twenty-one other environmental organizations are currently considering participation.

The Mott Foundation previously provided a three-year grant to fund the Watershed Council's local Wetland Protection Program. That program, which ran from 1985 to 1988, included an intensive review of permit applications for dredging and filling of wetlands, shoreline surveys of 10 lakes in Northern Michigan, production of an educational brochure and booklet, identification of critical wetlands in the area, and development of an educational workshop which was presented throughout the state. Through its work on wetland issues, the Watershed Council has become recognized in the Midwest as an expert in wetland policy.

New golf course being developed

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix may become a golfer's Mecca if plans for an 18-hole course on the challenging rolling hills of Hayes Township become a reality.

Cutting and clearing has already begun on the Windmill Farm property recently purchased by a downstate corporation of which Charlevoix summer resident Charles MacGillivray is a principal.

According to Hayes Township Zoning Administrator Monte Hunt, David Campbell of Re-Max Reality of Charlevoix appeared before the Township Planning Commission some time ago with a rough sketch of plans for development of the property. In addition to the golf course, future plans call for low density quality housing, Campbell explained to the Planning Commission.

However, the residential development will have to await some changes in the Hayes Township Zoning ordinance. The township has taken the first steps toward reducing the required acreage for some homesites by proposing two new zoning districts, Rural Residential 1 and Rural Residential 2. The minimum acreage in the first district would be five acres, and in the second district, 10 acres. Up to now, all rural property has been designated agricultural, with a minimum lot size of 10 acres.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission last week approved nclusion of these new zoning districts in the Haynes Township Zoning ordinance.

"The primary intent of this 700-acre project is to build a world-class championship golf course, second to none, Campbell told the Courier.

For year court case costs county

by L. SCOTT SWANSON

(Writer's note: New light is being shed upon the Probate Court system in Michigan. For years, many Probate Court records have been closed to the public. In late 1988, new state laws changed that. Personnel at the juvenile division of the Charlevoix County Probate Court say they're glad to see the openness. Probate Court cases are often complex, time-consuming and, from a taxpayer's standpoint, expensive. Opening court records may help the public to understand why Probate Court cases are that way.

The following story deals with an abuse and neglect case which has been even more complex, time-consuming and expensive than the normal Probate Court case.

It is the Courier's policy not to use names when cases involve allegations of incest. In the following story, the fictional name "Delta" is used in place of the actual family name.)

Three judges, more than half a dozen attorneys and at least $50,000, possibly closer to $100,000, of Charlevoix County tax funds have been involved in the Delta family Probate Court case which began in 1985.

The file for the case fills several folders. It's too unwieldy to carry around loose so, for convenience, court workers carry the Delta file around in a cardboard box about the size of a milk crate.

More than four years after it began, the case continues and still has not been finally resolved. However, a dispositional hearing, which generally is the beginning of the end in Probate Court actions, is scheduled to begin Friday, May 12. If the hearing takes more than one day, it will continue May 30 and 31.

Prior to the current case, Charlevoix County Probate Court and the Department of Social Services (DSS) were involved with the Delta family in late 1980 through early 1982.

Antrim County Probate Court also handled a case involving the same family in 1985.

There have been seven members of the Delta family; the parents, one girl and four boys.

The girl died in an automobile accident.

Antrim County Probate Court terminated parental custody of the oldest boy in 1985. DSS removed him from his mother's care in December of 1984, when he was seven. One of the charges was that the mother twisted the boy's arm and broke it becasue he'd wet his bed.

The three youngest boys have been in foster care, under jurisdiction of Charlevoix County Probate Court, since March 1985. Whey they entered foster care, the boys were one, three and four years old. Presently,

Mother's Day is Sunday

All Courier readers who sons or daughters of mothers, a grouping which covers a lot of ground, are hereby reminded that Sunday, May 14 is Mothers Day.

A person may forget a birthday and yet hope to retain some shred of self esteem. One might even get away with carelessly neglecting an anniversary and still hope in time to work their way back into a spouse's good graces. But only an insensitive scoundrel without hope for reclamation would callously allow Mothers Day to slip past without paying proper notice.

The Courier takes this opportunity to wish all of our maternal readers a "Happy Mothers Day."

Harbor to be cleared for Venetian boat parade

In an effort to improve participation in the Venetian boat parade, boats not docked, regularly moored or participating in the parade will be rousted out of the harbor Venetian night.

The matter was discussed by city council in a work session Monday evening. It was brought before the council by Suzi Reis from the Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

For the past several years the Venetian boat parade has been plagued by a low number of entries. One year there were only three entries.

In a letter to the council, Reis said some boaters have indicated the volume of boat traffic and confusion in the harbor Venetian night cause concern for the safety of boats and passengers on boats entered in

Ahead-lines

Groups unified in compassion

An event will take place this Friday which is special in a couple of different ways.

Three local groups will sponsor an annual Activity Day for students in the trainable mentally impaired, severely impaired and preschool programs operated by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and clients from Antrim Kalkaska Industries, Bergmann Center and Little Traverse Enterprises workshops.

The event which takes place at the Charlevoix High School track provides an opportunity for people from these groups to compete and have a good time. Activities include relay races, wheelchair races, a kickball contest, softball throw, 50-yard dash and a peanut hunt for the preschoolers.

Spectators are welcome to come and watch the events.

In the evening, after the outdoor activities are finished, there is a dinner and a party. Local musicians entertain at the party.

All in all it's a nice time for some kids who have had to meet some exceptional challenges in life.

But there's another aspect of the Activity Day which also merits mention.

The local Knights of Columbus, Masons and Oddfellows work together to cosponsor the activity day. These three groups have all been around town for decades, but according to long-time members there were many years in which the three groups didn't interact much. There were religious differences and other things which quietly kept the groups apart.

But several years ago those barriors between the groups came down. They started doing some things together and working together to make some good things happen in Charlevoix.

The annual Activity Day is one of those things. It's an event which says something about compassion, brotherhood and working together in a small community.

I.E. team takes second at State

Charlevoix Performing Arts students, competing this past weekend in the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association State Finals in Individual Events, won the second place trophy for Class C-D schools.

Individual Events (I.E.) competition completes the Performing Arts competitive year, which began with debate in the fall followed by drama in winter. In all three, Charlevoix High School students were state finalists. The debate team placed 5th in Class C-D, the drama team won the Class C-D Championship and this weekend twenty competitors brought home another trophy.

In I.E. or speech championships, students compete both as individuals against all students from all size schools and as a team in their class. The points for the team trophies are compiled on the basis of points for students who make it into the championships, after a series of district and regional competitions, and the points received by each student during the two-day competition.

Charlevoix had students entered in nine events this year, one of the highest number of students from Charlevoix in recent years. Individuals moving beyond preliminary rounds and helping to guarantee the ranking of 2nd place were F.L. Dammann, 10th overall in Prose competition and Chrissy Dillon 12th overall in Dramatic Interpretation. Also doing exceptionally well for first time qualifying for state championship competitions was Tammy Felton in story telling, who finished 14th overall.

Two "multiples" or small group entries from Charlevoix received finalist trophies. Finishing 5th overall was the entry entitled "Real Men Never Die," based on several Vietnam War pieces including "Platoon," and "Full Metal Jacket," acted by Jason Wiser, Jon Terry, Jake Smith, B.H. VanLoo, David Salmonson and Bob Sell. Finishing 4th overall was another Charlevoix multiple, "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats," based on the poem by T.S. Eliot, performed by Marci Wynkoop, Kerry Hartnett, Darsi Spencley, Staci Ketchum, Lori Maue and Chris Felton.

Others participating and helping the team receive over-all honors were David Hunter, Becky Bellaires, Tinn McLenon, Shelly Swegles and Regional Finalist Natalie Jones who served as a State Time Keeper.

Other members of the Performing Arts Team who competed during the I.E. season were Troy Bonar, Jason Borths, Amy Cook, Brian Coolman, Cheryl Gagnon, Shirley Kerner, Gabrielle LaCroix, Danielle Loucks, Dawn Peterson, Karina Steckholm, Pal Skogholt, Will Wildman, Randy Williams, Michelle Carlson, Max Goss, Stacey LeCureux, Inga Miessner, Stacey Skeel, J.P. Hanechaw, Paul Loucks, and Jeff Warner.

CMS bands to perform

On Tuesday, May 16, at 7:30 p.m. 150 instrumental music students from Charlevoix Middle School will present a Spring Concert in the high school gym. Students from the sixth, seventh and eighth grade bands will perform a varied program of music which is designed to inform as well as entertain the audience.

Sixth grade band director Evelyn Wujcik will lead the sixth graders in musical selections which will show the progress they have made in their first years as instrumentalists.

The seventh grade band, under the direction of Terry Isenbarger, will play several marches and overtures, as well as a piece written for band and prepared audio tape.

The eighth grade band will perform the selections which the group played in winning a first division rating at the District Jr. High School Band and Orchestra Festival in Traverse City. The concert promises to provide something musical for everyone. It is open to the public free of charge.

Char-Em offers workshop

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is presenting a workshop entitled "Bringing Out the Best." It will be held in the Conference Room at the Service Center on Mercer Road in Charlevoix on Thursday, May 18, 1989, at 7 p.m. The program is open to all parents and teachers.

Topics will include an introduction to how we learn and process information. All of us, parents, children, teachers alike have a preferred way of gathering and maintaining information. You will take a "test" to see how you personally learn and then you can take that information home to use for the rest of the family. It is important to know that everyone does not learn information in the same way. Once you realize that, it makes helping your children learn much easier.

Also, a discussion of how the "experts" identify abilities and talents will be held. Parents are good at recognizing their children's strong points and need then to create a nurturing environment which will allow each child to maximize his-her potential.

Self-esteem in children seems to be a key element in successful performance at school and elsewhere. Information will also be given to help parents-teachers to develop a positive atmosphere, one of the essential ingredients which will allow these young people to feel good about themselves.

There will be practical information, guided discussion, bibliographies, and hand-outs to help everyone to "bring out the best."

Presenter for the workshop will be Kathy Martinchek, Consultant for Gifted and Talented. For further information, call Char-EM ISD, 547-9947.

... harbor cleared for Venetian night

the parade.

John Ochs, who has served as parade chairman for several years, noted that boaters say, "I don't have time." or "I want to watch the parade." when asked to enter the parade.

What Reis proposes is to not to allow boats to either traffic, anchor or raft off of other boats in Round Lake from 8 p.m. until approximately midnight on Saturday of Venetian weekend.

One group of boats affected would be those parked at the city docks in front of East Park. Traditionally, those boats have been asked to move during the fireworks, so the thousands of people watching the fireworks from the park would have a better view.

During the fireworks, these boats anchored or rafted off docked boats on the north shore of the harbor. If the council adopts the proposal, these boats would have to go out into Lake Charlevoix or Lake Michigan.

Last year, boats which were in the boat parade were allowed to dock at the vacated city slips following the parade and watch the fireworks.

Support for the harbor clearing was not unanimous. Bob Hoffmann said he feels half the beauty of Venetian is having the boats in the harbor.

Chamber members and city staff are to work out details and bring the matter back before council at a later meeting.

THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION TO TWO MAJOR CONCERNS

Council decision criticized

Editor,

Open Letter to the Charlevoix City Council:

You have finally, under duress, approved Charlevoix Development Company's (CDC) site plan request for the rehabilitation of 212 Bridge Street (formerly known as the "Burnside" Building). It took instruction from two City Attorneys before you acted.

One wonders what made you so hesitant. The public had raised no objection of note. The D.D.A., Parks and Recreation Commission and Planning Commission had all approved the "concept". The building would look better, and with two businesses instead of one, a few new jobs might be created.

You have expressed the startling notion that the public would traverse the park to enter and exit the building. For years I have labored under the impression that the public was allowed and encouraged to walk in parks. Can it be that you fear that CDC will make more return on its investment with two spaces instead of one? May I suggest that it is entirely proper for government to enhance private profit when it does not harm the public? Some might even consider positive, joint action on the part of government and business for community betterment to be desirable.

Let's address the final duplicity - your "plan" for the removal of the existing sidewalk and the establishment of a hedge alongside the building. I do not believe that plan exists. Other plans, by credible planners, have been devised and are on record. Your's exists only in your collective head, and it's sole purpose is to achieve by a devious method that which the law precluded you from accomplishing in a straight forward fashion.

When I received Planning Commission approval for our site plan, the city's right to place something on the property line, thus blocking our proposed entrance, was discussed. I said, at that time, that I would take my chances. Frankly, I didn't think anyone would be that petty and spiteful. I still don't.

Kindergarten recruits

People who enlist in the military seem to think it's a pretty significant commitment, but it pales in comparison to signing up for kindergarten.

Military enlistments are usually only for two or three years. These kindergarten recruits are starting a 13-year hitch with the educational system. If they decide to re-up and go for college, it's usually at least another four years.

Next year's Charlevoix kindergarten class put their names on the dotted line last week. Well...parents put the kids' names on the dotted line. But a good share of the kids could have printed their own names if they'd had to.

The military has to recruit. Kindergarten programs don't have to do that. If they did, we'd soon see signs with a picture of a guy in a mortarboard hat pointing one of those pointer sticks out from the sign. A caption beneath the picture would read, "Uncle Ed (Ed Ucation) Wants You!"

At last week's kindergarten sign up, kids and their parents just showed up of their own accord. Kids went into one of the classrooms to play games while parents went into the gym to fill out paperwork.

In the classroom, the kids all sat in a semi-circle doing kid things. They were singing little songs about Itsy-Bitsy Spiders and some other song dealing with, Where are their thumbs? Where are their thumbs? Here they are. Here they are. Run and hide. Run and hide.

These are not tunes you'll hear [illegible] top 40 radio.

While [illegible] of the kindergarten teachers [illegible] the singing, the other kindergarten teachers and some other education folks hovered around scrutinizing next year's little rascals.

Apparently these people were evaluating the kids. These adults had pens and pads of paper. Occasionally, the adults would whisper to each other and scribble notes.

This didn't seem to bother the kids. But if the shoe was on the other foot and the kids had started looking back at the adults and whispering and writing little notes, chances are the adults would have gotten edgey.

Although there's probably some merit in the adults looking over next year's crop of kindergarteners, one would hope they're not forming any opinions etched in stone. Just one look at a kid could leave an impression that's way off base.

Say that at kindergarten registration little Freddie walks up to little Orville and shoves him, knocks right on his keister.

Make a note. "Freddie - Aggressive tendencies."

But what the adult doesn't know is that two days before, Orville and Freddie were playing and Orville kicked Freddie and ran off. Freddie might be an OK kid. Perhaps if the adult knew more about little Orville, they might not view Freddie's action as an aggressive tendency, but as an execution of justice.

Or what if little Betsy sits quietly through registration and doesn't join in singing the songs or playing the games.

What's the note say? "Betsy - Reserved child. Slightly behind in development and socialization."

On the way home, Betsy's mother asks, "So what did you do in that class today?"

And Betsy replies, "Not much. I looked through the whole toy box and they don't have a chess set. All the teacher wanted to do was sing some dumb songs. I'm afraid that teacher may be a little behind in her development process. But I'll work with her next year and maybe she'll catch up."

Backyard wonders

Sometimes it's fun to prowl around in your own backyard.

The other night Judy and I attended a meeting at Pointes North Inn at the corner of Michigan Avenue and Pine River Lane. We were surprised to find a third full-blown convention center a scant three blocks from home. The others are located at Edgewater Inn and the Weathervane Terrace Hotel.

We all know that Pointes North is attractive from the outside. But did you know that the inn has a huge, well-appointed meeting room in the basement?

Desk clerk Martha Skeel says the room can accommodate 125 without any trouble.

I watched the hotel go up from Day One, but I never realized the building had a basement — much less such a commodious one.

And it's easy to reach. All you do is take the elevator.

The elevator? Yep. Another surprise. You'll find it right off the main lobby.

The indoor portion of the swimming pool is another surprise. It's about twice as large as the outdoor portion which extends almost up to the Michigan Avenue sidewalk.

The building is a tremendous improvement over the old Charlevoix Oil Co. garage that once occupied the property —particularly after the oil company and the Chevrolet dealership moved out. The cement block building stood vacant for years except when Larry the Liquidator was in town. Or when the Lions Club held its annual Christmas tree sale.

During the meeting last week, kept trying to visualize exactly where I was on the oil company property. I think I was sitting on the site of the former kerosene pump.

How times change!

Pointes North, Edgewater Inn and the handsome new addition to the Weathervane Terrace Hotel on W. Dixon are real assets to the city.

If you haven't seen the lighted entrance to the Edgewater Inn at night, you have a real treat in store. Under the subdued courtyard lighting, the ledgerock columns on each side of the main entrance are particularly attractive.

I KNEW WE were trespassing, but when my eldest grandson, James Briggs, going on 4, visited me a couple of weeks ago I just had to show him Old Island in Round Lake, the property of the Chicago Club.

Some Charlevoix residents — even a few who have lived in the city for many years — may not realize that the wooded shoreline of Round Lake just west of the Upper Channel is actually an island, separated from the mainland by Old River.

Years ago, I understand the river was the only link between Round Lake to Lake Charlevoix. However, a deeper, straighter channel was dredged south of the island to accommodate freighters and tankers.

Old Island is connected to the mainland by a rickety rustic bridge badly in need of repair. But James and I picked our steps very carefully and reached the island without falling in.

The island is a kid's dream: It is heavily forested with twisting, shadowy paths carpeted with dead leaves and pine needles. The aromas are earthy and moist, like black morels. Some of the trees must be a century old — or older. Around every bend is a magnificent vista of Round Lake and downtown Charlevoix.

If the island were on the market, it would certainly be one of the most expensive parcels of land in the country, right up there with Manhattan Island.

But it's inconceiveable that the Chicago Club would ever want part with a square inch of Old Island. Thank goodness.

James was as awestruck by the island as I have always been — which makes me feel awfully good.

Maybe some day he'll sneak down to Old Island with his grandson before the summer people arrive to show him what the real world is like.

WRC sponsors art show

The work of over thirty women artists from throughout Northern Lower Michigan is now on display at the Virginia McCune Arts Center, Petoskey.

"Women's Work" encompasses fine art in a variety of mediums including pottery, acrylics, stained glass, raku, ceramic jewelry, pen and ink and oils. The exhibition is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center, in co-operation with the Virginia McCune Arts Center. This year marks the Third Annual exhibition of "Women's Work."

"We are pleased to sponsor this outstanding body of work by women" said Jan Fowler, WRC Assistant Director. "The auction-exhibition concept benefits the on-going programs of our agency and promotes the fine work created by this community's women artists."

The auction-exhibition concept, explains Fowler, began three years ago when WRC Gold Mine manager and local painter, Cathleen Tibbits, suggested that it would be appropriate and within the mission of the Women's Resource Center of look to honoring local women artists.

"Art is no different than any other field" explains Tibbits. "Historically, it's always been difficult for women artists to gain the recognition they so deserve. If any one group should be recognizing their work, it's us, (WRC).

Each year, Tibbits explains, more talented artists in our community come forth and participate in the exhibition-auction. Newcomers to this year's exhibition include Carmel Desy-Peppler of Mackinaw City, Audrey Criner of Harbor Springs and Donna Simmons of Charlevoix.

Each artist may submit up to three pieces of their work with one piece requested as a donation to the Women's Resource Center. Women artists from throughout Northern Michigan have pieces in the exhibition-auction including, Peggy Midener of East Jordan, Ellie Nicol of Charlevoix; Marian MacKay of East Jordan (this year's featured artist), Barb Godwin of Charlevoix, Jan Vandenbrink of Petoskey, Alice Landis of Traverse City, and Kellison King of Harbor Springs. Other returning exhibitors include Suzanne Hoppe, Marguerite McPeak, Cat Bartreau, Cara Hochhalter, Mary Lee Huber, Linda Haderer, April Perreault, Cynthia Debolt, and Rebecca Andrews.

The exhibition will hang in the Art Tree Sales Gallery through May 15, with a special tribute to local painter Marion MacKay. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. During the exhibition, silent bids may be made on individual works in the show.

The highest silent bid will become the starting bid at the live auction, slated for 7 p.m. Monday, May 15, at McCune. "And, who knows," Fowler says with a smile "maybe the silent bid will win. Whatever happens, we're going to have a lot of fun doing Women's Work. We always do."

Darrol Linderman of the Masonic Lodge and Charles Bergmann from the Scout Committee for Troop 11 look over brush that will soon be cleared for a new scout storage building. The Masons recently hosted a spaghetti dinner which raised $600 for the building which will store scout camping equipment. Currently the equipment is stored in various places around town and has to be chased down and gathored up for every scout outing.

Local scouts attend camp-o-ree

This past weekend, May 5, 6, and 7, Charlevoix Pack 11 Cub Scouts and Troop 11 Boys Scouts participated in the 50th Anniversary - Spring Camporee held at the fairgrounds south of Traverse City.

The Pack 11, Webelos, camped next to the Boy Scouts and got a chance to experience scouting up-close.

Troop 11, Boy Scouts, participated in a council-wide volleyball tournament. Charlevoix's team consisted of Captain, Ron Zeller, players, Chris Lindemeir, Scott Burns, Fritz Sommerfeld, Mark Schalrbaum, James Pfluecke and Andrew Laucher. Benn Babb was the team's tactician. Charlevoix surprised almost everyone with the play.

Troop 11, quietly disposed of team after team, until they stood alone, winner of the Northern Distrit Bracket. In the evening's final championship, Troop 11 finished third behind two towering teams. A fine 1st place ribbon and trophy will be proudly displayed by the troop.

A great time was had by more than 2,000 scouts and leaders from all over Northern Michigan.

Scouts toured the Coast Guard Pelican search and rescue helicopter, fire fighting equipment, 25 or more merit badge training displays, heard from an astronaut, saw a safety demonstration using a scout tent, a match and a small clump of paper. The tent was totally consumed by fire in 2 minutes 10 seconds.

It was a memorable camporee in spite of snow showers, and 20 degree night-time temperatures.

Court case is complex, time-consuming and expensive they're five, seven and nine years old.

"The system has been messing around with them (the three boys) for four years," Chippewa County Probate Judge Lowell Ulrich said with disgust during a phone interview with the Courier. "Kids need permanency and permanent homes."

Ulrich is the judge currently assigned to the Delta case. Former Charlevoix County Probate Judge John Murphy and Antrim County Probate Judge John Unger preceded Ulrich. Current Charlevoix County Probate Judge Fred Mulhauser has not been involved with this case.

Why is the case still unresolved after four years? Where did the system break down? Why has it absorbed so much time and money?

In a typical abuse and neglect case, probate court becomes involved when DSS workers remove a child from a home and petition probate court for jurisdiction.

Ulrich explains that the probate court process in abuse and neglect cases has two stages.

The first stage determines whether or not there is cause for the court to take jurisdiction of the children. That determination is made either through a jury trial or an admission by the parents allowing the court to take jurisdiction. By current law, the jurisdictional hearing is to take place within 42 days of the DSS petition.

If the court takes jurisdiction, the case moves to stage two; disposition. In disposition, the court decides how to remedy the problem. Disposition can be termination of parental rights or an order for some type of remedial services. Typical remedial services may include foster care, counseling or parenting classes.

Termination of parental rights is the court's last resort. As Charlevoix County juvenile officer Brad Campbell puts it, termination is the "capital punishment of the juvenile court world."

Due primarily to flaws in the original jurisdictional hearing, the Delta case is going through the probate court process twice.

Although DSS took custody of the three boys and put them in foster care March 19, 1985, the jurisdictional hearing didn't take place until January 1986.

Murphy, who retired due to health problems in 1988 and subsequently died, presided at the jurisdictional hearing. The assistant prosecutor was present as were three attorneys; one for the children and one for each of the parents.

At the hearing, the parents consented to court jurisdiction of the children. Court transcripts indicate an agreement had been negotiated by the attorneys and prosecutor's office prior to the hearing. Under the agreement, the three boys would remain in foster care. The parents and children would receive counseling. Counselors would report back to the court a month later.

However, according to a subsequent ruling by Ulrich, the consent and hearing were not handled according to court rule. Ulrich dismissed jurisdiction resulting from the January 1986 hearing in January 1989.

Ulrich said that when a consent plea is taken, there must be allegations, and admissions to those allegations, sufficient for the court to take jurisdiction of the children.

Ulrich felt a court of appeals would probably dismiss jurisdiction resulting from the January 1986 hearing. Rather than waiting for the court of appeals, Ulrich dismissed jurisdiction so the case could be refiled immediately in Charlevoix county and begin moving forward expeditiously.

Although events between January 1986 and January 1989 were made meaningless by dismissal of jurisdiction, several things did occur.

The three boys remained in foster care and made regular visits to a therapist. In 1986, after parental visits induced fear and anxiety in the boys, therapists discontinued parental visitation and recommended that parental rights be terminated.

The mother and father also saw therapists, but according to court records the mother had a personality problem which is difficult to treat with psychotherapy and the prognosis for rehabilitating the father through psychotherapy was deemed poor.

In July 1986, Murphy made the three boys temporary wards of the court. In February 1987, Murphy terminated parental rights and committed the children to the DSS for adoption planning and placement.

But according to Ulrich, there must be findings of fact included with a termination order and that wasn't done. That was the second major glitch in the case.

Five letters in the court file refer to this problem.

A letter, dated April 29, 1987, from an attorney for the mother asked Murphy for findings of fact and a written opinion regarding the Feb. 1987 termination order.

A letter dated June 25, 1987, from Charlevoix County prosecutor Kraag Lieberman reminded Murphy that several parties were awaiting written decisions on termination of parental rights in the Delta case and another case.

On July 23, 1987 another letter from the mother's attorney to Murphy reiterated the request for a written termination opinion and findings of fact.

In late March 1988 an adoption specialist wrote to Murphy requesting clarification of the Delta case termination order.

In April 1988, Murphy responded to the adoption specialist indicating termination was not finalized and there was no way of guessing when that would be accomplished.

Finally, in August 1988 Murphy set aside the 1987 termination order and disqualified himself from the case.

Unger's involvement in the Charlevoix County case concerning the three youngest Delta boys has been limited. He originally became involved in the case on a temporary basis when he was filling in for Murphy. After Murphy disqualified himself from the case in August, Unger became the presiding judge.

But that lasted only a few months. In October 1988, the mother's attorney asked that Unger be disqualified from the case involving the three youngest boys because he was the judge who previously terminated parental rights to the oldest boy.

Unger removed himself from the case in November 1988 and Ulrich became the presiding judge.

Ulrich set aside the previous termination order and dismissed jurisdiction. The court-appointed attorneys previously involved with the case were discharged and a new set of attorneys brought in.

The petition for jurisdiction was immediately refiled and in effect the process started over from scratch.

Following a three-day trial April 10, 11, and 12, a jury rendered a verdict of jurisdiction. In other words the jury ruled there is cause for the three boys to be under jurisdiction of the court.

DSS has filed a supplemental petition regarding disposition. DSS is requesting termination of parental rights citing chronic neglect, physical abuse, sexual abuse and prior attempts at rehabilitation.

If the court, Ulrich, renders a disposition of termination, that disposition can be appealed. However termination appeals are handled much quicker than normal legal appeals. If termination were upheld in appeal, the three boys can be adopted.

If the court renders a disposition other than termination, the Delta family will again go through some type of remedial process.

Previous problems in the case did not result in the children going back into the home. However, because of the problems, they were left hanging for four years and had to testify at the April trial.

Although, after four years, the case still is not concluded, it is moving toward a conclusion.

"It's moving along in a timely basis now," Ulrich said.

Adding up court costs

Earlier this year, juvenile court officer Brad Campbell stood before the Charlevoix county Board of Commissioners to explain some of the costs in the Delta case. A cost to taxpayers of $50,000 is a low-end estimate on this particular case.

It wasn't the first time Campbell and commissioners have discussed juvenile court costs.

Don Smith, Charlevoix Township commissioner, asked for a total cost figure in the Delta case.

Campbell replied that it would be very difficult to give an exact total cost figure.

Smith then asked for an approximate figure. He asked if the case has cost county taxpayers $25,000, $50,000 or $100,000.

...court costs

"One of those," Campbell answered.

In a subsequent interview with the Courier, Campbell explained why it is so difficult to give a specific figure. Expense vouchers for the case go back to 1985. There are a variety of different expense categories. Certain expenses were covered by the county, while other expenses were covered by other sources. According to the court records, at one time, the court ordered $15 per month of the mother's wages to be put toward case costs.

The three boys have been in foster care since March of 1985, a little more than four years. Foster care costs are calculated as $12 per day, per child. Figuring 3 x 12 x 365 x 4 gives a ballpark figure of $52,560 for foster care.

Some other cost figures weren't totalled and can't be yet because the case hasn't concluded. But Campbell offered some figures used in calculations.

During the course of the case, more than half a dozen attorneys have been involved, several court-appointed. Court-appointed attorneys receive $35 per hour from the court.

Both the parents and the three boys in the case were in therapy. Campbell estimated therapy sessions at once a week for approximately two years. Therapy costs the court $50 per hour per person.

There are also costs for transcripts and depositions. One note in the court file refers to a copy of a termination hearing transcript costing $1,400.

The juvenile division of the probate court currently has an annual budget of about $300,000. It's difficult to budget for expenses because it's impossible to predict what cases the court will have coming. As the Delta case indicates, a single case can be very costly.

However, one also must keep in mind what the money did. According to court records, while in custody of the parents, the three boys were subjected to chronic neglect, physical and sexual abuse. The money was spent to get them out of that environment.

Jacquie and Harold Krutsch check out the shiny new Buick Reatta which will be the grand prize in this summer's Keep Charlevoix Beautiful fundraising drive. The car was displayed in front of the Belvedere Casino which was the site of Saturday evening's Chamber of Commerce dinner dance.

Chamber will host first job fair

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a job fair from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Charlevoix High School gym.

At least 35 employers from the Charlevoix area will be interviewing applicants for summer jobs. Students from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Jordan and Central Lake will be at the fair.

Students should preregister at their school or at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, but can also show up without preregistering.

There will be people at the fair to assist the students in filling out applications. Students will have time to see about 10 potential employers.

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce director Jacqueline Merta said this is the first year the chamber has sponsored a job fair and they are pleased with the response to it.

Fitch dance troupe to perform

The Fitch Dance Troupe will present a fast-paced show of jazz dancing, tap dancing, toe dancing and break dancing at an upcoming Jordan River Arts Council "Arts Alive" event.

Performances will be at 7 p.m. on Friday, May 12, at East Jordan High School and Saturday, May 13, at Bellaire High School.

The 24-member dance troupe are students and teachers from the Kalkaska-based Fitch dance studio, which has taken most of the dancers for study and competition at New York City's Sheraton Center.

Their performance will include "Showing Out," a Broadway style jazz number; "Phanton of the Opera," a modern balet from the stage play of the same name, and "I Feel Pretty," a modern toe dance to music from "West Side Story."

"Greased Lightning" from the movie "Grease" demonstrates dance steps from the 50's and "Aggie" is a hand clappin', foot stompin' country tap dance.

"Breakin'" will be performed by a young man who has danced on the streets of New York City with the New York City Breakers.

Other tunes the troupe will tap include "Set It Out" and "Oh Yeah!"

Teacher will perform a special, difficult choreography called "Teachers' Tap," and the program will conclude with "That's Dancing" with 21 girls performing in precision.

Their lively show is the last of five events scheduled by the arts council in two locations.

Single event tickets available at the door will be $10 for families, $3 for adults and $2 for seniors and students.

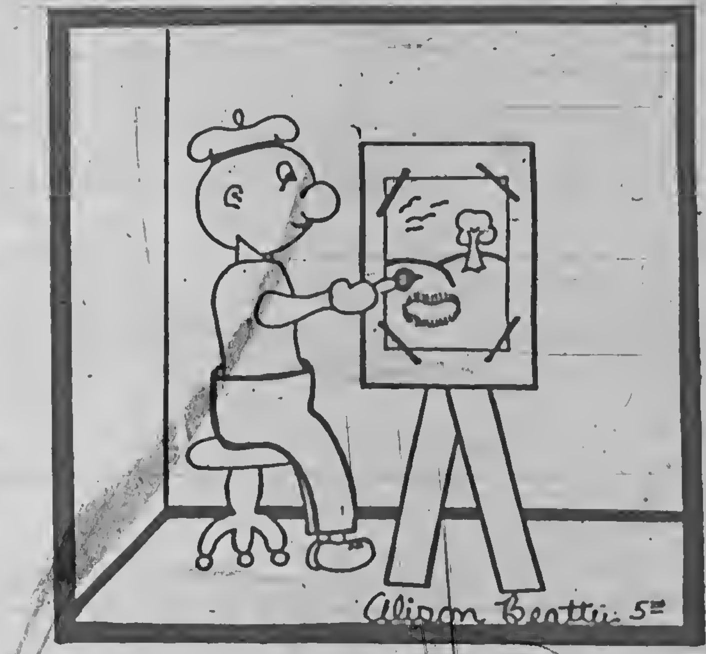
Charlevoix Public Schools ART SHOW



Close to 1,000 works of art will be on display during the Charlevoix School Art Show at the Charlevoix Elementary school.

Displays will be open to the public from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, May 11 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 12, 15 and 16. There is no admission charge.

Thursday evening, middle school students will demonstrate plaster mask making while high school students will demonstrate batik and silk painting.

A wide range of different art forms will be exhibited in the elementary gym, hallways and art room. Every elementary student will have at least one project exhibited.

Approximately a dozen of the advanced high school students will set up their own displays in separate exhibit areas. The idea is to give the students an opportunity to set up a display as they would if they were a professional artist, which some of them may become.

Each year a professional artist from the area is invited to set up a display at the art show. This year's artist will be Roxy Loding.

This year will be the 18th consecutive year for the school art show.

New Zonta group formed

A branch of Zonta International, the service organization for executive and professional women, has been formed in Charlevoix with the assistance of members of the Petoskey Area Zonta Club.

Others elected to office were Mari Marshall, vice president; Kim Simpson, secretary; Edith Dale, treasurer; Helen Emmons and Janet Potter, two-year directors; and Kathryn Boss and Romane Everett, one-year directors.

Club members will meet the second and fourth Wednesday of each month at 11:45 at Alexander's Restaurant, beginning May 24. Those intersted in learning more about Zonta are invited to call Lani Ochs at 547-2424 for further information.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

There is a sticker hiding behind my office door that is very important to me. It serves as a subtle reminder each time I look at it. It is a little monk with his hands folded in prayer and an ear to ear grin on his face. Underneath him are the words "blessed are those who laugh for they shall last!"

I don't always succeed, but I do try to face most everything in life with a smile. I believe the world would change for the better in a hurry if more of us would let the joy of the Lord be our strength.

We so often speak of Jesus in such serious tones. We need to remember that he laughed at life as well. Though it doesn't mention any giggles, when I read in Mark 10 of people bringing their children to Jesus, I can see him in my mind picking them up, hugging them, bringing out their giggles. You know how kids are. Once they know somebody loves them, they go crazy. I have no doubt the Lord loved every minute of it.

I cannot help but wonder if some of what put the woman the well in John 4 at ease with Jesus involved laughter. We grow up convinced that we have to act certain ways as adults. When someone comes along and shatters that image of what we think we must pretend to be, it should happily set us free. The woman never expected Jesus to care about her. When He did, her happiness infected her whole town.

The Psalmist shouts "make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands." If you know God, then you know He is good. If you know God, then you know you have every reason not just to look at the world with a smile but with great joy and even laughter.

Try something this next week. Every time you see someone you know with one of those awful, gloomy, yucky "I-don't-think-I-can-stand-it-one-more-second" looks on their faces, give them something to smile about. Tell them God loves them and you love them too.

You'll discover something when you start passing smiles around. The more you give away, the bigger yours is going to get!

Magazine features area alliance

Economic development in the three counties of the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance – Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet – is the subject of a special, 28-page section in the current issue of North Force magazine. North Force is a quarterly, full-color, illustrated magazine about business and industrial development in the 30-county region of the northern lower peninsula, published by Harbor House Publishers, Inc. of Boyne City.

A major theme in the Northern Lakes profile is the importance of the light industrial sector – and the year-round, family sustaining jobs it produces – as a complement to the area's traditionally strong tourism base.

"Every area has the responsibility to provide jobs for its existing work force, including the young people who create a naturally produced demand for new jobs," said Dick Beagle, coordinator for the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance.

In the special supplement, North Force examines the history of the Northern Lakes Alliance, from its genesis five years ago as the Antrim-Charlevoix Community Growth Alliance to the recent addition of Emmet County. It also details the many resources made available by the Alliance and the current trend it represents of communities taking a more professional approach toward economic development.

"The economic development function today is complex, sophisticated and very, very competitive," said Beagle, who pointed out that Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are competing for new manufacturing jobs with other parts of the state, other regions of the country and even other countries.

Also included in the profile are stories on the infrastructure supporting light industry in the three-county area, North Central Michigan College's Institute for Business and Industry Training and a sampling of attitudes in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet Counties toward economic growth and development.

The Northern Lakes section in North Force is part of a continuing series in the magazine of local economic development profiles of Northern Michigan. Two thousand color reprints of the section are being provided by North Force to the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance to use in its job development efforts.

The issue is available from Harbor House Publishers, 221 Water St., Boyne City, MI 49712, (616) 582-2814.

Martin graveside services

Graveside services for Francis A. Martin will take place at 10 a.m., May 17 in St. Mary's cemetery. Father James K. Gardiner will officiate.

BUSINESS

Deborah Dortch stands beside a basket display in her new shop

Sweet Annie's opens

by PEG OHLE

The story has a familiar ring. Deborah Dortch and her husband, Gary Pauly, came to Charlevoix on vacations. They liked it so well they had to move here, even before retirement age.

But they are both keeping busy. Gary is continuing his traveling job in the health care field and Deborah has opened Sweet Annie's, a shop specializing in handmade bouquets, wreaths, and arrangements of dried flowers and herbs.

Sweet Annie's is located in the lower level of the building at 212 Bridge Street (the former Burnside's Building), and access is from the rear, overlooking the berthing spot of the "Mesquite."

For the curious: The shop is named for an herb, Sweet Annie, which is widely used in dried arrangements for its fragrance.

In addition to these handmade arrangements, Sweet Annie's is stocked with indoor and outdoor baskets of all sizes, shapes, and colors; packaged herbs and vinegars for salad-making; potpourri, sachet, powders, lotions, oil, and other fragrance items; hand-quilted pillows; gift items and decorated bags in which to wrap them; garden artifacts; and some antiques, lace, and linens, along with miscellany.

Deborah Dortch has had much experience working with plants and flowers. She holds a bachelor of science degree in horticulture and business from Michigan State University and formerly served as president of Plant Professionals, Inc. in Lansing.

Her future plans include made-to-order gift baskets for any occasion, shipped anywhere upon request, and conducting workshops on how to work with dried flowers and herbs.

Cindy Urban is assisting Dortch in the shop.

The new shopkeeper and her husband live in Clipperview and can be found aboard their Boston Whaler on good boating days. In addition to her business, Dortch devotes time to the Animal Protective Institute and Focus Forum, on which she serves as secretary-treasurer.

Joan Waha (center) is a golf pro who will be giving lessons at the municipal golf course this summer. She is shown with city recreation director Ike Boss (left) and golf course manager Bill Graves (right).

Golf pro to teach lessons

Charlevoix has a teaching golf pro and the city recreation department will offer golf lessons at the municipal golf course this summer.

Joan Waha, and LPGA teaching professional, will be giving lessons through the recreation department this summer and will also be giving private lessons. She's one of only six LPGA certified teaching professionals in Michigan. For the past seven years, she has been teaching at the Faulkwood Shores Country Club and Oakpoint Club in the Brighton area.

Joan and her husband moved to Charlevoix last November. She contacted city recreation director Ike Boss and asked if there was a need for someone to teach golf lessons.

Boss had been looking for a golf pro for years for the city recreation program. In recent years, some golfers from the community have volunteered their time, but this is the first time in several years the program has had a certified professional.

This summer the recreation department will offer lessons for both young and old. Waha notes that she was 35 when she took up golfing and golf is a game where it's never too late to learn.

There will be two five-week sessions meeting once a week. The first session will begin June 12 while the second will start July 24.

Kids will be divided into three age groups: eight and under; nine through twelve; thirteen to seventeen. Classes for the young will take place in Monday mornings. If Monday morning classes fill up, there will also be classes on Tuesday mornings. The cost is $30 per five-week session for the first young person and an additional $10 for each sibling.

Adult sessions will also begin June 12 and July 24, but they will take place Monday evening. Classes for beginners will start at 5:30 p.m. Intermediate classes will start at 6:30 p.m. Cost for adults is $45 per session with four rather than five lessons.

To sign up for lessons, people should phone the recreation department at 547-3253.

Waha will also give private lessons for $15 per half hour. To arrange a private lesson, people should call the municipal golf course or contact Waha at home.

Waha says she's very excited about the lessons.

"When you're moving to a new area, you just don't know what to expect. But I'm looking forward to having the season begin and meeting all of the people."

"ILLINOIS" STRANDED ON THE BEACH NORTH OF CHARLEVOIX ABOUT 1907

"I was only three then, but I well remember the tugs "Taylor" and "Parmalee," shown above assisting the steamer "Illinois" which was grounded north of Charlevoix in 1907," writes Ralph Hamilton, who loaned us this picture. According to Hamilton, the "Illinois" carried freight and passengers between Chicago and Makcinac Island and the main job of the tugs was towing rafts of logs from Boyne City to the Nicholls saw mill in Charlevoix. No, the "Illinois" is not on fire. That's the smoke of the Beaver Islander, which is pulled up to the far side of the steamer, says Hamilton.

Seniors to roast pig

The pig that Dr. George Wright purchased at the Petunia Auction last year will be the featured attraction at the Charlevoix High School senior class year-end party, a pig roast.

Dr. Wright's gift to the graduating class will be roasted and served, along with all the trimmings, on Memorial Day at the Yacht Club.

According to Carol Healey, mother of a graduating senior, for the first time some 20 parents have joined with the seniors in making plans for the party.

"We want to make it a fun party, substance-free", Healey explained. "Among other things, we hope to have several door prizes, which we will be calling on Charlevoix merchants to donate".

This party is in addition to the annual senior class dinner dance which was held recently at the Weathervane Inn.

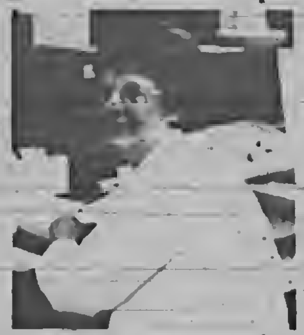
She is never too busy to visit with the patients and help them in any way she can. When it comes to performing her job as a housekeeper, she can't be beat. She's efficient and ambitious. She never complains and never hesitates to go out of her way to help the nursing staff or her coworkers."



Gloria Wilhelm

., our nurse assistant, is here nere helping everyone, and the patients are always her first concern. Gloria can always find something that needs doing and we can always count on her to volunteer to pitch in. She has a knack for knowing which nurses are in the most need of her assistance and which tasks are first priority. Charlevoix plans to join other cities in power pool

Charlevoix's city council made a decision May 8 which over the years will have multimillion dollar ramifications.

At a special meeting, the council voted to join the Michigan Public Power Agency (MPPA) pool to purchase electricity for the community.

All that most people need to know about electricity is that the lights go on when a switch is flipped and will continue to do so as long as the electric bills get paid.

The process of producing, purchasing and distributing power to get it to the light switch is more complex.

The city decision to join the power pool followed several years of research. Electric department supervisor Ed Whitley was the city's point man on the research. Roger Westenbrock, a local resident who has worked in the power business for decades, has volunteered his services in advising the city.

MPPA is a cooperative formed by a group of communities to supply and purchase electricity.

Charlevoix has a municipal electric distribution system. In other words, power lines and transformers in the city are owned by the city.

Many years ago, Charlevoix also had a municipal electric production system, i.e. a city power plant. However, that system has been shut down for several years and Charlevoix has been purchasing its power from other sources, primarily Consumers Power Co.

In the early 1970s there was a federal justice department case involving Consumers Power Co. In the settlement resolving that case, Consumers agreed to sell a portion of the Campbell power plant in southwestern Michigan and to sell transmission services on its lines.

Charlevoix was one of about a dozen Michigan communities which chose to invest in the Campbell plant. For its investment, Charlevoix is now entitled to 2 megawatts of power from the Campbell plant.

Over the years, the investment in Campbell has proven to be a financially wise decision. Power from the Campbell plant has been less costly overall than Consumer Power's general wholesale price.

Charlevoix has also invested in the Belle River power plant. Beginning in 1991, Charlevoix

Council and Chamber quarrel

The city council and Chamber of Commerce are at odds.

During review of the bills at Monday evening's council meeting, councilman Norm Probert suggested withholding payment on one of the bills on the list. From the initial council conversation regarding Probert's proposal, it was unclear what the bill pertained to.

After members of the audience asked what the bill pertained to, councilmen explained that it was for payment of $558.32 to the Chamber of Commerce.

The monthly payment is something which the city has made to the chamber for decades. Councilmen termed the payment a contribution. Chamber director Jacqueline Merta indicated the money is not a contribution, but compensation the city pays the chamber for performing services the city would otherwise have to take care of.

Asked why he now wanted to withhold the funds, Probert said he questions chamber involvement in polictical activity.

In recent weeks, the chamber has moved toward formation of a political action committee (PAC). Chamber member Bob Hoffman attempted to explain to the council that the PAC will not be funded by the chamber. The PAC will be comprised of chamber members, but funding will come only from the PAC members and the PAC board will be separate from the chamber board.

Councilman Ken Whitley asked if the Chamber is supporting certain political candidates. Councilman Butch Russell asked if some chamber members have resigned from the chamber due to efforts to form a PAC.

Merta prefaced her comments by saying that chamber PACs are nothing new and that other chambers throughout the state have them. In regard to the PAC supporting candidates, she said the PAC is still in the formative stages and doesn't have a board yet. Regarding chamber members resigning because of the PAC, she said she has received no letters from members to that effect.

Although there was no roll call vote taken to determine how each councilman felt about withholding the $558.32, the money was withheld.

Ahead-lines

Petunia mania strikes again

For the past seven years Charlevoix has planted petunias from one end of town to the other. Operation petunia is a project which has taken root, sprouted, blossomed and bloomed.

This year, once again Charlevoix will martial forces to face the petunia challenge; a challenge from which the fair city refuses to "backpetal."

At 5 p.m., Thursday, May 25, petunia planters will take to the streets, intent upon planting almost 50,000 petunias.

As in the past, block captains will coordinate planting. At 6 p.m., following the petunia planting, there will be a picnic in East Park.

Among several new aspects of the petunia program this year, the Concerned Citizens anti substance abuse group will hold an auction in conjunction with the picnic.

Last year, weed blankets were used to keep weeds out of the petunia beds. The weed blankets have been scrapped this year. While the blankets kept the weeds out, they failed to allow sufficient water to get to the petunias. Given their proximity to the hot street, the petunias have to be frequently deluged with water.

This year, manpower and womanpower will keep the petunia beds clean.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has hired a project manager for the summer to oversee petunia weeding. They will be working with the Youth Corps and jail work release program to get labor. Beginning May 20, between two and six trustees along with a supervisor from the jail will help weed the petunias for half a day each week.

A local women's sorority has also offered to take responsibility for weeding a significant section of petunias on the north side.

Other additions to this year's petunia project are: the sale of flats of petunias for $7.50 in the park: free trays of petunias given to middle school students with tickets indicating they planted for half an hour; a middle school petunia prince and princess chosen on the basis of community service, scholarship and participation in petunia planting.

There will also be a fifth color of petunia, purple, added to the petunia beds this year.

... public power pool

will receive part of its power from that plant. In 1991, Charlevoix will receive 400 kilowatts of power from Belle River. That figure will increase from year to year. From 1995 on, Charlevoix will receive its full entitlement of 4 megawatts of power from Belle River.

Currently, Charlevoix is also purchasing a portion of its power from a power plant owned by the city of Lansing.

Charlevoix's power needs vary from hour to hour. In the early a.m. hours, when people are sleeping, power demands are significantly less than in midafternoon when power demand peaks.

Power prices are set according to peak demand. The logic is that generation capacity must be set according to peak demand, not by average demand. As an example, even if a community has an average demand of 10 kilowatts and a peak demand of 100 kilowatts, the power supplier still has to have a 100 kilowatt generator. Therefore, the higher the peak demand, the higher the production costs and the higher the power costs.

Charlevoix purchases power from Lansing during peak demand times. That means the community's peak demand from Consumers Power is less, therefore the community is able to purchase power for a lower rate.

Even with the Campbell and Lansing power purchases, a significant amount of Charlevoix's power still comes from Consumers Power Co.

Although Charlevoix has decided to join the MPPA pool, due to a two-year termination clause in a contract with Consumers Power, Charlevoix will still purchase much of the city's electricity from Consumers for the next two years.

However, following the council decision, after two years Charlevoix will purchase all of its power through the MPPA pool.

Of the communities in the pool, some produce more power than they use while others use more than they produce. Charlevoix is in a position where for most of the day it uses more than Campbell and Belle River will provide, but there may be times when Charlevoix is able to sell power to the pool rather than purchase it.

Through the pool, Charlevoix may end up purchasing electricity not only from other pool communities, but also through Consumers Power or other power companies.

Power can be purchased on three levels: retail, a homeowner buying it from the city; wholesale, the city buying it from a power company or pool; interchange, a power company or pool buying it from another power company or pool.

The MPPA will have an office which will purchase any power above what the pool communities can supply through the interchange system, which is the system offering the lowest rates. Charlevoix or any of the other communities in the MPPA pool wouldn't be able to benefit from interchange system alone.

New funding plans made during closed meetings

After holding a series of closed meetings which may have violated Michigan's Open Meetings Act, the city, school and county are proposing a new formula for divvying up tax revenues involving the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) districts.

The proposed agreement gives the school system more money from the DDA and TIFA districts.

Key terms in the agreement are:

Beginning in 1990, the city will refund the school district 50 percent of taxes which would have gone to the school if there were not a DDA. That figure will drop to 40 percent when the TIFA is abolished.

The TIFA will end in 1991.

The DDA and TIFA will not receive any additional money as a result of voted millage increases.

The city will return 100 percent of DDA and TIFA revenue generated by last year's voted millage increase for the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The proposed agreement is null and void if the state reforms the school finance system.

The DDA will end in 1996 unless the school board approves extending it.

Grandvue still serving county

by PEG OHLE

The sun is shining a little brighter on Grandvue Medical Care Facility these days.

That's because the operational millage voted by the people of Charlevoix County last August has taken off the strain of overdue bills and insufficient funding. They are now all caught up, and with money coming in regularly, the facility can devote all its efforts to its number one job—caring for its patients.

One change the regular cash flow has permitted is the addition of enough help to allow patients to select their food in advance from menus and be served at tables. Previously, most patients were served cafeteria-style. The new method of serving has won wide acclaim among patients, including those who are confined to their rooms.

The fact that the Medical Care Facility was 98.92 percent occupied in 1988 and now has a waiting list would indicate that Grandvue is the nursing home of choice for most area residents. And almost all of the patients are Charlevoix County residents. "We never take an out-of-county resident if a county resident is on the waiting list," Administrator Regina Shafer explained.

In addition to caring for the personal needs of patients, Grandvue employees devote much time to many happy "extras." Every three months or so they organize special entertainment which often continues as long as a week, as did the recent "Grand Ol' Opry, Grandvue Style". The next event, to coincide with high school proms, will be "An Evening to Remember." Patients will dress up, enjoy a special dinner at tables decorated with fresh flowers,

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

Sunday afternoon, I looked out into the back yard and saw something red bobbing among the branches of a hedge.

I walked out to see what it was and found that it was a red balloon filled with helium. A red ribbon was attached to the balloon. The other end of the ribbon was tied to a marking pen and three cards.

When I read the cards, I discovered the balloon had drifted into my back yard from an exotic, far-away place; Harbor Springs.

Each of the cards was signed by some kid. The balloons apparently were released by a Sunday school class. Along with the name of a kid, each card had some religious information and the address of a church which I guess I'm supposed to send the cards back to.

I'm not sure yet exactly what I'll do with the balloon cards. I have ruled out just sending them back like I'm supposed to.

When these little Harbor Springs kids launched the balloon, I'm sure they held romantic visions of it traveling much farther away than Charlevoix. To have some no-name guy from Charlevoix send their cards back would be a disappointment.

If I were going to send the cards back, I'd arrange for them to be sent back from somewhere else. I've got friends from college who live in Illinois, Texas and California. I could mail the cards out to one of them with instructions to send the cards to the Harbor Springs kids.

That'd give the kids a thrill.

Better skill, I could mail one card to each of those three friends and have them send the cards back to the kids in Harbor Springs. I can just see those kids wondering how three cards attached to the same balloon could end up with one card dropping in Illinois, one in Texas and one in California. Those wind currents must do some pretty peculiar things at high altitudes.

If I really wanted to get the kids worked up, I could give the cards to the German exchange student at the high school. Tell her to hang on to them until she gets home and then mail them back from there.

There's an environmental downside to these balloon launches. I once heard a guy on public radio talking about how helium balloons launched by school children are landing in lakes and oceans and creating problems, along with being litter, the broken balloons get eaten by turtles and birds which occasionally choke on them.

So with that in mind, I probably shouldn't mail the cards back at all. It would only be encouraging the kids to continue doing something they shouldn't have been doing in the first place.

But I hate to disappoint the kids. Ogre that I am, I'm not that cold-hearted. There's got to be a better way, some compromise solution.

What about this?

I've got a cousin who lives in Brazil. I'll get her address and send her the cards: by mail, not by helium balloon.

I'll have her send the cards back to the kids in Harbor Springs. But I'll have her include a note written in Portugese. When the kids find someone to translate the note, they'll discover that it says, "I found this balloon in a tree in the rain forest. Please don't send anymore. The rain forest has enough problems without you bombarding it with litter."

I figure that way the kids will have the excitement of feeling their balloon floated for thousands of miles, but will also get a needed environmental lesson.

It's the best solution I've been able to come up with.

Thanks for dance

Dear Editor,

How does one thank people who are so wonderful? That's the dilemma of the Senior Citizen's of Charlevoix today.

The Barnard Grange and the American Legion's membership went far beyond the call of duty on Saturday, April 29, 1989, by sponsoring a spectacular "Spring Fling" dance which netted a total of $1,369 toward the senior citizen's building fund.

Music was provided by Jasper and His Tag-A-Longs, food by the senior citizens and help from one and all of the three organizations, it was great!

A special thanks goes to the Bill Stevens' and Louie McKenzie's for all the preparation and planning, and the membership of both organizations for the time and effort put into this event.

Because of people like you, the senior citizen's of the City of Charlevoix can look forward to a "Fall Ball" in their new building. Maybe???

Thanks, one and all.

Council bungles twice

One action the city council took Monday evening was spiteful and petty. A second issue, which the council fortunately delayed action on, deserves a public hearing before action is taken.

In the petty and spiteful action, the council withheld $558.32 from the Chamber of Commerce. Depending on who's talking, the money is either a traditional city contribution to the Chamber, or compensation the city pays the Chamber for doing things the city would otherwise have to do.

In this instance, the important question is, why did the council suddenly jerk the money?

The Chamber of Commerce is working toward establishing a political action committee (PAC). Apparently that's induced some council paranoia.

At this time, the PAC is still only in the formative stages. It doesn't have a board yet. And that board which it doesn't yet have hasn't taken a stand on a single issue.

Where does that leave the council's position on the PAC? They're not sure who's on it or what it stands for...but they're against it. Nothing like keeping an open mind:

The matter deserving a public hearing concerns a proposed new formula for allocating tax revenues from the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA).

Over the past several months, city, school and possibly county officials have met in closed sessions and developed a new formula which will give the school more of the DDA and TIFA money.

The money being discussed is tax revenue; public money. It was at least bad policy and possibly a violation of the Open Meetings Act for the public officials to gather behind closed doors and discuss what they're going to do with this public money.

Granted, the closed sessions may have only occurred because of a misinterpretation of the Open Meetings Act. It should be noted that Monday evening, councilman Earl Muma said he wants the matter open.

In fairness to the public, the council should set a public hearing on the proposed DDA, TIFA fund distribution formula. The public has a right to digest the proposal and voice their input before action is taken by the council or the other public bodies. Afterall, the public is footing the bill.

Out of the Blue

"QUOTE ... UNQUOTE"

Speaker Wright has been insisting on a speedy hearing. As the investigation continues, still more questions arise.

"Nothing can be done at once hastily and prudently."

Keep the canal

The other night a good friend and I went at it hammer and tongs in the dog food aisle at Oleson's over what role the United States should play in helping Panama oust its high-handed military ruler, Gen. Manuel Noriega, a man accused by the United States of dealing drugs.

Noreiga's latest abomination — the rigging of the national elections on May 11 and having his goons beat up opposition candidates — was the last straw.

George Bush on Thursday ordered almost 2,000 American troops into Panama, to bolster a force of about 10,000 U.S. servicemen already stationed on the isthmus. Many of the 30,000 other Americans living in Panama, including diplomatic families, have been herded onto U.S. military reservations for their own protection.

Mild-mannered Bush is obviously piqued.

But observers close to the scene claim Bush is ignoring his real ace-in-the-hole: A yet-to-be-implemented treaty with Panama which will turn the Panama Canal over to Panamanians for administration in the 1990s. Insiders say Bush would never dream of abrogating the treaty and risk the good name of the United States among law-loving peoples of the earth.

I say .... Well, I won't say it, this being a family newspaper.

But I don't hold the Panama Canal treaty exactly sacred.

First of all, we were not dealing with Noriega's strong-arm government when the treaty was drawn up.

Secondly, the treaty has never been popular with the American people. Sure, the canal has outlived its military usefulness. Defense of the United States no longer depends on who controls the canal. Furthermore the canal cannot accommodate many of the world's larger ships. But Americans generally feel that since the United States built the canal, it belongs to them.

Thirdly, could a government as unstable as Noriega's ever manage the canal impartially? I am confident that with Noriega in charge, the canal would become a political tool, giving that pint-sized Caribbean nation an international clout all out of proportion to its population and resources.

I, for one, think George Bush should notify Panama that he intends to have the treaty declared null and void unless the people can come up with a more reputable leader than Noriega.

No physical threats are needed. No troop movements. No economic sanctions. No whipping up anti-Noriega sentiment among other Latin American countries.

Just: "Hey, you get rid of this guy and put in an acceptable replacement or the treaty's off."

The friend I encounted in the dog food aisle at Oleson's says I am just as immoral as the national leadership, even though Bush apparently doesn't share my sentiments. But I know from auld acquaintance that my friend, a rock-ribbed Democrat, was referring to Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan, who certainly were involved in considerable skulduggery during their salad days in Washington.

He also accused me of letting "the end to justify the means."

I tell you, he has me figured out to a T. He is absolutely right.

I don't believe Panama — with Noriega at the helm — is in any position to manage the Panama Canal.

Furthermore, I think that Bush and Congress would be remiss in their responsibility to the American people if they allowed the treaty to be implemented.

These agreements, after all are not exactly written in stone. Just think back to the treaty granting independence to the Philippine Islands, in the days leading up to World War II. As war clouds gathered and fighting commenced, it became abundantly clear that the Philippines weren't ready to meet the Japanese challenge in the Pacific as an independent nation.

So the effective date of the treaty was postponed until the war was over and calm returned to the Pacific.

We could do the same thing in Panama. Now is scarcely the time for the United States to relinquish control of any holding so fraught with symbolic importance as the Panama Canal.

Teachers resent column

Dear Editor:

After reading your article entitled, "Kindergarten Recruits," we felt the need to reply to the negative statements and assumptions you made concerning our recent kindergarten registration for the fall 1989 classes.

Charlevoix is well known for its excellent school system. Many people put forth a lot of thought and effort into developing our present kindergarten registration program. The children experienced a ninety minute mini-session of what a kindergarten day is like. The children participated in various activities including play time, a large group interaction time, a small group interaction time, a short work time, snack time and a physical interaction time which involved dancing, and a marching rhythm band.

We feel that you made many erroneous assumptions about our program after spending a total of about three minutes in the classroom. We wish you would have had the courtesy to ask us questions about our registration procedures before writing your article.

During Kindergarten registration we try to assess a child's total readiness - socially, emotionally, and academically. If we have questions or concerns regarding a child, the parents are contacted through the school counselor for a conference, and additional information is sometimes obtained from a preschool teacher. We do not form opinions that are "etched in stone" through a one day observation of a child. Your inferences as to comments or conclusions that we might have been writing down on various children were totally off base. Kindergarten registration does give us the opportunity to share with parents ideas that will help the child have a positive school experience.

As teachers, our goal is to make learning an enjoyable experience. If a child is developmentally ready for kindergarten, his chance for success throughout school is greatly enhanced. We are grateful that Charlevoix Public Schools can enlist the help of professional people to help assess school readiness. The observations of a speech therapist, school social worker, school psychologist, school counselor, and the classroom teachers are invaluable. Futhermore, many parents have commented on how much fun their child had at kindergarten registration.

We live in a wonderful town with a great school system. Let's look positively at what our schools are doing. Teachers play an important part in a child's life and future. We could all use a little encouragement in our goal of helping each child achieve a successful school experience.

Not impressed by elevator

Editor,

Yes, Bob, Old Island is a child's dream; not only a child's dream but an adult's dream as well. I remember thirty years ago when my teenage children paddled their canoes up Old River and around the island, just as I had done twenty years before them. Earlier still they had played pirate's cove on the "twisting shadowy paths carpeted with dead leaves and pine needles" where they lived in a separate world.

I am glad that this bit of paradise still exists, and that you believe it "inconceivable that the Chicago Club would ever part with a square inch of it." I hope your belief is better founded than mine was. I had the same belief and faith in the wisdom of Charlevoix's city fathers. I was totally certain that they would acquire the property on either side of US 31 going south down the hill to the bridge. I envisioned green grass on either side of the highway, with paths and benches and perhaps a riot of flowers, looking west to the pierheads and Lake Michigan; sometimes angry and stormy, sometimes blue and shining, but always one of the greatest bodies of fresh water in the world; looking east to Round Lake, a natural harbor busy with every kind of water craft, and beyond it to our own Coast Guard and Lake Charlevoix.

In my heart of hearts I believe this would have been more valuable, and given more happiness to the inhabitants, the friends, and the visitors to Charlevoix than Edgewater Inn or Pointes North, even though they have an elevator. Just as Old Island is more desirable on Old River than another Manhattan condominium would be.

Tower not a tourist trap

Editor,

I read with interest the news that voters will decide the water tower's fate in the August election (May 3, 1989). As one of the property owners next door to the water tower, my wife and I own a condominium unit in the Sand Castle, I read with dismay the suggestion the water tower be turned into a tourist attraction by making it into a viewing platform. Its presence adds a bit of charm to the City given its long existence. However, to allow its use as a viewing platform would certainly lessen the quality of life on Park Avenue and diminish, if not destroy, one of the loveller streets in the town.

listen to music of their era, and perhaps dance a few steps.

Grandvue patients are also served by a dedicated group of volunteers who spend many hours at the Facility "helping out." They arrange and participate in church services, serve in the beauty shop, spend time in diversional therapy, sit and visit to help pass a lonely hour, and do many other caring things to add to patients' comforts.

The Grandvue Medical Care Facility Auxiliary, through several community events, raises funds for special pieces of equipment. Among these items have been whirlpools, beauty shop equipment, patio furniture, rocking chairs, and feeding tables for the inside, and fencing and shrubbery for the outside.

Most Grandvue employees and many auxiliary members come from the South Arm-East Jordan area; not far from the Grandvue site. Some have had family members or close friends who were patients; some of the patients were once employees.

"We have a feeling of family here and we like it that way", says Shafer, who is in her second year as Administrator.

The week of May 14 to 20 is National Nursing Home Week. To celebrate it, Grandvue will focus on its employees and the services they render the community. There will be a recognition dinner party Friday evening, May 19, at which five, 10 and 20-year employees will receive awards. They are:

Lynn Carson, 20 years; Lorraine Hawley, Bev Hopper, Theresa Skinkle, and Robert Martin, 10 years; and Penny Drury, Marguerite Ford, Shirley Metcalf, Linda Chase, Gloria Frederick, Gloria Morris, Cheryl Beal, Brenda Kline, Doris Kowalske, Cindy Skop, and Martha Weisler, five years.

Participating in the awards ceremony will be members of the Charlevoix County Board of Social Services: Condit Drury of Charlevoix, Eileen Rouse of Boyne City, and Jane Mayhew of East Jordan.,

Grandvue is fortunate in having many long-term employees. Two of them, Ella Tousley, laundry supervisor, and Kay Peck, residential unit supervisor, have been there over 35 years. Maryann Sutliff, nurses aide, has been there over 25 years, and Helen Deming, social worker, has been there over 20 years.

Grandvue consists of two separate units, the medical care unit has 73 skilled nursing care beds, and the residential unit (for those who need less care) has 27 beds.

Grandvue grew out of the county poor farm ("Keeper of the Poor") which opened in 1891, when two children, a 15-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl were admitted as the first occupants. In 1949, the facility became an infirmary, and in 1958, the first patients were admitted to what is now known as Grandvue Medical Care Facility. The north wing was added in 1968 and the residential unit was added in 1979.

Record books dating back to Keeper of the Poor days, and some of the old infirmary equipment are kept on display at Grandvue. It is interesting to note that one record book is called "Inmate Record, Charlevoix County Infirmary." The infirmary equipment includes steel injection needles complete with sterilizer, a monstrous-looking metal varporizer, green glass storage bottles, and many other items now replaced by plastics. The one nice item is an embroidered white lawn hospital gown, supposedly of the type made by members of an auxiliary or sewing circle and issued to all women patients, Grandvue Medical Care Facility is funded by Medicaid, Medicare, and private sources as well as by the county. It is managed by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services and the Social Services Board. County Commissioner Walter Hufford is the County Board's liaison person.

At the present time, union negotiations are being considered which would put some Grandvue employees in the Service Employees International Union. Those employees would include nurses aides, residential care aides, diversional activity aides, physical therapy aides, housekeeping employees, dietary employees, laundry employees, and plant operations employees.

Citizens' group hosts auction

"Bring your white elephants and other un-needed items to the big tent in East Park on petunia-planting day, Thursday, May 25," urges Ralph MacRae.

The Concerned Citizens of Charlevoix, who are wrestling with the problems of drug and alcohol abuse among Charlevoix young people, are having an auction that day. Beginning about 5:30, items will be sold by a "silent auction" (buyers writing out bids) followed by an auctioneer who will not be silent while selling the remaining items.

All proceeds from the auction will go to support the work of the Concerned Citizens group, particularly in training persons to recognize and deal with substance abuse problems.

"Keep Charlevoix Beautiful welcomes the participation of the Concerned Citizens group in our petunia-planting picnic," said Bruce MacArthur. "We are completely supportive of their goals".

County transit hosts open house

While National Transportation Week is being observed throughout the United States this week, Charlevoix County is having a special event: showing off the County's brand new Transit System building in Boyne City.

The building, which cost almost $400,000, paid for by local, state, and federal funds, houses the Transit System buses, dispatch quarters, and offices of the Transit System as well as offices of the County Commission on Aging.

Located at 1050 Brockway Street, behind the County Road Commission, the Transit System building will be officially dedicated at 11:30 a.m. Thursday, May 18, with an open house all day.

The Charlevoix County Transit System began operation in July, 1980. It serves all but the far eastern part of the County and Beaver Island on a weekday basis with transportation to places of employment, medical appointments, shopping, and other activities. The buses provide door-to-door service, but reservations must be made in advance by calling 582-6900.

FAMILY

Taylor-Purvis

Tracie & Shawn Purvis

Pink larkspur and pew bows decorated St. Mary's Catholic Church for the May 5 afternoon wedding of Tracie Taylor and Shawn Purvis of Charlevoix.

Father James Gardiner officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 150 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Taylor of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Purvis, also of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gleaming white satin gown frosted with embroidery silk lace. It was fashioned with a Victorian neckline and renaissance sleeves, accented by sequins and hand-sewn seed pearls. The cathedral train was outlined with scalloped edging, and the veil featured a satin bow and rose accented with hand-sewn pearls and lilies of the valley.

The bridal bouquet was composed of white mini carnations and roses with ferns and stephanotis.

Margo Boyd served as maid of honor, and Jill Taylor, the bride's sister, and Stephanie Button were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length gowns of pink taffeta made with shirred and ruffled shoulders, princess bodices, and Basque waistlines. They each carried a single American Beauty rose.

Bethany Purvis, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl, wearing a pink taffeta dress with cap sleeves and a large bow in the back. She carried a basket of roses.

Kevin Purvis served his brother as best man, and Loren Purvis, another brother, was groomsman, along with Elever Dass. Dass and Loren Purvis also served as ushers.

The parents of the newlyweds hosted a reception at the Edgewater Inn following the marriage ceremony. Melissa Sandahl was in charge of the guest book and cutting the cake. The rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at Nanny's Old Place, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Purvis are at home in Charlevoix, where the bride is employed at Don's I.G.A. and the bridegroom at Midwest International. (Photography by Don Smith)

Fochtman-Culbertson

Former Charlevoix residents Deborah Lynn Fochtman and Craig Edward Culbertson were married April 8 in the Chapel by the Sea on Captiva Island, Florida.

The newlyweds will continue to live in Chicago, where they have both been making their homes for several years.

The bride is the daughter of William E. Fochtman of Charlevoix and M. Ina Fochtman of Haslett. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Picha of Livonia and Charlevoix, and the late Edgar A. Culbertson.

The Rev. William Schram officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's floor-length gown was fashioned from ivory silk brocade with a Basque bodice, sweetheart neckline edged in self-piping, and elbow-length sleeves which came to a soft bridal point. A two-tiered pleated peplum fell from the waistline. Her small brocade headpiece was adorned with silk flower and pearl trim and featured a short veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of six cymbidium orchids and September flowers.

Deborah and Craig Culbertson

There were no attendants at the wedding and the newlyweds remained on Captiva Island for their honeymoon. A wedding reception will be held this summer.

The bride is employed by Grant-Jacoby as an advertising account executive, and the bridegroom is employed at the Chicago Board of Trade as a risk manager for LIT America. (Photography by David Meardon)

Cancer lock-up

Arrests won't be the only thing being made this May 24th. A lot of money will be raised by Charlevoix area residents for the American Cancer Society.

The Charlevoix City Chief of Police, Dennis Halverson and Charlevoix County Sheriff, George Lasater, will be arresting local citizens. Law enforcement officials will be taking mock offenders to jail at Nanny's Restaurant. There a judge will set bail for their release. This bail money will be used for cancer research and treatment. The goal is to raise over $8,000 dollars.

The Great American Lock-Up is scheduled from 9 a.m. through 4 p.m. on Wednesday, May 24. If you would like to have an associate, friend, or family member arrested phone 547-8000 on May 24 to place an arrest. For further information before that date call 547-2101.

These four middle school math students will be in Mount Pleasant this weekend competing in the state finals of the Michigan Council of Math Teachers competition. The four qualified for state finals by placing in the top 25 at a regional competition last month. The four and their regional finishers are (from left): Bert Elliott (19th), Dan Jackson (24th), Jesse Beatty (6th) and Matt Smith (5th).

Arts program

Charlevoix County Recreation Services is setting up a summer arts program for children.

The classes, to be held in a local school building, will be taught by Elizabeth Wilson and will cover the period from June 19 to August 16.

Classes include sculpture for children in grades two through eight; print workshop for children in grades four through 10; jewelry making for children in grades two through eight; and ballet, dance for children in grades one through five.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

ENEMY IN THE HOME

One of the early episodes of "Archie Bunker" has Archie in one of his many moralistic arguments. With a great deal of righteous pride he points to the Bible which is lying on the television set and says, "There is where we get our morals!" Whereupon Edith responds, "You mean the television set?!"

How much truth is there in that statement - question for your family? We know that we cannot isolate ourselves from reality. We and our children, are frequently abused and offended by blasphemy, vulgarity, violence, adultery, fornication and irreligion.

Most of us have a little box - the center of our family room - that pipes all these things in our home hour after hour. In real life situations when we see these sins, we get a chance to see the whole situation. But with the artificiality of television drama sin is glamorized, vulgarity is accepted as real manliness or womanliness, profanity is an essential of an expressive vocabulary, people die violently without bleeding or hurting, and skepticism is accepted as a sophisticated attitude. The use of alcoholic beverages is glamorized and portrayed as being successful in life. Adultery, fornication and sexual perversions are shown as a normal way of life. And if you are not involved in them, something is abnormality wrong with you.

Where do we get our morals - the Bible or the television set? Perhaps the answer to that question is best given in another question. Which is central to our home life - God, Church, Family Altar and Bible Reading or the television set?

Barnard Cemetery workbee planned

The annual workbee at the Barnard Cemetery is scheduled for 6 p.m. May 22. Volunteers are asked to show up at that time to help with tidy up the small cemetery.

Missionaries speak at Baptist Church

The Ron and Sandy Lashuay family will be speaking at the First Baptist Church of Charlevoix on the evening of May 24, 1989. They are missionaries with New Tribes Mission and have served in the Philippine Islands since March of 1978.

They work on the southern island of Mindanao, which is the second largest island and about 500 miles south of Manila, the nation's capital. They live in a remote area amongst the Banwaon tribal people who still practice sacrificing animals to their ancestorial spirits. They teach and translate the Bible, sharing the message of salvation through Jesus Christ alone.

The 7 p.m. service will be preceded with a 6 p.m. family potluck. A love offering will be received. The public is invited to attend.

Lake plan faces first challenge

by PEG OHLE

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan, conceived and brought to maturity in three years by a committee of 15 county residents, is receiving its first test in a complaint lodged by the City of Boyne City.

Boyne City is angered by the County Planning Commission's denial of approval for the city's application for federal and state funds with which to enlarge the Boyne City Marina.

In not approving the application, the Planning Commission noted that if the marina were enlarged as planned, the number of boat slips, rack boat units, and car-trailer parking units at launching facilities would be greater than recommended in the Lake Management Plan.

The plan calls for 100 feet of shoreline for each car-trailer parking space at boat launching facilities. While the exact shoreline footage owned by the city is not available, it is agreed to be under 5,000. The city has 52 car-trailer parking units and 20 marina units which, with the planned additional 16 marina slips would add up to a requirement of about 8,800 linear feet under Lake Plan recommendations.

Although the city's boat launching facilities already exceed the Lake Plan's limits, they are acceptable under the "grand-father clause" because they were in xistence prior to completion of the Lake Plan. And added spaces would not be in compliance with the world and spirit of the Lake Plan, the Planning Commission reasoned.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Plan was adopted by the County Planning Commission on January 7, 1988. It was then presented to the County Board of Commissioners, who, on March 23, 1988, "acknowledged receipt" of the plan and urged municipalities to study the plan, discuss its recommendations, and adopt those they considered appropriate.

It is being argued that since neither the Board of Commissioners nor Boyne City adopted the plan, it cannot be used as a basis for approving or disapproving any municipal or private plan that would affect the environment of Lake Charlevoix.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee was set up in 1985 amid much fanfare. It was charged with developing a long-range plan "detailing methods of managing the use, growth, and quality of Lake Charlevoix and its adjacent lands".

Each committee member represented a unit of government or organization with special interests in Lake Charlevoix. They served without remuneration, attending a long series of meetings covering many facets of lake and lake shore life and use: recreation, fish habitats, marinas and docks, pollution, general development, and many more. When the plan was completed, it was hailed generally as an excellent guideline for local units to use in planning for environmentally sound development of their Lake Charlevoix shoreline.

Boyne City Manager Randy Frykberg, in objecting to the Planning Commission's decision, said expansion of the Boyne City Marina has been under consideration for several years, even before the Lake Management Plan was conceived, and the plan should not enter into present marina expansion proceedings.

Courier files include a copy of a letter written on August 27, 1987 by Frykberg to the Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee in which he reports that the "Boyne City Commmission, Planning Board, Parks and Recreation Board, and City Administration have reviewed the draft Lake Charlevoix Management Plan and offer several comments." Among the comments is the following paragraph:

"Limiting marina and launch ramp sites and space only to that which presently exists or is approved for construction may not be a fair means of arriving at controlling the number of boats, at least for Boyne City. At present, we have the smallest municipal marina on the lake and the launch ramp pressures have tremendously increased just this year. The Michigan State Waterways Commission is pursuing options for expansion.

The City does not recommend acceptance of Items 2. b. and d." (which refer to limiting marina and launch ramp sites).

Boyne City has requested that the County Planning Commission hold a special meeting to reconsider its action. Larry Sullivan, County Planner, says that meeting may be held some time next week. Among the options Boyne City may take to be in compliance with the Lake Management Plan, according to Sullivan, is acquiring additional shoreline slippage rights from the lakefront Bendix-Courter and Essex manufacturing companies, or from Young State Park. "Or, if the Planning Commission desires to do so, it could amend the Lake Management Plan to provide a greater allocation of dock spaces to governmental units," he added.

County building strong

The spring building season got off to a good start in April, when 19 new houses were started in Charlevoix County, 11 of them in the Charlevoix area.

Permits were issued by the Department of Building Inspection for three new houses in Charlevoix Township, three in Hayes Township, two in Marion Township, one in Eveline Township, one in South Arm Township, and one in the city of Charlevoix.

In addition to the 19 new residences, another 19 permits were issued for residential additions, garages, commercial buildings, mobile homes, signs, and outbuildings.

BUSINESS

Delores Grenus and Mark Bellamy stand in front of their Aruba Trading Company, a new shop on Bridge Street.

Aruba store opens

A new business bearing the name "Aruba Trading Company" will open in Charlevoix next week.

Aruba, like the tropical island?

"Yes", said Delores Grenus, owner of the Aruba Trading Company. "We were in Aruba last Christmas time and came up with the idea of starting a Trading Company there. We're opening one here instead, but we want to keep the concept alive so we can go back to Aruba some day."

The Aruba Trading Company will have three departments: frozen yogurt, a sandwich and salad delicatessen, and a bakery. It will be located on Bridge Street in the former Karl's Bakery building, which is being completely redecorated.

The decor, according to Grenus, will be tropical, with white walls, a tropical mural, lots of plants and flowers, ice cream tables and chairs, and wait help in brightly flowered shirts.

"The original idea was to serve only yogurt", Grenus explained, but we decided we needed other items. I've always been interested in catering, so the sandwich and salad idea came naturally. I'm going to be the baker, too. I'm going to take a refresher course in baking just before we open up."

Mark Bellamy is general manager of the Aruba Trading Company and will be in charge of the yogurt and delicatessen departments. An attorney, he was most recently employed by General Dynamics in Detroit, as was Grenus, who was a secretary in the finance department. "But before that, I worked in human resources, and I'm glad to be going back into a people-oriented business. I like people," Grenus told the Courier.

Both she and Bellamy are enthusiastic about their Charlevoix Aruba Trading Center. "It has been our dream to own our own business. We love the water and the people of Charlevoix are so warm and friendly. It's like the small town I grew up in," Grenus continued.

And to show their appreciation of the friendliness, the Aruba Trading Company is donating 800 cups of yogurt to the petunia-planting picnic next week.

They have also hired 14 young people, mostly college students to work in their shop.

Janine Wallace, owner of Shop of the Gulls, sits by her faux fireplace, one of the features of the store's dramatically remodeled lower-level.

Local shop expands

For both the Shop of the Gulls and the Starship Enterprise of TV Star Trek fame, space was proving to be the final frontier.

After 25 years in business, Shop of the Gulls is firmly established and shopowner Janine Wallace has become skilled at purchasing goods to display in the shop; sometimes skilled to the point of frustration.

In traveling across the United States, and occasionally to Europe, to gift and clothing markets, Wallace discovered she was finding items which she wanted to carry in her shop, but simply didn't have room for.

Her solution was to expand and go boldly where the shop had not been before.

Shop of the Gulls has been in the same Bridge Street Building for the past 20 years. During that time, the store has always had a basement, but it hasn't been used as a sales area.

In order to turn the basement into a lower-level sales area, Wallace had to institute a massive renovation.

When she began, the basement was something of a dusty old dungeon. However, after working with Brown and White Builders, Wallace has converted the basement into a clean and attractive shopping area featuring a faux fireplace and alcoves along each wall containing various treasures.

Wallace smiles at the recollection of how she ended up with alcoves along the walls in the lower level.

Prior to renovation, a row of posts ran through the middle of the lower level. Wallace told the builder that, if possible, she wanted to get rid of the posts. The builder said he could do that, but in order to do so Wallace would have to have alcoves along the lower-level walls.

Think of it. Pleasant little alcoves in a quiet shop which stresses carrying a variety of products. Well, we all have our burdens to bear. Wallace told the builder she could cope with having alcoves.

Opening the lower level has almost doubled the shop's floor space for sales. Although adding lower-level shopping was the major change, improvements were also made to the upper level. Office space and an area for storage and gift wrapping were also created.

The renovation began in February. Wallace, who is a firm believer in keeping a shop open year around, had to close from February to May for the renovation.

May 13, she had her grand opening and celebrated the store's 25th anniversary.

"I'm just so happy to be reopened again," she said.

"It was a big decision for me and a big plunge," Wallace says of the renovation and expansion.

But she's happy with the decision. She's expanded all aspects of what the shop can carry and says she can now have more fun on purchasing trips.

"I see wonderful things and now I have room for them," she said.

Despite cloudy weather, a large crowd turned out for the annual activity day sponsored jointly by the Masons, Oddfellows and Knights of Columbus. The track and field events for the developmentally disabled were followed by a dinner and dance in the evening.

The second and third grade students of St. Mary's School had a lot of questions to ask Jeff Reynold when they visited the Charlevoix Historical recently. The students were accompanied by their teacher Linda Moore and teacher's aid Debbie Yager.

Mainlanders invited to island

Beaver Island is inviting Charlevoix residents to spend a weekend on the island in May or during the first two weeks in June. Several Charlevoix stores are distributing the booklets which are good for discounts at several Island businesses.

Booklets can be picked up in Charlevoix at: 7-11, Villager Pub, Central Drug, Chamber of Commerce office, Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Charlevoix County State Bank, First of America Bank, First State Bank of Charlevoix, Heritage Federal Savings Bank and the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union.

Softball team loses two

Charlevoix's softball team lost ugly last Thursday as they were beaten by the visiting Petoskey team 17-3 and 22-8. Both games only went five innings.

In the first game, Charlevoix crashed early, giving up 10 runs in the opening inning. Petoskey hit well, picking up 17 hits in the game.

Darci Spencley took the pitching loss for Charlevoix, striking out two and walking eight. Picking up hits for Charlevoix were Spencley, Melissa Boss, Heather Radle and Stacy Skeel.

In game two, the Rayders pitched and hit reasonably well, but nobody needed to feel guilty about sneezing around the team while they were in the field because they couldn't catch a cold. cold.

The Rayders were almost out of the opening inning unscathed, but with the help of a booted groundball here, a dropped flyball there and an occasional erratic throw for spice the Petoskey team came away with six runs.

Charlevoix looked sharper offensively, promptly answering the Petoskey rally with four runs of their own.

After three innings, the game was still interesting with Petoskey holding a slim 9-8 lead. But the fourth and fifth innings Petoskey scored a total of 13 unanswered runs.

Tammy Holm started for Charlevoix with Spencley relieving in the fifth. For the game, the two pitchers allowed 12 hits and seven walks with getting two strikeouts. Charlevoix's hits came from Andrea D'Angelo, Spencley, Stacy Tilton and Dana Haney.

Charlevoix hosts Boyne City this Thursday and travels to Cheboygan Saturday.

Charlevoix's baseball team fell to 11-3 on the season, losing two games to league-leading Petoskey last Thursday.

Charlevoix lost the opening game 8-4 and the closer 5-3 to the visiting Northmen.

Charlevoix's downfall was hitting as they collected just four hits in each game off Petoskey pitchers Toby McFarland and Justin Burke. McFarland and Burke are both undefeated this year.

Mike Himebauch took the pitching loss for Charlevoix in the first game. He gave up eight hits and five walks while striking out seven batters. Jason Corwin, Pat Elliott, Dan Terryberry and Guy Gengle had singles for the Rayders.

Shawn Putman pitched the second game allowing five hits and eight walks while striking out five batters. Himebauch had two singles while Jason Corwin and Dave Loder each had one.

Charlevoix will host Boyne City this Thursday and travel to Cheboygan Saturday.

Singles losses undo tennis team

Charlevoix won two of three doubles matches, but lost all three singles matches in losing 5-2 to Petoskey last Thursday.

The Charlevoix team of Webb Friedly and Scott Crain posted a 6-1, 6-2 victory as did teammates Chad DeYoung and Bob Sell, but those were Charlevoix's only winners.

In the other doubles match, John O'Brien and Dan Bickersteth lost 6-0, 6-4.

In singles play: Ryan Holmes lost 6-1, 6-4; Tim Jervis lost 6-1, 6-2; David Puhl lost 6-2, 7-5; and Tim Holm lost 6-4, 6-1.

Golf tourney at Belvedere

The 10th Annual Kentucky Fried Chicken March of Dimes Golf Tournament will be held Sunday, May 28, 1989, at the Belvedere Golf Club. This year the tournament will once again be a Three-Man Best Shot, or Scramble.

There will be a shot-gun start at 8:30 a.m., however, participants are asked to check in at the clubhouse by 8 a.m. so that they can register, get their complimentary prizes courtesy of Kentucky Fried Chicken, and purchase their Mulligan if they so desire. In case of rain, the tournament will be moved to the next day, Monday, May 29.

Both men and women are welcome in this tournament. The teams are flighted according to the total handicap of all three golfers with approximately ten teams per flight. In addition to the main tournament competition there are several other special events such as the option to purchase a Mulligan for a $1, giving you a "bonus" shot to be used on any hole except the 17th, a putting contest, a prize for each hole, closest to the pin, etc. Once again, a cash prize of $10,000 will be awarded to the first person making a hole-in-one on the 17th hole.

The entry fee for this tournament is $50 per person, or $150 per three-man team. This fee includes greens' fees, beverages, a buffet dinner, prizes and special awards. Dinner will be at the clubhouse at 1:30 p.m. with presentations of awards to follow. Guests of players are welcome for a charge of $5. Sponsors of the event are the Belvedere Golf Club and Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Entry forms are available at the Kentucky Fried Chicken in Petoskey, at the Belvedere Golf Club, and at the pro shops of area golf courses. The registration deadline is May 25, and the tournament entries will be limited to the first thirty-six teams that enter. For additional information please contact Joe Etienne at 616-547-2700 or 347-8843.

Happy
Over The Hill Birthday

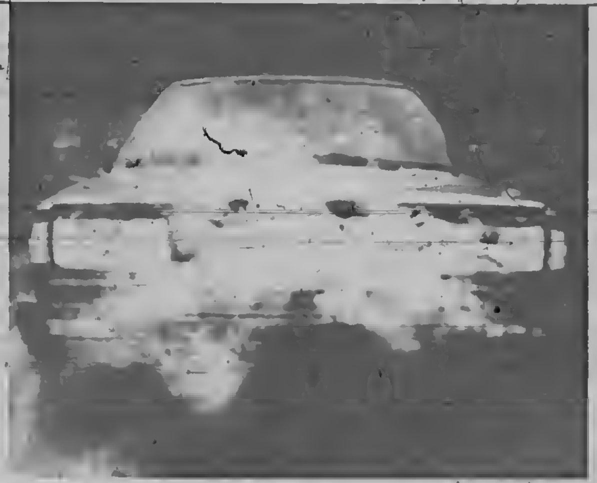
Nowadays, you're training just so you'll have the wind to blow out next year's candles.

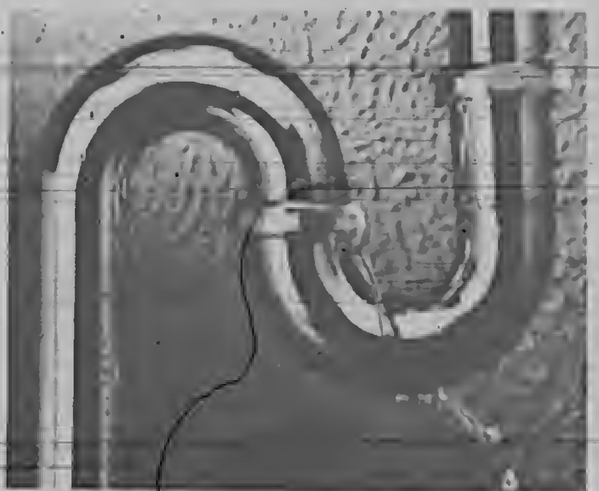


You've come to accept that every now and then your car needs to let off steam, too.

Even though six dozen socks have disappeared in the washer, the laundry pile always stays the same. Or even grows.

For years, every time your kid opened his mouth, you heard cash registers.

You've paid so many taxes, you feel certain that you alone financed the economic recovery.



More than once, you've discovered that your house is something of a liquid asset.

JUST AN IDEA OF WHAT PEOPLE HAVE TO GO THROUGH TO QUALIFY FOR OUR PRIME TIME ACCOUNT.

Because life is chock full of fender benders, bent braces, and unexpected visits from the in-laws, we now offer a reward just for wading through it all.

The Prime Time Account. With it you can consolidate a lot of your banking into one account, minus a lot of the fees. Take checking. It's free with Prime Time. So are personalized checks. You get a no annual fee VISA* or MasterCard*. Plus free traveler's checks, travel discounts and lots more. The Prime Time account is available to applicants of all ages. All you have to do is keep $2500 in a Money Market Savings account.

Special 1/2 Percent Bonus Rate CD.

Open a Prime Time Account at one of our offices before June 30 and we'll also give you a 1/2 percent bonus rate on a new one-year CD*. That alone could earn you enough to pay for the water heater that's about to go on the fritz.

School seeks 1.9 mill increase

At the June 12 school election, Charlevoix school district voters will vote on three millage proposals: a 17.05 renewal; a nine-tenths of a mill increase for transportation; and a one mill increase to cover rising school costs, in excess of inflation.

The renewal proposal will be for 17.05 mills for one year. Of that, 15.25 mills were levied prior to last year while the remaining 1.8 mills was an increase which voters approved last year.

A second proposal seeks to increase millage by nine-tenths of a mill for two years to fund construction of a new bus garage and the purchase of six school buses, two pickups and a minivan.

The third proposal is for one additional mill for one year to offset rising school costs, in excess of inflation.

In terms of dollars to a taxpayer, the 17.05 renewal means a homeowner with a $40,000 home will be deciding if he's willing to pay $523 per year for school property taxes. (That would be 17.05 voted mills plus 9.1 allocated mills. A mill is $1 per thousand dollars of a home's State Equalized Value SEV. SEV, theoretically, is one-half of a home's market value.)

The proposal for nine-tenths of a mill means that same homeowner will be deciding if he's willing to add $18 per year to his tax bill for transportation improvements.

The one mill proposal would raise the same taxpayer's school tax bill by $20 per year.

Summarized - If the renewal passes, a taxpayer with a $40,000 home will pay $523 this year in school property taxes. If either, or both, of the millage increase proposals pass, that homeowner will pay $541, $543 or $561 per year in school property taxes.

The Charlevoix School District has a total tax base of approximately $441 million, which means the school levies

Higher costs and transportation cited

School administrators say millage increases are needed.

"It's needed. We're not going for any more than what we need," school business manager Vince Olach said during a phone interview with the Courier.

In April, when the school board approved requesting an additional nine-tenths of a mill for two years to fund transportation improvements, Olach said the proposal would net the school a total of approximately $400,000.

The money would be used to build a new bus garage and purchase six school buses, two pickup trucks and a minivan.

Olach said that although the state still doesn't require schools to replace all buses built before 1977, they're talking about it and probably will soon. Of Charlevoix's 16 bus fleet, four regular buses and the Rayder bus were build prior to 1977.

Drive-up baby delivery

Close...now, pass out the cigars.

One of Charlevoix's newest citizens, Charisse Anne Rogers, was born last Thursday in a delivery room as big as all outdoors. In fact, it was all outdoors. Charisse was born in the parking lot at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Charisse is the daughter of Ken and Kay (Russell) Rogers. Charisse wasn't due to be born until Friday, but last Thursday morning at about 8 a.m., she decided the time was now...right now.

Ken and Kay live in Atwood. At 8:05 a.m., shortly after Ken had gone to work, Kay began having labor pains. She called her husband at work and told him to come home and take her to the hospital.

Shortly after 8:30, the couple, all-too-soon to become a trio, began their harrowing trip to the hospital.

"We got about three miles outside of town," Kay explains, "and I made him (Ken) pull over. I thought I was going to have her right there."

Describing what happened during the stop, Kay said Ken "assessed the situation" and said, "I'll get you there. I'll get you there."

When they arrived at the hospital, Ken raced inside and told the nurses Kay was having her baby now...not five minutes from now, but now.

Dr. Jim Stewart was the delivering physician. He had been told that Rogers was on her way to the hospital. At the time Kay and Ken arrived he was in the hospital cafeteria having a cup of coffee. He received a call to report to the front immediately, but was surprised to find the "front" meant the parking lot, not the emergency room.

The handwriting on the wall was clear. In a day when housecalls are a thing of the past, Stewart and the hospital staff were being called upon to do a drive-up baby delivery.

"I could feel the baby was right there," Rogers said.

Out in the parking lot, things happened quickly. Nurses wheeled out a Gurney table and other baby-birthing utensils. Stewart helped Rogers out of the car and onto the table. In the process, his glasses were knocked off.

There was no time to dawdle. Baby Charisse planned to enter the world according to one of the basics of the game Hide and Seek. "Ready or not, here I come."

With Rogers on the table, it became apparent there was no time to be wheeling her into the hospital. Stewart said that within 45 seconds of the time the decision was made to have the baby in the parking lot, Charisse was there.

"It was a nice day. The sun was shining. There was a nice breeze," the mother recalls.

Charisse weighed seven pounds, sixteen ounces at birth. Mother and daughter are doing just fine.

In fact, Kay, who has been studying to become a registered nurse, was scheduled to attend a pregraduation pinning ceremony last Thursday evening and made it.

There were some tense moments for Kay Rogers, her baby Charisse, and husband Ken last Thursday morning, but everything turned out all right. Charisse was a quick delivery and ended up being born in the parking lot at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Council-business friction discussed

Theater owner Bill Supernaw and city council members wrangled Monday evening over friction which has recently developed between the council and some segments of the downtown business community.

Last week the council withheld a payment to the Chamber of Commerce which has been made on a monthly basis for decades. Some members of the chamber are moving toward formation of a political action group. Councilmen said they don't feel the chamber should be political.

Referring to newspaper stories and an editorial resulting from the payment withholding, Supernaw said, "I don't want to say that the council is embarrassing Charlevoix, but something is happening that is not presenting an appropriate climate."

Supernaw repeatedly asked if the chamber payment is going to be reinstated. Councilmen said they were in a work session Monday evening and couldn't vote on reinstatement until their first meeting next month. Therefore, they can't give an answer until then.

Supernaw also referred to a proposed redistribution plan for Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Incre-

Memorial Day ceremonies planned

While millions of Chinese people seek democracy, Charlevoix and the rest of the United States will pause this coming Monday and pay tribute to the many Americans who have fought to preserve it.

Memorial Day ceremonies will begin at 9:30 a.m. with the formation of the parade at Park and State Streets.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. sharp with mayor Gary Probert serving as parade marshal.

The parade will proceed south on Bridge Street to East Park where the initial ceremony will take place.

The Charlevoix High School band will play a patriotic selection. VFW and American Legion Auxiliary representatives will toss wreaths in the lake and place a wreath and the Submarine Memorial. A firing squad will give a 21-gun salute.

Flags set at half mast will be lowered and then raised by Cmdr. Fritz Allard and Cmdr. Gerald Johnson during playing of the National Anthem.

The parade will resume and halt briefly at Memorial Park where another wreath will be placed and flag raised.

From Memorial Park, the parade will continue to the cemetery.

At the cemetery, the invocation will be given by Rev. Phil Schairbaum of the First Congregational Church. A presentation will be given by Kerry Hartnett.

Father Jim Gardiner of St. Mary's Church will offer the Memorial Day address.

Comdrs. Louis McKenzie and Bill Behrens will make floral presentations followed by a gun salute.

taxes on a district SEV of approximately $220 million and receives about $220,000 for each mill levied.

This year, the school district's total SEV increased by approximately 9.21 percent.

The Headlee tax limitation amendment requires the school to roll back its millage levy to partially compensate for the SEV increase. The tax limitation amendment allows school tax revenues to increase by 4.1 percent (a figure based on the consumer price index) this year to compensate for inflation.

Within the Charlevoix school district, the city of Charlevoix has established a Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (DDA-TIFA).

The DDA and TIFA capture tax revenue from SEV increases within the DDA and TIFA districts. Those tax revenues are used to finance projects within the DDA and TIFA districts.

Recently, there have been secret negotiations between the school, city and county to reach an agreement where the city would return a portion of the captured funds to the school and county.

After the SEV increase, Headlee millage rollback and the DDA-TIFA capture are all factored together, the school system will receive approximately $180,000 or 3.5 percent more in property tax revenue this year, as opposed to last year, if the renewal were to pass and the increase proposals fail.

If the proposal for nine-tenths of a mill passes, the school would receive approximately $198,000 this coming year in addition to the $180,000.

If the proposal for an additional one mill passes, the school will receive an addition of approximately $220,000 to the $180,000 and possibly the $198,000.

Eight Charlevoix High School students were inducted into the National Honor Society during cermonies last week. They are (from left) Darcie DeGrow, Dan Terryberry, Julie Bush, Ed McLenon, Mark Newman, Ryan Smith, Angela Levengood and Scott Campbell.

ment Financing Authority (TIFA) funds which would give more money to the school and county. The proposal was formulated during meetings which were closed to the public.

Mayor Gary Probert said the city attorney has indicated there are no legal problems with the handling of the DDA-TIFA agreement. Probert said he wanted the matter brought out to the public and there will be a public hearing on the proposal in June.

Supernaw said, "I'm afraid there's a climate developing between the downtown merchants and the council that isn't healthy."

Colleen LaBlance, who was in the audience, defended the council. She said the council is in a position where they are "making decisions representing all of the citizens of Charlevoix, not just the merchants."

Supernaw said the council must recognize that the merchants and business district are an important part of the community.

"I'm not asking for any special treatment for the business district, just equal treatment," he said.

Councilman Norm Probert and Chamber of Commerce director Jacqueline Merta discussed the withholding of the Chamber payment.

Probert maintained the chamber shouldn't be political. He also recited a lengthy series of questions which inferred that many city services are already focused on the downtown area.

Merta said she feels the chamber, as either individuals or a group, have the same right to voice their opinions on political matters that other individuals and groups do. Regarding city services focused in the downtown area, she said that in Charlevoix, as in many other communities, the downtown area is a focal point and is enjoyed by more people than just the business community.

... rising school costs

Until about four years ago, the school updated the bus fleet by replacing two buses every other year with money from general operational millage. That program stopped due to budget limitations.

Olach said that by having the proposal earmark the money for transportation, that will, by law, be the only place where the school can spend the money.

According to Olach, the one mill increase is being sought to cover rising costs in several areas. Among those areas are rising employee salaries and health insurance costs along with new reading, science programs and band instruments.

Employee salaries and benefits comprise approximately 80 percent of the Charlevoix school budget. That percentage figure is comparable to most area schools.

Olach said the school is asking for the additional mill for one year rather than two because it is unclear what state legislators may do in the coming year in terms of school finance reform.

In conjunction with the two millage increase proposals, the school is also seeking to renew a 17.05 mill levy which does not expire for another year.

Olach said the reason for seeking the renewal this year, rather than next, is that in order for there to be a summer tax collection the millage must be in place prior to June when school elections take place.

She said the ceremony was important to her because it was the last time she would see many of the other nursing students who she has been studying with for the past three years. She attended the ceremony in a wheel chair.

Charisse is not Rogers' first child. She also has a three and a-half year old daughter Nina. She was in labor for several hours with that child, which was born inside the hospital.

Now that she's tried both indoor and outdoor births, she was asked which she would take, given a choice.

"I prefer inside, thank you," she replied with a smile."

The baby's grandparents are: Cass and Pat Russell of Charlevoix; Carolyn and Don Brown of Central Lake; and Francis and Jinks Rogers of East Jordan.

Tomatoes: An ecological time bomb

I'm not a man who scares easily, but I must confess, the global ecological consequences of my wife's tomato planting frighten me.

Last week, I tried to make a count of all the little tomato plants my wife is nurturing in trays out on the front porch. I came up with a ballpark estimate of about 250.

There are 250 little tomato plants on my front porch; each and every one of them anticipating the day when my wife transplants them into the garden where they can grow and become big tomato plants...and produce more tomatoes than any household on earth could possibly have use for.

The way I figure it, if all of those plants grow and each plant produces four tomatoes, that's 1,000 tomatoes. That's a conservative estimate. Some of those big tomato plants, which could almost fairly be called tomato trees, produce nearly a bushel on their own.

There are only 365 days in a year. In order to keep pace with the crop, our household will have to consume about three tomatoes per day. I don't mind a tomato now and then, but three of them each and every day?

"What are you going to do with all of those tomatoes?" I asked my wife, the other day.

"You just don't worry," she said. "I'll can them and use them for chili and spaghetti sauce."

Not to dredge old matters, but there are still jars and jars of canned tomatoes from last year stashed in the pantry and lurking in the dark recesses of the basement.

What really scares me is a sneaking suspicion I have that my wife isn't the only one who overplants in the tomato department. There are probably other people like her all across America.

And the consequenced may be dire.

Look at this tomato thing from an ecological standpoint. All of life is tied together and every action sets off a chain of reactions.

Nature seeks to keep things in balance. And it's a very delicate balance. When these tomato zealots overplant, it throws nature out of balance. Nature has to take strong measures to restore the balance.

This is the way it works.

An overabundance of tomatoes causes an increased demand for glass, which is used to make the jars to can tomatoes.

The increased demand for glass causes an increased demand for sand, which is used to make the jars.

Sand is mined from dunes, which are often next to lakes. Sand helps keep the lakes clean.

When lakes become dirty due to a lack of sand, it adversely affects the weather. Water from the lakes doesn't evaporate as well when it's dirty. Therefore it doesn't reach the sky to form clouds.

Without clouds, there is no rain. Without rain, there is a drought. Tomatoes don't do well in a drought.

Although it may seem cruel, that's the way nature deals with tomato zealots and restores the world's natural tomato balance.

Local politics! It's always been lively, interesting, confrontational and sometimes petty. But what is going on now in Charlevoix, people are asking. There is so much unrest. So much discontent. So much conflict that all seems to be coming to a head. The problem as I see it, is two-fold.

Firstly, the town is split into so many factions, each pulling in a different direction. Gone is the leadership I knew in the 40's, when a small group worked together for the benefit of Charlevoix – the Bridges, Saltonstalls, Hawleys, Erbers, Neffs, etc. These are the people who sparked the development of East Park, built the Hospital, the Library, Mt. McSauba Ski Area. In addition there was Earl Young who put his artistic fingerprint on our town with his mushroom houses, the Weathervane Restaurant, the Lodge and the Terrace as well as develop-

Let the public know

For the past week I have been tossing around on the horns of a dilemma, as they say in the cattle rustling business.

Although I don't have a law degree, I think the Charlevoix City Council was in clear violation of the Open Meetings Act when it met in secret last winter and this spring to work out an agreement to share its downtown development monies with the Charlevoix School District and Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The Open Meetings Act, as you'll remember, prohibits public bodies like the council from meeting in private when discussing public affairs.

After all, members of the council were elected by the public and the public is paying the bills.

And let's not forget: This city belongs to all of us. It's our business. Our hackles should rise anytime our council decides to meet in private to discuss our business and our money.

That little notation on the council agenda "Closed Council Meeting" should be a red flag to all of us, not just the press.

Sure, there are a few exceptions under the Open Meetings Act, like contract negotiations, land purchases, disciplinary problems, pending litigation and the like. But I fail to see how dipping into city coffers to help other governmental units is one of the exceptions.

City manager Mike Wiesner believes it was OK for the council to meet behind closed doors because members were discussing "contract negotiations," an area generally agreed to mean union contract bargaining.

Obviously, "contract negotiations" means something different to Mike than it does to me.

As for members of the council, I'm not even sure they've heard of the Open Meetings Act, so many of them are new to the law-making business. They simply have to rely on what the city manager and the city attorney tell them.

The problem, of course, doesn't not lie entirely with the city council. It can be traced directly to the state Legislature which is responsible for such crazy laws as the one establishing Tax Increment Financing Authorities (TIFA) — a gimmick allowing one governmental unit to pick the pockets of other governmental units. It used to be called highway robbery.

If Charlevoix didn't have a TIFA but relied instead on traditional taxing methods, the council wouldn't be caught in the embarrassing position of trying to repay excess developmental funds to the school district and Grandvue.

The real stickler here is that our council in its closed-door meetings apparently made no effort to repay the Charlevoix Intermediate School District nor Charlevoix County — which also have been victimized by the city's TIFA scam. Let the lawyers get hold of this one and they'll have a field day.

The Legislature also is responsible for elaborate "tax abatement" plans designed to give new entrepreneurs in town a tax break. Tax abatements not only force businesses and industries to subsidize newly arrived competitors but, if granted willy-nilly, they also put the city in a financial bind that could last up to 12 years.

Furthermore, the Legislature is responsible for the Open Meetings Act — which at best is a paper tiger.

Any one of us could take the council to court under the Open Meetings Act, but who among us has the money to pay attorney fees and court costs for the mere satisfaction of saying, "I told you so."

Not me.

Furthermore, the Open Meetings Act exempts so many important areas of government that it is virtually worthless.

Take contract bargaining, for example.

Do you think any school board in Michigan would be stupid enough to give its teachers a 24 percent pay increase over three years if its contract bargaining sessions were open to the public?

Of course not. The first whiff of such dissolute spending would bring the burghers into the streets, torches flaming.

But under the Open Meetings Act, we don't know what's in the contract until it is cast in bronze.

... Edith: A question of city leadership

ing Boulder Park.

When this group retired, there was a vacuum which has been filled with new community leaders which represented various factions. These represent the merchants, the developers, the environmentalists, the bankers, the schools, and the good-old-boy network. These factions don't see eye to eye.

The second influence, which seems to have gone unnoticed, is that many of the obvious, qualified, potential leaders have moved out of the city into the expanding suburb of the township. True this group still has offices and businesses in the city – but they don't vote in the city! No vote – no voice! Some of these people may serve on the school board, the zoning commission, the planning board, the DDA and other civic groups, but no matter what their considered decisions, they have no real power. It can all be undone by the elected members of the city council, who are beholden to the electorate.

If we stop and analyze the composition of Charlevoix, and eliminate the Chicago Club, the Belvedere, the Condos, the summer homes, all people who pay taxes and support the economy, but don't vote, who is left? You'll find there is a very small group of year around people. Many of this group are retired or semi-retired, who travel a great deal and are not involved. There are those who do not want to get involved in politics because it would hurt their business they say. That leaves the local good old boy network, including the breakfast bunch at Judy's Restaurant, who have taken control of civic affairs by default.

Aye, and there's the rub. Now that this group is in charge, they've discovered they have a tiger by the tail! How to deal with the DDA? The Chamber of Commerce? Zoning? Planning? Developing? Millage? Do they please only the people who elected them? Or can they lead the way to do what's best for all Charlevoix, including all the tax payers whose zip code is Charlevoix, but still have no vote, only a business or an office in town, or a second home.

Can the city council listen equally well to the retiree on a limited income, to the merchants, to the summer visitor, to the people who resist change, to the people who advocate improvements? It's a puzzlement, and it takes wise, experienced, dedicated people to deal with these ever-changing challenges.

As we said, the people who vote have the voice. It's the voting individuals who attend council meetings, telephone their councilman, who have the inside track. It's not the Kiwanians, or Lions or Rotarians or the Sorority groups who wield influence because possibly half or more don't live and vote in the city. The same holds true for the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association, the Historical Society, etc. etc.

So what's the solution I've been asked, to all this dissatisfaction? That's a tough question and different people have different solutions. Some people suggest that the salaries for the councilmen be reduced. This would, they say, attract people more interested in service than salaries. Some people think the city and township should unite for the common good. This would, they say, give the electorate a larger pool of more qualified people to run for office. Some people think a local PAC organization is the answer. This would they say, fund the campagin for better representation on the council. What do you think?

Letters to the Editor:

Mesquite commander's explanation

Editor,

I feel it is necessary to address the people of Charlevoix to begin to heal the wounds opened during the recent expose of the initiations formerly held aboard Mesquite.

There was an initiation custom aboard Mesquite dating back several years. Junior men would haze new crewmembers to make them "part of the crew." These were basically good, hardworking young men who got carried away and acted like children. This custom was permanently banned in 1986.

The Coast Guard recognized the problem and conducted a thorough investigation. Those responsible were disciplined. Additionally, the entire crew was made to understand that this type of behavior is intolerable. Each and every crewmen that knew of the excesses was responsible to report it.

Just as I receive praise when my men do good work, I accept responsibility. Not for direct involvement but because I should have known and perhaps prevented it.

The City of Charlevoix and the Cutter Mesquite have a longstanding relationship which neither I nor the Coast Guard wants to harm. Rest assured that the Coast Guard did take firm action to ensure this would never happen again.

Local chef Dave Phillips (right) of The Wharfside was honored as a finalist in the professional category of Michigan's "Souper Bowl." Presenting Phillips a finalist certificate is Hans Schuler of Schuler's Inc. and AAA Michigan.

A Z Soup

David Phillips of the Wharfside in Charlevoix was one of five top finalists in the professional division of the recent "Souper Bowl" contest for recipes for the best soup made of Michigan products.

Phillips' recipe for "A to Z" (Asparagus to Zucchini) soup was one of more than 225 submitted statewide in the contest sponsored by the AAA Michigan Living magazine, the Michigan Restaurant Association, and the Greater Michigan Foundation.

The recipe for "A to Z" soup follows:

6 C chicken broth
½ C white onion (medium diced)
½ C celery (medium diced)
1 C zucchini (medium diced)
1 C asparagus (medium sliced)
½ tsp fresh lemon thyme (minced)
½ tsp fresh dill (minced)
1 small bay leaf
1-3 C butter
1-3 C flour
1½ C half & half cream)
1-3 C apple cider
1 tsp salt
¼ tsp white pepper
½ tsp chicken base or 1 chicken bouillon cube (crushed)
1 egg (beaten)
½ C Ida red apple (medium diced)

Use all fresh Michigan products, spices, and vegetables.

Simmer onion, celery, asparagus, zucchini, thyme, dill, and bay leaf in the chicken broth for 15 minutes. Strain this mixture, separating the broth and vegetables. Set broth aside. Remove the bay leaf. Melt butter over medium heat. Gradually stir in flour until it becomes a thick paste. Stir constantly. Gradually add pepper and chicken base. Take one-fourth of the sauce and whip together with the beaten egg. Mix all sauce together. Add strained vegetables and apples.

Serve hot or cold with a tad of sour cream on top and a sprig of fresh dill or a slice of apple.

Makes five 8-ounce servings.

City accepts sidewalk bids

At a special meeting Monday evening, the city council accepted a $225,265 bid for sidewalk replacement and curb and gutter work. The bid was from Champagne and Marx Exc, Inc. of Saginaw.

The sidewalk work is priority in the city's infrastructure repair program.

Many of the sidewalks targetted for replacement in the residential areas of the south side were replaced last summer. The work specified in the bid will complete all of the targetted south side sidewalks and most of the north side sidewalks.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the contractor anticipates completing the south side work this year and the rest by July of 1990.

Wiesner also said the city is working on contracting a surveyor to make sure that the sidewalk work either doesn't disturb property irons or if the irons are disturbed, they are replaced properly.

Local folks join senior power day

Seven men and women from the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center joined other Charlevoix County senior citizens in a bus trip to Lansing last week to join in "Senior Power Day."

Bob and Sherry Black, Bertha Potter, Mary Lavery, Frank and Emma Zednicek, and Ron Putman took the 16-hour round trip, which was without incident except for two of the men "donating" their belts to hold the bus together on the return trip.

The Charlevoix contingent was among the 7,500 who endorsed the Senior Power Day Platform which called for better health, housing, transportation, employment, and education programs for older Americans, heard a speech of support by Governor James Blanchard, and marched to the capitol steps carrying flags and banners extolling their needs.

Observers said it was the largest Senior Power Day crowd in 15 years of meetings.

Elm Street discussed

The Community Reformed Church has asked the city to consider abandoning a portion of Elm Street between the city tennis courts and Meech Street. Church representatives approached city council with the proposal during the council's Monday evening work session.

The church owns property on both sides of that section of Elm Street. If the section of street is abandoned by the city, it would revert to the adjacent property owner.

The church would like to expand the church building and put additional parking where the street now is and on the lot across the street from the church.

Were the street to be cut off, the church proposes that there would be a turn-around on Elm Street by the tennis courts.

Councilmen referred the proposal to the planning commission. At the work session, councilmen said little about the proposal beyond indicating that Meech Street and Elm Street are used as entrance and exit points to the city tennis courts and municipal golf course.

Taylor-Purvis

Tracie & Shawn Purvis

Pink larkspur and pew bows decorated St. Mary's Catholic Church for the May 6 afternoon wedding of Tracie Taylor and Shawn Purvis of Charlevoix.

Father James Gardiner officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 150 guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Taylor of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Purvis, also of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gleaming white satin gown frosted with embroidery silk lace. It was fashioned with a Victorian neckline and renaissance sleeves, accented by sequins and hand-sewn seed pearls. The cathedral train was outlined with scalloped edging, and the veil featured a satin bow and rose accented with hand-sewn pearls and lilies of the valley.

The bridal bouquet was composed of white mini carnations and roses with ferns and staphanotis.

Margo Boyd served as maid of honor, and Jill Taylor, the bride's sister, and Staphanie Button were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length gowns of pink taffeta made with shirred and ruffled shoulders, princess bodices, and Basque waistlines. They each carried a single American Beauty rose.

Bethany Purvis, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl, wearing a pink taffeta dress with cap sleeves and a large bow in the back. She carried a basket of roses.

Kevin Purvis served his brother as best man, and Loren Purvis, another brother, was groomsman, along with Elever Dass. Dass and Loren Purvis also served as ushers.

The parents of the newlyweds hosted a reception at the Edgewater Inn following the marriage ceremony. Melissa Sandahl was in charge of the guest book and cutting the cake. the rehearsal dinner was held Friday evening at Nanny's Old Place, hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Purvis are at home in Charlevoix, where the bride is employed at Don's I.G.A. and the bridegroom at Midwest International.

Hospital may add new beds

A Certificate of Need has been approved by the State Department of Public Health for 10 "swing-beds" at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Swing-bed is a term used to describe a bed that is made available to a patient who has been receiving hospital care but is now eligible to go to a lower level of nursing care such as in a nursing home. Very often these patients stayed in the hospital because nursing home beds were not available. The hospital did not receive reimbursement for stays beyond what Medicare allowed for the acute stage of the patient's condition. The swing-bed program was approved by Medicare to assist smaller hospitals in utilizing excess beds interchangeably and to broaden their revenue base.

Patients will be eligible for swing-bed stays if there are no nursing home beds open within a 50-mile radius of his or her home. The patient must be Medicare eligible for skilled care services. Skilled care means that significant medical treatment is still required.

There is a 20-day maximum on the number of days patients can remain in a swing-bed and, if a bed becomes available in a nursing home, they must be transferred within five days.

To qualify for swing-beds the hospital must be a rural hospital of under 50 beds and it must be one that provides rehabilitation services such as physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech pathology, as well as dental services, social services and discharge planning. Patient Services Manager Kathy Boss asid, "We are very pleased that we were approved for the maximum number of swing-beds allowed and we are looking forward to providing this extended care to our patients."

Currently inservice training for hospital employees is being held to acquaint the staff with the requirements for swing-bed care. Charlevoix Area Hospital will accept its initial patient into the program beginning May 22.

Montessori field trip

Michelle Martin (front) Colleen Gleason and Evan Chappies check out the interior of a township fire truck.

Charlevoix Children's House uses the Montessori method of early education. The main goal is to help children develop within themselves the foundations for a lifetime of creative learning and living.

A typical day in the schedule includes songs, games, story time, snacks and independent work. The kindergarten program also includes a group lesson each day. Outside recess is enjoyed during good weather in the large fenced-in playyard behind the school.

The classroom is arranged into topical areas of study and activities. These include: Practical life where children practice pouring, scrubbing, polishing and other skills to develop independence, concentration and coordination; Sensorial, where they classify and sort by sight, hearing, taste, smell and touch; plus language, mathematics, natural science and geography.

Some of the seasonal activities are a Pilgrim and Indian Dinner at Thanksgiving, a Christmas Carol Program and Family Potluck, February Father's Night, May Mother's Brunch and Springtime Chicken Hatching, a big favorite of the children.

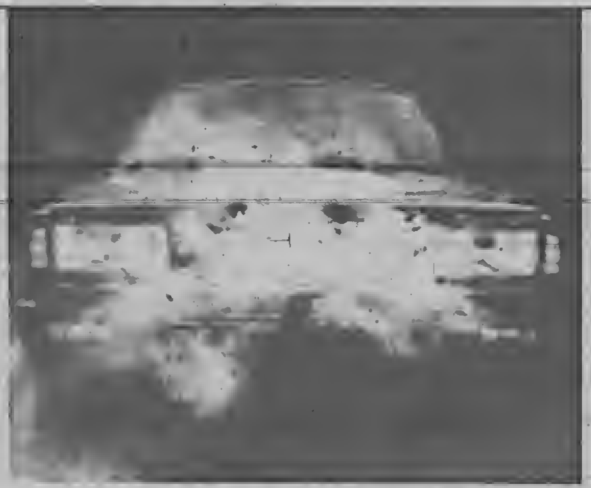
Nowadays, you're training just so you'll have the wind to blow out next year's candles.



You've come to accept that every now and then your car needs to let off steam, too.

Even though six dozen socks have disappeared in the washer, the laundry pile always stays the same. Or even grows.

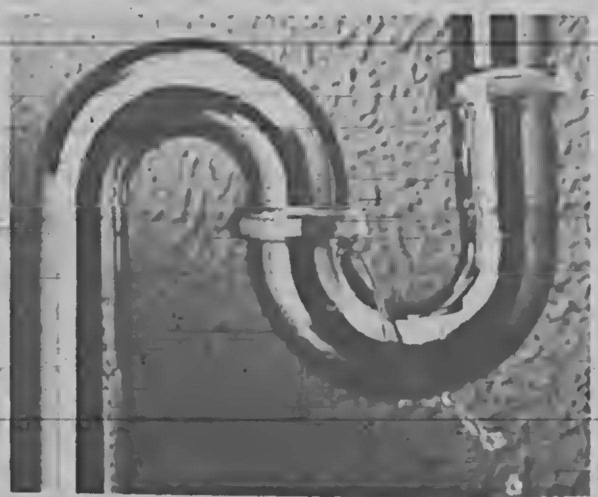
You've paid so many taxes, you feel certain that you alone financed the economic recovery.



More than once, you've discovered that your house is something of a liquid asset.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by the Rev. Robert G. Wilson Interim Rector
Christ Episcopal Church

Back in March it was my pleasure to write for Blessings. In that short piece I shared with you my hopes (and fears?) about the tulip bulbs I had planted last fall. Well, here is an up-date: they all came up and are blooming. Rejoice! Not that I lacked faith that they would boom and grace your yard with beauty and color. After all, the salesman promised me, didn't he? And I did pay the price, didn't I?

Well, if you are awake as you read this you already see where I am heading. Easter came! The resurrection is a reality...just as promised! The price was paid in the person of Jesus Christ and now all the benefits (blessing?) of Easter are ours to enjoy. All of these truths...and the bright tulips...suggests a new beginning, don't they?

New flowers in the garden, a lawn about ready to mow, a coat of fresh paint on the house to cover the rigors of winter suggest that Spring is finally here. A new beginning! Perhaps our personal lives could also use some sprucing up and what better way to do that than to get into the habit early this spring of setting some time aside to let God speak some new thoughts to our heart... And could you find a better place to do this than in His church next Sunday? Take note that I didn't identify a church building...just His church! One that lifts high Jesus Christ!

But back to new beginnings! Consider a revitalization of your whole life as you rejoice in the other blessings of springtime. Find new joy in sharing, new peace in living, enhanced spirituality in worship. Get a new spring in your step, a twinkle in your eye...all of this can be yours! And the effects on your life and those about you will be surprising...all because you are caught up in the reality of new beginnings in and through Jesus Christ. St. Paul put it this way: "Therefore if any person be in Christ, he(she) is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold all things are become new." (II Cor. 5:17) What a chance for change! What an opportunity for a new beginning! See you in church Sunday?

Lake trout in school of alewives, by Jim Annis

Artist designs trout stamp

When anglers in the State of Illinois buy a trout stamp this year, it will be decorated with a picture of a lake trout painted by Charlevoix artist Jim Annis. The acrylic painting features a lake trout bursting through a school of alewives.

Annis' painting was judged winner in a competition sponsored by the State of Illinois which drew 80 entries from 32 states. Another Annis trout painting placed seventh in a similar competition sponsored by the State of Nevada.

Annis' stamp paintings are well-known nationally. He has been commissioned to do several for the National Wildlife Federation, including a barracuda, a red-breasted sunfish, a Michigan steelhead, and a school of smelt.

In addition to wildlife paintings, Annis has gained a reputation for his work in "nostalgia." His series of railroad paintings-trains, engines, and depots - are widely collected by railroad buffs and others. Copies of his painting of the C & O depot in Charlevoix have been widely distributed.

Also in the line of nostalgia, Annis has painted several of the large, ornate luxury theaters that were once major attractions in the city of Chicago. Reproductions of his painting of the Chicago Theater on downtown State Street have been steady sellers, he says.

City considers Ferry Ave. shift

The city is considering modification of plans to move Ferry Avenue.

Moving Ferry Avenue away from the beach up the hill toward the former railroad right of way has been part of the Tax Increment Financing Authority improvement plan for Ferry Beach. By moving the road, people won't have to cross the road to get to the beach when a new park area and parking lot are completed.

The proposed modifications concern where Ferry Avenue, when relocated, would intersect Stover Road.

According to original relocation plans, Ferry Road would cut within approximately 20 feet of the back corner of Nanny's Old Place, a restaurant near Ferry Beach.

Were the road to run that close to the building, it would eliminate several parking spaces and also might pose a safety concern.

The reason for running Ferry Avenue that close to the building is to get it to line up as closely as possible with the portion of Ferry Avenue on the other side of Stover Road.

However, as city manager Mike Wiesner explained Monday evening, the road probably won't line up exactly. As a possibility for the council to consider, Wiesner suggested moving Ferry Avenue a little bit farther up the hill.

Several years ago, there was an agreement between Nanny's and the city concerning the railroad right of way and allowing Nanny's customers to park behind the building.

City councilmen said they wanted to review that agreement prior to acting on the road relocation.

Tax abatement considered

Although it was a work session and they could take no formal action, city councilmen reacted favorably Monday evening to a request by Harbor Industries for an industrial facilities tax exemption.

William Olstrom, Harbor Industries general manager, explained that the business wants to purchase new equipment valued at approximately $700,000.

Harbor Industries, formerly Freedman Artcraft, manufactures display cases for stores and has been in Charlevoix since 1946. Currently, the business employs 137 people.

Olstrom said the business plans to purchase a vinyl laminating machine, edge banding machine, vacuum-form machine, stockroom equipment, cardboard baler and wood-burning heating system and also do some office renovation and computerization.

The equipment would allow the Charlevoix plant to do some work they currently have done elsewhere and would add 10 to 12 jobs at the plant.

The abatement requested would be 50 percent for 12 years.

City manager Mike Wiesner calculated that in dollar terms, it would probably be about $8,700 the first year.

Council election filing deadline approaches

Nominating petitions for the Aug. 8 primary election must be filled and turned in by 4 p.m. June 6.

Three seats on the city council and the office of city clerk are up for election this year. All are two-year terms.

There is one council seat up for election in each ward. The seats are currently held by: Norm Probert, first ward; Butch Russell, second ward; Earl Muma, third ward. The clerk position is held by Arlene Staley.

To be placed on the primary ballot, a candidate must pick up a nominating petition at the clerk's office and have not less than 25 and not more than 40 registered voters sign the petition. For council seats, voters signing the nominating petition must be registered within the ward for which the candidate is seeking a seat. For the clerk's position, any voter registered in the city may sign the nominating petition. Petitions must be completed and returned by the June 6 filing deadline.

The top two vote recipients for each office in the August primary election will compete in the November general election. If not more than two candidates file for the primary election, there will be no primary election for that office.

As of the end of last week only one candidate had filed a petition. Cheryl Hoffman has filed for the first ward seat currently held by Norm Probert.

BUSINESS

Lynn Henderson and employee Tim Noirot stand in front of the newly-opened Farmer's Market on Petoskey Avenue.

Farm market opens

The sign on the little chalet-type building on Petoskey Avenue reads "Charlevoix Farm Market", but inside and out, the store is laden with all kinds of merchandise.

Right now, it is featuring garden plants and flowers, especially pots for Memorial Day. There are also garden accessories, including potting soil and ornaments, in addition to bird seed and charcoal.

Inside, there is a large assortment of fresh fruits and vegetables which are trucked in from Grand Rapids three times a week. Later on, the market will feature local fruits and vegetables,

Lynn Henderson, who runs the Farmer's Market, also makes up fruit baskets and vegetable trays.

Other food products are convenience items—bread, milk, eggs, and soft drinks. There is also a line of health food products, including natural grain breads. Eventually they will have their own bakery, Henderson said.

And for dessert, there is a full line of quality ice cream products.

The handcrafts of several local artists are also for sale at the market, including Bob Neff's seagulls.

The operator of the Farm Market is not a farm girl. "I grew up in Troy, but I worked in grocery stores all my life and I know how to display produce," Henderson explained. However she volunteered the information that her fiance, Mike Kryst, is a farm boy and helps out at the market on his off hours from work at the Charlevoix Abstract Company.

Postal watch program offered

Senior citizens and handicapped persons are reminded that the Charlevoix Post Office, the local letter carrier's union and the Charlevoix County Emergency Services work together in a program to "watch out" for postal customers who might need help.

The postal carrier has almost daily contact with most people; he or she will usually notice when mail hasn't been taken out of the mailbox. If that person is elderly and lives alone, it could indicate a problem.

Those who are registered in the Carrier Alert program are given a decal to place inside the mailbox and the carrier knows to notify proper officials to get help.

The program which was established nationally in 1982 has been active in Charlevoix since January, 1988.

Anyone who wishes to sign up or needs additional information may call the Post Office at 547-2631 or Earl Muma at 547-6087.

Don Norman stands next to one of the tables in his Real Wood Furniture shop at the corner of South U.S. 31 and Carpenter Avenue.

Furniture shop opened

Don Norman has opened the Real Wood Shop at the corner of Carpenter and Bridge Streets.

He has a full line of unfinished dining room, living room, bedroom, and kitchen furniture, along with miscellaneous chairs, tables, desks, book shelves, armoires, framed mirrors, footstools, and other pieces.

"They are all made of the finest hardwoods, and we will refinish them for the buyer if he wants us to", Norman explained.

If a shopper cannot find the piece he is looking for in the shop, he is invited to look through the several catalogs from furniture manufacturers, which Norman keeps on hand, so an order may be placed that way. One of the manufacturers is Norman's Custom Made and Unfinished Furniture in Williamsburg, run by Don's brother, John Norman.

Norman hopes his Charlevoix shop is the first of many more. "People should learn to spend a little more and get the best,", he advised. "It will pay off in the long run."

How government vehicles are sold

More than 43,000 people bought used cars or trucks last year from an unusual source: the U.S. Government.

During fiscal year 1988 the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA), the federal government's multi-billion dollar business manager, sold 43,352 used vehicles – including sedans, station wagons, trucks, vans, buses and motorcycles – to the public at 625 sales in about 100 cities nationwide.

Income from the sales totaled $68,796,000, most of which is used to buy replacement vehicles for government agencies to use.

Information about GSA vehicle sales is free – and there is no charge to participate. GSA publicizes the sales through advertisements in local newspapers, the Commerce Business Daily and regional mailing lists. Consumers may also call special telephones for recorded information.

Potention buyers should listen to GSA's warning: Beware of firms which advertise that for $25, $50 or more they will provide information on how to buy surplus government property. Remember, GSA offers such information free.

No matter what these advertisers claim, it is GSA's experience that it is absolutely impossible to buy a confiscated luxury car for $500, or a vintage World War II Jeep for $49.

With beefed-up federal drug enforcement, GSA increasingly has been asked to dispose of confiscated luxury vehicles at public sale for federal law enforcement agencies – but the going price for these vehicles is not cheap.

Recently GSA attracted more than 200 bidders when it sold, for $266,841, five cars seized by the U.S. Marshals Service, including a 1989 Porsche 935, Kuntstharzlak E908-2 racer that went for a record $210,000.

GSA offers most used government vehicles to the public using one of three methods:

- The old-fashioned auction sale, where a GSA auctioneer takes voice bids on each vehicle;
- the "spot bid" sale, where written bids are submitted as each vehicle is offered for sale;
- the "sealed bid" sale, when offers usually are made by mail.

GSA gives no preference to individuals, dealers, or groups, including veterans and religious organizations. Neither GSA employees nor members of their immediate families can participate in the sales.

Most vehicles sold by GSA come from the federal fleet, a revolving inventory purchased by GSA for use by various government agencies. Others have been seized or confiscated by federal law enforcement agencies. A few were used in safety- and mileage-testing programs.

Regardless of mileage, most sedans and station wagons from the federal fleet are sold after three years of government use. Pickup trucks go on the block after six years or 50,000 miles and four-wheel-drive vehicles after six years or 40,000 miles.

Inspection periods are scheduled prior to all sales for the benefit and convenience of shoppers, who may bring a mechanic to evaluate the vehicles.

Bidders may check under the hood, kick the tires, slam the doors, inspect the interior, but may not take vehicles for a test drive. In most sales locations, buyers also may turn the engine over. GSA lists any known defects in the sale catalog.

Most people who buy used vehicles from GSA are satisfied customers, but bidders must expect to pay fair market value. Prices are keyed to various used car guides published by trade associations and commercial firms. GSA reserves the right to refuse all bids.

It's easy to buy a used vehicle from GSA. To obtain free information just call or write; Surplus Sales Federal Supply Service Bureau, U.S. General Services Administration, 230 S. Dearborn Street, Chicago, IL 60604. Phone: 312-353-0246.

Several high school athletes qualify for state track meet

By Tim Henne

Coming off last Tuesday's victory at the Petoskey Relays, the Charlevoix track team looked to have a good chance of winning the regional meet this past Saturday. Although that did not materialize, Charlevoix did have several individual qualifiers for the state meet and placed third as a team.

Both the boys and girls teams got off to a great start.

The girls two-mile relay team broke the old school record by 12 seconds and their own best by 37 seconds. Despite their school record, the team of Michelle Jacobs, Julie Bush, Inga Miessner and Tracey Smith placed second behind East Jordan.

The boys two-mile relay team, made up of Bill Burns, Dylan Stewart, Bill Crook and Scott Miller also qualified for state. They easily finished first in their heat with a time of 8.12 which was only six seconds off the school record.

Miller also qualified for state in the individual two-mile run.

Jason Whitley was the only other qualifier among the Rayder boys although Burns missed qualifying in the mile by only three seconds and Tony Warchol missed qualifying in the shot put by a single inch.

Whitley won the 100 meter and 300 meter hurdles as well as the pole vault and Rayder coach Ken Plude expects him to be a major factor at the state meet.

The boys' sprint relay teams were hampered by the loss of Brian Livingston to a midseason knee injury.

For the Rayder girls, Tracy Smith qualified for state in the 400 meter run with a time of 62.3 seconds. Sandy Fershee qualified in the high jump, clearing 4'11". Laura Wilmot continued and excellent season in the shot put, qualifying for state with a toss of 34'9".

The state meet will take place Saturday, June 3 at Alma.

CMS girls win track meet

The middle school girls track team finished first in a four-team meet last week while in the boys meet Matt Smith set a middle school record in the 3200 meter run with a time of 10:45.35.

In the girls meet, Charlevoix totalled 88 points while Gaylord had 63, Petoskey 55 and Grayling 21.

Sheila Siegwart led the Charlevoix team with first place finishes in the 55 and 100 meter hurdles. Other Rayder first place finishes in individual events went to Angie Lambert in the 100 meter dash and Bree Swan in the 70 meter dash.

Charlevoix also finished first in the 400 and 800 meter relays. Members of the 400 meter relay team were: Swan, Michelle Keem, Lambert and Mariann Pfister. Members of the 800 meter relay team were: Elsa Conlan, Becky Bragg, Lori Darrah and Aimee Livingston.

In the boys three-team meet, Charlevoix with 50 points placed behind Gaylord with 70 points and ahead of Petoskey with 47 points.

Smith had Charlevoix's only two first place finishes. He finished first in the 400 meter dash as well as in the 3200 meter run.

Charlevoix's high team total resulted from 11 second place finishes. Second place finishers for the Rayder boys were: David Skeel, Vince Voisin, Jody McGlinch, Jason Frabis, Ben Whitley, Chris Pease, Donny Jess, Zach Pajtas, Tim Miller, Jason VanLoo, Buddy Pitcher and J.B. Withers.

Charlevoix hosted the meet at Kipke Field.

Softball team splits games

Although Charlevoix lost a pair of games to league co-leader Cheboygan Saturday, the Rayder team played two of their better games of the season.

Charlevoix lost the opening game 8-1. Darsi Speneley took the pitching loss. She and Dana Haney had the Rayders only hits.

The second game was a one run nailbiter with Charlevoix coming up on the wrong end of a 5-4 score. Freshman Tammy Holm pitched well for the Rayders, but took the defeat.

Rayder batters were limited to three hits. Haney doubled, while Holm and Stacey Skeel each contributed singles.

Little League play begins

Charlevoix's Minor League Little League baseball season began May 16 with MacDonald's beating the Teachers' Pets 17-16 in a nail-biter and Twin Bay Glass defeating the McKeown Mustangs 19-12.

For MacDonald's, Eric Halverson had four hits, T.J. Carey three hits including two homeruns, Shay Hutchinson three hits and Jonathon Sell three hits.

For the Teachers' Pets, Colin Carr had four hits including one homerun, David Speneley had three hits and Grant Meggison three hits.

For Twin Bay Glass, Rusty Schepperly had three hits including a homerun, Todd Schaperkotter had three hits, Hunter Christoph had three hits and Matt Mikulski three hits.

For McKeown's Mustangs, Alan Case had three hits while Josh Holecheck and Eric Arvilla each had two.

Baseball team loses

Charlevoix's baseball team opened strong this spring, but has suffered a late-season slide. This past Saturday, the Rayders let leads slip away in losing twice to the visiting Cheboygan Chiefs.

Charlevoix lost the opening game 9-3 after leading 3-0. The Rayders' downfall was a six-run Chief's explosion in the third inning. The critical blow was a grandslam homerun.

Shawn Putman took the pitching loss. He was relieved by Dan Terryberry in the fourth inning.

Charlevoix had seven hits in the game. James Corwin and Jason Corwin each had a pair while Putman, Pat Elliot and Terryberry each had one.

In game two, Charlevoix also had an early lead, but Cheboygan scored the final run in the bottom of the sixth inning to take a 6-5 win.

Dave Loder, Mike Himebauch and Putman pitched for Charlevoix in the game. Himebauch also had a big game at the plate with a two-run homerun, a double and a single. James Corwin, Jason Corwin and Putman all had singles.

Yachting Notes

After two weeks of cool brisk winds the Wednesday sailors were treated to lighter breezes and warmer temperatures this past week. Phil set a starting line at Oyster Bay with a windward leg to Depot Beach and then a nice reach past Ferry Beach to Water's Edge. The last leg turned out to have light winds with some dramatic position changes. Dr. Dave's Pygmalion managed to ghost over the line and correct out to first place in Division A ahead of Gotcha, Mint Julep, MiJoy, and The Apprentice.

In the hotly contested Pearson Fleet Karl Jurries and crew showed they hadn't lost the touch over the winter and finished considerably ahead of Dr. Tinney (Lost Vermonter) with his new spinnaker with the cow (Everything in Vermont has cows on it!) in the middle. Following in order were Tireless, Cygnus, Kittiwake (Good job Roger), Flash, NoName, and Sandpiper. Hank Cawthra and crew in the Black Bandit proved they can beat J Boats finished ahead of Marty Jensen's Newsense and Tom Barnes' HMS Missle. Jim Mielke led the fleet around the course in the main and jib group followed by Maureen, Uncle Lou (the Bald Eagle), Cheemaun, Stalworth and Canusa. Stay tuned next week as the sailors sharpen their skills and sail handling!

Davis seeks to limit spearfishing

Congressman Bob Davis will soon introduce legislation that would limit Indian spearfishing on Michigan waters, his office said today.

In addition, the 11th District representative is drafting legislation calling for a Presidential Commission to review Indian treaties relating to fish and wildlife.

Davis is the vice chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which has jurisdiction over fish and wildlife matters.

"The Indian spearfishing crisis in Wisconsin is just one symptom of a much bigger problem," Davis said. "It's time we assemble an unbiased group to review the fish and wildlife implications of these treaties, many of which were created in the mid-1800's."

Davis said he would "do whatever is in my power to keep the same spearfishing problems that Wisconsin is experiencing out of Michigan."

Both bills will be introduced within the next several weeks, Davis said.

Piping plovers coming to Beaver Island

Biologists who witnessed the return of the piping plover to Beaver Island last summer are anxiously awaiting their arrival this spring.

The piping plover, a shorebird related to the killdeer, is a federally endangered species. Formerly widespread along the east shore of Lake Michigan, fewer than 20 pairs nested along Michigan shorelines last summer, according to Central Michigan University biologist Michael Hamas.

Increasing beachfront development and human interference have threatened piping plover habitat in recent decades, says Hamas.

"Currently, the best sightings of piping plovers have been at Sleeping Bear Sand Dunes, the islands in northern Lake Michigan, Wilderness State Park, and the south shore of Lake Superior," says Hamas, who has evaluated potential nesting sites the past two summers for the Department of Natural Resources.

Piping plovers have nested on High Island (west of Beaver Island) for several years; three pair were observed in 1988. Historically, plovers have lived on Beaver Island, but none had been observed for several years until last summer.

"Nesting habitat for the piping plover consists of sandy beaches interspersed with small stones and protected from wave action," says Hamas. "Because plovers also are sensitive to beach traffic, the best prospect for success lies along Beaver Island's west shoreline."

Piping plovers are similar in appearance to the killdeer. The killdeer has two bands on its chest; the piping plover has one. A bright orange mark on the piping plover's bill is a distinguishing feature, says Hamas.

Newly-hatched chicks have a hard enough time surviving without the interference of humans and recreational vehicles.

"In May or early June, the mother lays four eggs," says Hamas. "There is a relatively long incubation period of about a month and another month for rearing the birds. If the birds haven't hatched by early July, the adults don't have time to renest. The plovers spend only three months of the year here. The rest of the time is spent migrating and wintering."

Hamas says the mortality rate is as high as 50 percent.

"Chicks may get cold, or wet if in a storm, and become weak," he says. "Crows are tremendous predators and can easily pick off chicks. If a nesting bird is disturbed, it goes into a broken wing display to try to lure predators away from the chicks. On warm summer days, it doesn't take long off the nest for eggs to overheat."

At one time birds nested on Donegal Bay on Beaver Island, but shoreline development and recreation resulted in the abandonment of that habitat more than a decade ago, says Hamas. McCauley Point and McFadden Point, however, remain relatively undisturbed.

Last summer, a pair of birds nested on state-owned land at McFadden Point, and four chicks hatched on Independence Day weekend. Ornithology students from CMU's biological station on Beaver Island informed visitors of the rare birds' presence, and the beach was officially closed by the DNR. The adult plovers were successful in rearing two of their chicks.

Hamas will be returning to Beaver Island this summer to see if the plovers come back. Meanwhile, he urges vacationers and homeowners to be sensitive to the birds' plight.

"The chances of the plovers

returning to Beaver Island are good because the adults were successful in their reproductive effort," says Hamas. "However, to insure another year of success, the birds must be subjected to minimal disturbance. McFadden Point will remain closed to the public during the 1989 nesting season.

"We need everyone's support in fostering the piping plover's recovery. I don't think anyone is intentionally destroying these birds. People are just ignorant of the problem. Once a species is lost, it is lost forever. That's why it is important people join the effort in preserving the birds' nesting habitats."

Individuals who spot piping plovers on their beachfronts should contact the non-game wildlife division of the DNR.

Birds ploverlooked

Piping plovers, Kirtland's warblers, and bald eagles will receive protection during their nesting periods on state-owned lands in Michigan.

Between May 1 and August 15, portions of state-owned lands of Lake Superior State Forest, Luce County; Mackinaw State Forest, Emmet County; Beaver Island Wildlife Research Area and High Island, Charlevoix County will be closed to entry to protect piping plover nesting areas along Great Lakes shorelines.

Closure of these lands will provide the best possible opportunity for these birds' production and survival. The areas will be posted, and it will be unlawful to enter without a written permit from the DNR.

For specific description of the land closures and information on permits for entry, contact the DNR's Wildlife Division at either PO Box 30028, Lansing, 48909, Phone 517-373-1263; or PO Box 128, 8717 N. Roscommon Road, Roscommon 48653, Phone 517-275-5151.

*Ford Tempo faster than Chevy Corsica in passing tests.
Ford Escort brakes better than Chevy Cavalier.

In recent independent tests the Ford Tempo GL went from 50 to 70 mph in just 8.43 seconds. It took the Chevrolet Corsica LT a full 9.39 seconds to reach the same speed. Independent tests also proved the superior braking power of the Escort LX over the Chevrolet Cavalier. From a speed of 60 mph, it took the Escort only 138.3 feet to come to a complete stop. The Cavalier needed 150.5 feet.

CMU coach to address grads

Walt Drenth - all dressed up, standing behind a podium, staying in one place long enough to give a commencement speech. Now wait a minute.

Many Charlevoix people will have to pause to reconcile that picture with the mental picture they have of Drenth, a 1977 Charlevoix High School graduate who now coaches the Central Michigan University cross country team.

Those people might find it easier to visualize Drenth in shorts, T-shirt and running shoes with his legs churning and carrying him mile after mile on training runs on country roads south of Charlevoix.

Drenth will be the guest speaker at Charlevoix's 1989 commencement ceremony which will begin at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 4 in the high school gym.

During the past dozen years, Charlevoix's high school cross country program has become one of the most formidable and respected in the state. Drenth was one of Charlevoix's first all-state runners, part of the foundation the program has been built upon.

Pete Spieles became Charlevoix cross country coach in 1976. At that time, the team had only three quality runners with any experience: Walt Drenth; his younger brother the late Jeff Drenth; and Mark Russell. And that year, Jeff and Mark were only sophomores and wouldn't peak until later in the careers.

In 1976 high school cross country meets, Walt Drenth normally finished first and the rest of Charlevoix's team...well, some

School board interviews for business manager

The Charlevoix school board will interview two candidates this week for the school business manager position.

Current business manager Vince Olach is retiring. His last day on the job will be June 23.

School superintendent Gordon VanWieren said the school hopes to hire a new business manager prior to June 23 so he can be phased in to the position.

"We're in a position where we have to start making some decisions," VanWieren told the board at a special May 25 meeting.

Council schedules public hearing for DDA/TIFA proposed agreement

The Charlevoix City Council will conduct a public hearing Monday, June 5 to discuss a proposed agreement concerning the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA).

The DDA and TIFA acquire tax funds from rising tax assessments in the downtown and Ferry Beach areas. Those funds are used for improvements in those areas.

DDA and TIFA revenues have been a bone of contention with the school and county. Those two taxing bodies would get a portion of the revenue from the increased tax assessments in those districts if there were not a DDA or TIFA.

During meetings closed to the public, officials from the city, school and county worked out a proposed agreement to redistribute the funds.

When the proposed agreement was announced, the city, school

Ahead-lines

Summer brings activity

When the bridge opens, it's easy to tell the locals from people just passing through.

People just passing through town, stop their cars, figure out what's going on and say, "Oh, the bridge is going up to let the boats go through. How quaint. Let's go watch."

Meanwhile, a local will hear the ringing bell, see the red light and unleash a blue streak of profanity by no means suitable for this publication.

Memorial Day has come and gone and summer is officially upon us. Charlevoix folks, prepare yourselves. The hoarde is soon to descend upon us. Yet fear not. For the most part, it's a friendly hoarde.

Taken all around, summer has to be seen as desirable. Think of it this way. Would you want to have winter all year long?

Summer brings increased activity, both in a recreational sense and in a business sense.

Granted, summer does have its drawbacks. Traffic in Charlevoix's downtown area becomes a burden in the summer. The city council has been considering several measures which might correct the problem, to at least some degree.

City police chief Dennis Halverson has had discussions with the Michigan Department of Transportation and with councilmen. He's scheduled to meet with the council again in the near future.

One of the primary areas of concern is Bridge Street, near Park Avenue. Traffic has bottlenecked in the west lane for years and city officials hope to come up with a way to correct that problem.

Along with increased traffic, summer also brings construction. Winter is no time to be pouring cement in Northern Michigan so that type of work is given a priority in the summer.

Once again this year, the city will be doing a substantial amount of sidewalk work throughout the community. City plans are to finish up sidewalk repairs on south side residential areas this summer and also make major inroads on north side sidewalk replacement.

Memorial Day observances

Local servicemen offered a rifle salute in East Park in conjunction with a wreath being tossed into the water in memory of servicemen lost at sea.

A flag was lowered and raised alongside the mariner's monument as taps were played.

Time off for misbehavior

Writer's note: (A captive, he sits indoors and longs for freedom. His blue eyes look out the window to the green grass. He wishes he could run through that grass; run through the grass not only for escape, but just for the thrill of running through the grass.

The sun shines on a clear day. Outdoors the weather is beautiful. The green grass and the weather call to him, begging him to come out and be with them. But he can not answer the call. He can not come out and play.

Baby-face Fred is a captive. He's an eight-year-old boy who would love to go out and play today. But he isn't allowed. On a beautiful spring day, Baby-face has the terrible misfortune of being confined in school.

In the interest of bringing you the real story, a story with depth beyond the superficial, the Courier conducted the following interview with Baby-face Fred, a hardened elementary student.

Courier: How much time are you in for?

Baby-face: Thirteen to seventeen years.

Courier: What are you in here for?

Baby-face: I asked one of the guards that once. She said I was in here for "an education." I said I didn't do it.

Courier: How'd you get yourself thrown into this place?

Baby-face: I got put in here with a bunch of other prisoners. None of us are quite sure why we were put here. the only crime we were guiltyof is turning five years old. They claimed the birth certificates and hospital records were proof that we were five. Proof. Some proof. Sure those little tiny finger prints may have been mine and that may have been my name. But I didn't sign my name. I can't print that neatly.

Courier So it must be pretty tough in here, huh?

Baby-face: No kidding. Especially this time of year. We do get to go outside once in a while. It's a thing they have called recess. I think some court ruled that being in a place like this without recess would be cruel and unusual punishment.

Courier: Is that the only time you get to go outside?

Baby-face: No. We get out a little bit in the afternoon and night. It's called a play-release-program."

Courier: That must be a relief.

Baby-face: "Yeah, it's the only thing that keeps me sane. Still, some of the guards make us take books home and read them. They're trying to do things to our minds. It's all a mental thing.".

Courier: Do many of the inmates read these books at home?

Baby-face: A few do. They call it "studying" or "doing their homework." Personally, I don't go in for it. The way I see it, any kid who would pass up a game of tag or touch football with the neighbor kids to stay inside on a spring evening and "do homework" is a sicko.

Courier: Any chance of parole?

Baby-face: That's the one ray of light in this whole situation. In a couple of days, they're going to parole us all for three months.

Courier: All of you? I've never heard of any other prison institution paroling all of the inmates at once.

Baby-face: They do it here.

Courier: Why? Because of overcrowding.

Baby-face: No. It's something far more traditional among folks my age. I'm getting time off for misbehavior.

The ground has been leveled off and sod will be put in for the summer until a new bandshell is constructed later in the year.

Prom night diplomacy

In other columns I have prated at length about how it's the young people who keep Charlevoix in the tourist business.

Making beds, cleaning rooms, waiting on table, cooking, busing, washing dishes, clerking at summer shops — you name it.

Charlevoix's tourist industry would collapse if all the young people in town suddenly declared a general strike.

Every once in a while, however, something happens to underscore the fact that the youth of Charlevoix are as diplomatic as they are ambitious.

The other night a teenage couple was having dinner at one of our fancier restaurants before attending their prom. The young lady had spent a fortune on her prom dress and her date, intent on making a good impression, was resplendent in his rented tux.

Everything was going fine until the young gentleman opened the menu and saw at a glance that his pre-prom expenditures had depleted his cash reserve to the point where he could never afford two dinners.

Only a quick infusion of ready-money would save the evening.

Excusing himself to go to the men's room, the young swain rushed to a telephone and called his father, asking for an immediate loan of $20.

Dad agreed, but a problem arose when the old man reached the restaurant. How do you deliver $20 to your finacially embarrassed son without really embarrassing him in front of his date?

The boy's father purloined one of the waiters in the bar to discuss the problem. The waiter turned out to be Eric Hoffman of Charlevoix, who just happened to be waiting on the boy's table.

Quick-thinking Eric was able to come up with a solution that saved face all around.

He folded the $20 bill into his palm of one hand and picked up a packet of coffee sweetener in the other. Then, while dad remained out of sight, Eric marched into the dining room and up to the table where the impoverished youth was sitting.

"Oops!" said Eric, dropping the packet of Sweet-'n'-Low on the floor next to the table. As he bent over to pick it up, he slipped the $20 into the boy's lap.

Apparently Miss Date never realized how close she came to spending the evening in the kitchen washing dishes.

There should be a spot for Eric in the diplomatic corps if he ever tires of waiting on table.

EVERY ONCE IN a while, the powers-that-be do the right thing.

On April 26, Rudy Linares, 23, a house painter from Cicero, Ill., strode into a Chicago hospital armed with a handgun.

He entered the room where his 15-month-old son Samuel lay brain-damaged and comatose and picked up the boy.

Then he unplugged the baby's respirator and defied hospital workers at gunpoint to stop him.

A half hour later the little boy died in his daddy's arms.

At first, the Illinois attorney's office charged Linares with murder in Samuel's death.

But when the case went before a grand jury, cooler heads prevailed.

Instead, Linares pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of unlawful use of a weapon and was sentenced to one year conditional discharge — which means he will spend no time in jail.

It is hard for most of us to imagine the pain that Linares and his wife must have suffered ever since little Samuel swallowed a balloon last August. The balloon shut off oxygen to his brain and he has been in an irreversible coma ever since.

But the law is a tough master and Linares' hands were tied when Samuel was put on life-support, even though his chances of recovery were zero.

Finally, in desperation, Linares took the law into his own hands and let Samuel die.

The act was as loving as it was bold.

"I did it because I loved my son," Linares told reporters after he was arrested.

Last year, the Linares family asked that life support be withdrawn but the hospital refused. Max Brown, the hospital's attorney, said such an action would have left the hospital open to criminal charges.

In December, Linares attempted to disconnect his son's respirator, but hospital workers stopped him. But they didn't notify police.

Technically, I suppose, Linares broke the law. But I can't think of any law more deserving of being broken.

Letters to the Editor:

School bus program criticized

Dear Editor,

On Friday, May 19th, the Charlevoix Elementary School was dismissed early due to a power failure. On that day my six-year-old nephew had a note to ride a different bus than usual to my house where his mother would be waiting for him. This doesn't seem important in itself, but it turned into every parent's nightmare as my sister-in-law and I watched the bus come and go and my nephew did not get off. She quickly chased the bus and made phone calls to no avail. I decided to go house to house to find him, thinking he may have gotten confused by the strange surroundings. As I continued my search I found a neighborhood boy, also a kindergarten student, standing in the rain because no one was home at his house and he was locked out. Walking back to my house where I could call his dad at work, I saw my nephew running down the road toward my house, crying all the way. The bus driver had dropped him off ½ mile from my house in the rain, on a major highway!

This is an outrage! We called the principal of the school, he told us to call the bus garage; we called the bus garage, they said "...there was a substitute driver." Is that an excuse? We are talking about five and six-year-old children! This is precisely how children end up missing or kidnapped! The worst part of this nightmare is that everyone passed the blame onto someone else!

Who is responsible for our children when they are at school or being transported to and from by the buses? The school system is – that's who! All of those people work for us – the taxpaying parents! As far as I'm concerned they are not doing an adequate job notifying the parents of schedule changes or in supervising their busing system! I've heard many comments about the busing, comments about never knowing when to expect the bus in the morning and of children missing the bus because the driver didn't slow down enough to see the child walking out to the stop. Come on bus driver, have a heart, these are children, for heavens sake!

Changes need to be made in Charlevoix. Our children's safety is in serious jeopardy when in the hands of the Charlevoix Public School system.

Upset over stolen flag

Editor:

"Oh say, does that Star Spangled Banner yet wave - - -" somewhere in this area? I mean that one that was removed from its pole on Mason Street by person or persons unknown on May 13th. While we commend the "love of country" that must have prompted such action, we regret the lack of patriotism in the manner of obtaining it. That flag flew over the capitol of the United States briefly and was obtained from our Congressman. We can get another the same way, but then so can you, so why deprive the neighborhood of a colorful, inspiring symbol of justice and pride in a free land at a time when other nations' flags are being torn down and trampled in a spirit of rebellion?

Why not return it (no questions asked) to its rightful place and restore both a cherished possession and our faith in human kind?

—Mrs. R.H. Giffin

Gardeners tend Memorial Garden

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club invites you to visit its Memorial Garden. This garden is located on one of two islands on Mercer Boulevard at the end of East Dixon Avenue.

The garden consists of such plantings as hosta, weeping mulberry, purple-leaf plum, variegated dogwood, burning bush, junipers and tamarix.

Established in 1977, this garden has been maintained by the Garden Club ever since. It was included in the city park system by the city council by resolution in 1978. Modification can come only through a public hearing.

A goal for the Memorial Garden Committee this year is to have a huge rock placed in the garden. An engraved bronze plate with the garden's particulars would be placed on the rock. If anyone knows of a large attractive rock or would like to contribute such a stone to the garden, please call Nancy Fowler, 547-9314.

Memorial contributions made by members and friends throughout the year enable the club to plant and care for this garden. People wishing to remember a loved one with a living memory need not be members of the club. Those interested in contributing may call or write Nancy Fowler, 409 E. Dixon Ave., Charlevoix.

Group makes free well water nitrate testing available

The Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is offering free testing of drinking water wells this summer. The testing is being performed as part of the Watershed Council's Groundwater Protection and Education Program. It is funded through a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

The tests will look for the presence of nitrate in the water. Nitrate is a naturally occurring compound composed of nitrogen and oxygen and is one potential contaminant of groundwater. The Watershed Council has chosen to test for nitrate because: it is a common contaminant in rural areas; it can cause adverse health risks for infants and some adults who drink the water; and it is often an indicator of other contaminants. The test results will allow the identification of areas of high nitrate contamination.

The Watershed Council will enter the test data into a computer using a digitizer. The computer will then produce maps of nitrate levels in groundwater. The Watershed Council will provide the maps to the public, local governmental officials, and resource planners along with recommendations for dealing with problem areas, if any are found. Individual names of all well-owners will be kept confidential.

Nitrate contamination can be caused by a number of human activities. These include malfunctioning or poorly-sited septic systems, animal wastes, and the improper use of fertilizers. Nitrate is extremely soluble and can move easily through the soil into the drinking water supply.

A total of 2,500 wells will be tested throughout the Watershed council's service area of Emmet, Charlevoix, and Cheboygan counties. Of these, 1,400 will be randomly selected to ensure that they are evenly distributed throughtout the area. Names of home-owners have been selected from the tax records. Watershed Council staff and volunteers are now calling these homeowners to ask if they would like a free well-water test. An additional 500 tests will be performed for Watershed Council members and the general public on a first-come basis. The remaining 600 tests will be reserved for future intensive sampling in selected areas.

The testing program will begin in May and will continue through the summer. The highest levels of contamination usually occur in the spring when rain and snowmelt cause grater groundwater movement. Because of this, and because only a limited number of tests will be offered in each area, the Watershed Council urges you to contact them immediately if you are interested in having your well tested. Doug Fuller, Water Quality Technician, is coordinating the testing program and can schedule the test. For further information, call 616-347-1181.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by the Rev. Thom Black
First Baptist Church

Many times we bring undue condemnation upon ourselves, especially in the hour of sorrow. I guess we think we have done something to cause God to punish us. True, this does happen at times (you will know when), but not every sorrow that crosses our path. God has valuable lessons to teach us from sorrow, and happy is the person who can see them as they will help bear us up in the hour of sorrow.

Remember that all sunshine and no clouds and rain make the desert and that is a most unpleasant place. We need the clouds and rain in order to appreciate the sunshine. Our sorrows help us appreciate the sunshine. Our sorrows help us appreciate the joys of life, only if we have gone thru the same thing or sorrow can truly help us sympathize with others. (Read the story of Joseph and Moses).

More than likely God has some one down the road that needs you and your word of sympathy. Could be that real soon you will be able to help someone, because you know the way. So even if this hour looks dark to you please look to God and I am sure He will enlarge your soul and make you a better person because of the sorrow in your life. Just think, you will be able to help someone! Remember that anything that will cause us to come to God and learn to trust Him more will soon be a blessing.

Psychic opens shop in Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

The most unusual business establishment to open in Charlevoix this spring is Mary's Psychic European Card and Palm Reading on U.S. 31 South.

Mary Stokes not only reads Tarot cards and palms but offers advice and comfort just by "talking over" peoples' problems. She says she learned the art of psychic reading from her Romanian great grandmother Bianca, whose name appears above the door of her establishment.

"I have been practicing it since I was a young girl," the pleasant-mannered Mary related. As for just talking things over, Mary says people come to her and say, "I have a problem (about something specific). What should I do about it?"

Psychic Mary Stokes is shown in her "Reading Room" which is equipped with religious items, Tarot cards and a diagram of the human hand.

"Of course they have to help themselves in solving their problems, but they often come back and say my advice worked out for them," she added.

The problems cover the whole range of life experiences, according to Mary–love, marriage, business, health, happiness, friends, and many others. Those seeking advice are mostly women, middle-aged and up. "Young people don't think they have problems," Mary explained. "They leave the worrying up to their parents." While not many men seek her advice, she does have some male clients, she says.

Mary's sessions with her clients last half–an hour, sometimes "a little longer."

"Then they often make an appointment for another session or call back later and make an appointment," she explained.

The room in which Mary holds her sessions is decorated with religious pictures ("I suggest people go to church") she explained. On a table, there is a large white-covered Holy Bible from which she often reads passages, a diagram of the human palm, a deck of Tarot cards, some candles, and a few cut flowers.

Mary and her husband, Miller Stokes, a retired general contractor, came here from Dayton, Ohio a couple of months ago. "One day we just decided to come up here and we're glad we did," Mary added, "because the people we have met are all very nice."

Reading and consultation hours are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., or later by appointment. Mary charges $10 for a palm reading, $20 for a Tarot reading, and gives "consultations" free of charge.

New owner joins local marina

Mel Renaud, who has operated the Dry Harbor Marine on U.S. 31 South for three years, recently acquired a partner, changed the business name, and added a line of yachts to his sales yard.

The new partner is Tom Brennan of Brennan Marine in Bay City, who brings with him the franchise for the Carver yacht line.

The name of the company has been changed to "Brennan Dry Harbor." As Renaud explains it, "People know me and my work. I've been working with boats around here for over 30 years. Tom Brennan adds something more".

Renaud has almost doubled the size of the marina in the last three years and plans further enlargement this year. It is a complete boat service shop, with storage and repair facilities, ship's store, fishing equipment, and dealership for inboard and outboard Mercruisers, as well as the new Carver yachts. He also provides car and motor home storage and valet service, especially for residents of Beaver Island.

Watersport

Mel Renaud is shown next to a boat at Brennan Dry Harbor which formerly was known as Dry Harbor Marine.

Beauty shop changes hands

The new owner-operator of New Creation Hair Design in Kusina's Plaza is Michelle (Shelley) Stevens.

Shelley Davis Stevens is a local girl who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1984 and from the Petoskey Beauty School the same year. She has been in the beauty business ever since.

She describes her salon as a "full service salon for men and women," with special services such as artificial nails, tanning beds, European body wrap, and Redken products.

Shelley and her two employees, Vicki Renaud and Carrie Richardson, keep the shop open Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and evenings by appointment.

Shelley is married to Jeff Stevens and is the mother of nine-month-old Brandon.

Hospital correction

A headline in last week's Courier reading, "Hospital may add new beds" did not convey an accurate perception of what is planned.

What the hospital is actually doing is changing the designation of some of beds already there. According to need certain beds will be designated "swing-bed care" rather than "acute care."

Compassionate Friends meet

The Compassionate Friends group will meet at 7 p.m., June 6 at the Community Reformed Church. The group's topic will be "Handling the Guilt."

Compassionate Friends is a self-help organization offering friendship and understanding to parents who are bereaved due to the death of a son or daughter. For more information, contact Maxine Drenth (547-6976) or Sue Dixon (547-6124).

Central Drug celebrates remodeling

by PEG OHLE

The southwest corner of Bridge and Clinton Streets has been the home of the Central Drug Store since 1897, when the fire-damaged Noble Hotel was re-built and turned into a pharmacy.

And the Central Drug Store has been the business home of the Ochs family since 1914—for 75 years.

Harley Ochs started work in the drug store in 1914 and purchased it in 1929. A few years later, in 1932, his son Frank began his term of service. Then, in 1957, the third generation, John Ochs, began his drug store career.

Today, John Ochs and his wife, Lani, are the operating pharmacists at the Central Drug Store, with Frank helping out behind the counter when needed.

There was a short period of time, from October, 1957 to January, 1958, when the store was not in operation. That was when the old building was torn down and replaced with the present structure.

John and Lani met while studying at the School of Pharmacy at Ferris State University. "We were always seated near each other," Lani recalls. Now they are working closely to celebrate the 75th anniversary of the Ochs Central Drug Store.

For the occasion, they will have a "Grand Opening" next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday to show off their newly-remodeled interior and offer some special services and price reductions.

The store has new carpeting, new paint, new soffit lighting, and newly-arranged aisles.

More items have been added to the health care line, including post-surgical supplies such as wheel chairs, walkers, and crutches. The size of the greeting card section has been doubled, the office supply area has been increased, and the cosmetic area has been completely redone. All of this is in addition to re-arrangement of the gift section, candy and tobacco sections, and magazine section. Two special publications in the magazine section are the Charlevoix Cookbook published by the Charlevoix Historical Society and the Ronald McDonald Cookbook.

As part of its Grand Opening, Central Drug will provide cholesterol tests next Tuesday, cosmetics will be 20 percent off, free stamps will be given with the purchase of greeting cards, and there will be several free gift items and sales on many others.

The Central Drug Store has been a "Good Neighbor Pharmacy" since 1983, one of the first in Michigan to join this nationwide group which sells many private label items.

Assisting with the Grand Opening next week will be Elaine Smith, who has been with Central Drug since 1951, Ella Ingalls, who has been employed there since 1963, and John and Lani's son, Mike, who is now working there part time.

Central Drug Store has been owned and operated by the Ochs family for 75 years. Shown from left are John Ochs, Frank Ochs and Lani Ochs. The store is planning a celebration following recent remodeling.

Realtors informed of pending legislation

The Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors recently held a general membership meeting at the Elk River Inn, Elk Rapids.

The featured speaker was Senator Connie Binsfield of Maple City. Her address covered the various aspects of House Bill 4296 (Jondahl) also known as the Amended Sand Dune Protection and Management Act of 1976 as compared to Senate Bill 179.

These Bills to regulate development on "Critical Sand Dunes Areas" are of vital importance to our area.

Antrim and Charlevoix Counties together contain 2800 total acres of proposed critical dune areas, both public and private.

At the meeting, Senator Binsfield answered many questions which were raised by Board members. She also stressed the importance of becoming involved in this legislation to assure fair and equitable rules for all.

The public should contact any legislator currently involved with the Bill, with any questions, concerns or suggestions they may have.

Golf tournament benefits hospital

Area golfers of all skill levels will have a chance for big prizes and three-entree dinner at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Benefit Golf Tournament and Dinner on Sunday, June 18, at Antrim Dells Golf Club in Atwood.

This year in addition to a new car from Kusina Motors in Charlevoix for the first hole-in-one on the 13th hole, and $200 to the winning team, there will be other cash prizes as well as prizes to the best men's team, women's team and mixed team. Prizes include gift certificates donated by area golf courses, shops, and restaurants.

Barb and Ed Evanish, owners of the Antrim Dells Club, are the hosts for the hospital benefit with this year's proceeds to go toward an emergency control module which will tie in with area ambulance equipment and provide immediate EKG readouts in the hospital's Emergency Room.

Tickets are $50 for golf and dinner or $15 for dinner only. Included in the ticket are the golf entry fee, a golf cart, and a three entree buffet catered by the new management of the Antrim Dells Restaurant.

The format of the tournament is a four-person scramble scored on the Peoria System which gives foursomes of almost any skill level a good change to win. The tournament gets underway with a shotgun start at 2 p.m. Registration and starting hole assignments end at 1:30 p.m. Non-golfers are invited to join the players for dinner to be served starting at 6 p.m.

Entry forms are available at all Charlevoix Golf Courses as well as at Antrim Dells and at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Play is limited to the first 112 reservations. Call 547-4024 for information or to register. One-half of the ticket cost is tax deductible.

Baseball team sweeps two games

Charlevoix's baseball team swept Elk Rapids in a May 25 double-header in Charlevoix.

Mike Himebauch baffled the Elk Rapids hitters in the first game as he pitched a 4-hit shutout. Charlevoix took game one 9-0. Himebauch struck out eight and walked one.

The Rayders had eight hits in the game, including a solo home run by Tom Herriman. Dan Terryberry had two singles. Jason Corwin and Chris Dobrowolski each doubled and Pat Elliott, James Corwin and Guy Gengle had singles.

The second game was much closer with Charlevoix sneaking out with a 8-7 win. Elliott got the win, striking out nine while allowing four walks and five hits. He received relief help from Himebauch, who picked up a save.

The Rayders continued to hit well in the second game, totalling 14 hits: Dobrowolski hit a two-run homer, while Himebauch contributed three singles and James McGee two singles. Gengle, Herriman, Terryberry, Eliott, Shawn Putman, James Corwin, Jason Corwin and Jordan Spencer each had one single.

Tennis team wins regional

Charlevoix's tennis team is the regional champion for the fifth straight year.

This past weekend the Rayders took first place among 10 teams in regional competition. Harbor Springs placed second.

Charlevoix will now advance to the state finals tournament, June 2 and 3 in Kalamazoo. In recent years, Charlevoix has consistantly finished among the top 10 Class C schools in the state.

At the regional tournament, every Charlevoix singles player and all but one doubles team won at least the first round. Charlevoix's number two and three doubles teams each won all of their matches. The number two team of Scott Crain and Webb Friedly is now 16-0 on the season. The number three team of Chad DeYoung and Bob Sell is 15-1.

Following are the tournament results:

Number one singles - Ryan Holmes won his first match 6-2, 6-3 and lost his second match 6-4, 7-6.

Number two singles - Tim Jervis won his first match 6-1, 6-1, his second match 6-3,4-6, 7-6, his third match 6-2, 7-5 and lost in the finals 6-3, 6-3.

Number three doubles - DeYoung and Sell won their first match 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, their second match 6-2, 6-4, and in the finals beat a Harbor Springs team 7-5, 6-2.

Lundteigen said he was pleased with the team's play, particularly among the singles. He said Jervis played extremely well, beating opponents he had lost to earlier in the season.

CMS track team has a bad meet

Charlevoix's girls finished in a tie for third while the boys finished all alone in last at last week's junior high conference track meet.

Charlevoix's running ranks were somewhat depleted as several of the athletes were away on a school field trip to Chicago.

In the girls meet, Charlevoix finished with a team total of 73 points which left them tied with Petoskey for third among the seven teams competing. Cheboygan won the meet with 116 points while Sault Ste. Marie finished second with 108.

Individually, Charlevoix's Jamie Doan placed first in the long jump with a leap of 13 feet 11 inches. Charlevoix also won both the 400 and 800 meter relays. Members of the 800 meter relay team were: Elsa Conlan, Ellie Frey, Aimee Livingston and Jodi Allison. Members of the 400 meter team were: Bree Swan, Michelle Keem, Angie Lambert and Frey.

The 400 meter team set a new conference record with a time of 55.89 seconds.

In the boys meet, Charlevoix totalled only 43 and one-half points. Gaylord won the meet with 134 points.

No Charlevoix boy took first place although Don Jess placed second in the pole vault and Matt Miller placed second in the 200 meter dash.

Annual free fishing weekend planned

Michigan's fourth annual Free Fishing Weekend is June 10 & 11 All fishing and trout-salmon stamp fees will be waived these two days for residents and outstate visitors on the state's inland and Great Lakes waters, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

This special weekend is held each year in Michigan in conjunction with the National Fishing Week, June 5-11, which is chaired this year by General Chuck Yeager. Michigan joins 24 other states in offering free fishing days.

"We're not just offering a free license these two days, but also a special opportunity for veteran anglers and fishing groups to share their fishing skills and ethics with new anglers," said DNR Director David F. Hales.

A fishing event planner packet and other fishing promotion and support materials are available from the DNR to groups planning fishing clinics, debris and tournaments during the special weekend. The packet can be obtained by calling the DNR's Fisheries Division at 517-373-1280.

Many fishing derbies and clinics will be held statewide to coincide with the state's Free Fishing Weekend. A list of the statewide Free Fishing Weekend events will be released by the DNR in late May.

On June 9 and 10, as part of the Free Fishing activities, four highway welcome centers, in Menominee, Clare, New Buffalo and Monroe, will also feature free fishing event information for anglers, and free boat safety checks for boaters.

The Departments of Natural Resources and Transportation and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will host these fishing information and boat safety stations. Hours of operation will be from noon to 6 p.m. on Friday, June 9 and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 10.

The DNR also will waive the $2 car and $4 car-trailer entry fees at its 44 user-fee public access boat launching sites (not State Parks) during June 10 and 11. Many restaurants plan to cook the fish people catch and some motels are offering fishing weekend packages on June 10 & 11.

DNR statistics show more than two million anglers fish in Michigan each year, including an estimated half million salmon anglers. The state offers a large variety of fresh water game fish for the angler within its 38,000 miles of Great Lakes waters, 12,000 inland lakes and 36,000 miles of rivers, including 12,600 miles of trout waters.

To keep abreast of fishing conditions statewide, anglers may call the DNR's 24-hour, weekly updated fishing conditions hotline at 517-373-0908. The DNR's Free Fishing Weekend phone line, 517-373-0257, offers additional information on the special free fishing weekend.

Helpful fishing brochures and handouts, obtained free through the DNR's Information Services Center at P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI 48909 517-373-1220, include:

- 1989 Michigan Fishing Guide - list of fishing rules and regulations.
- 1989-90 Michigan Boat Launching Directory - county list of 700 public access sites.
- Michigan Charter book - contains more than 400 fishing and sailing charter operators.
- 1989 Michigan Harbors Guide - listing nearly 100 recreational Great Lakes harbors.
- 1989 Michigan Master Angler Award form - patches awarded for fish of specified weight.

Some of the fishing events to coincide with Michigan's Free Fishing Weekend in Emmet-Charlevoix counties - Various restaurants and motels will cook and serve, free of charge, fish caught June 10 & 11. For more information, call 1-800-845-2828. Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament will be held June 9, 10 and 11.

Fishing secrets revealed

Need a ruler, but forgot to take one with you on your fishing trip? If you have a dollar in your wallet, you'll be prepared just the same; a bill measures just over six inches in length.

Fish have a keen sense of smell. Always be sure to wash away tell-tale odors from your hand before handling line or lures, especially after applying insect repellent. The chemical ingredients not only repel mosquitoes and gnats, they can repel fish from your plug or spinner as well; they can also weaken your fishing line.

Chris Dominic, 10, of Charlevoix caught this fat 1 lb. 7 oz perch in Round Lake on a wiggler last week.

Hayes Twp. to be reappraised

The Hayes Township Board recently hired Robert Logee, a Level 3 Assessor, to re-appraise township properties.

According to Township Supervisor A. Paul Hoadley, the township has not been reappraised since the early 1970's. "New properties have been added to the assessment roll, but old properties have not been reviewed since the last complete appraisal, allowing for inequities in property values," he explained.

Hoadley also noted that the Michigan State Tax Commission recently notified Hayes Township that there were several deficiencies in its assessment records, the long interval since the last appraisal being one of them.

Hayes Township property owners should expect Logee to be inspecting their land, homes, farms, businesses, and factories over the next several months, Hoadley advises. "Those who are not home when he does his preliminary property appraisal will be left with a notice inviting them to contact Logee or me if they want more information, or would like Logee to return when they are home," he added.

Logee will be paid $24,000 to complete the re-appraisal over a two-year period. Two large appraisal companies submitted bids in the $44,000 range, according to Hoadley.

Substance abuse figures released

Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services reports that in the last fiscal year, 225 residents of Charlevoix County were treated for substance abuse in one of its programs.

The agency serves 23 counties.

Last year, with a budget of $2,903,186, the agency provided 59,470 units of casefinding, outpatient, prevention, and residential services to persons ranging in age from 15 to senior citizen status. Over half of the services were provided to those in the 15 to 29 year age group.

Northern Michigan Substance Abuse Services is 60 percent funded by the State Office of Substance Abuse and receives other funds from patients' fees, the state liquor tax, and local (county) assessments.

Historical Society Notes

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY NEWS

By MARY MARGARET GEIKEN

The Harsha House, 103 State Street, was built in 1891 by Horace Harsha. It is the home of the Charlevoix Historical Society. During the past month, the lawn has been manicured and the flower beds have come alive again, thanks to the Charlevoix Garden Club. We wish to thank their members for their valuable services on the plantings.

The museum now has a full-time Director, Geoffrey Reynolds. He will be at the museum from 9 a.m to 5 p.m Monday through Friday, and by appointment. For further information on the Society's services and other items, please contact him at (616)547-0373.

Membership chairman Hilda Gibson reports 165 current members for 1989 and 135 life members. If you would like to become a member, please contact the Director for further information.

The initial "sample" copy of the Charlevoix Historical Society Newsletter was mailed out in April to members. The newsletter is edited by Pat Gaskin and will be mailed out quarterly for better communication with our members.

The Society is in need of a curio cabinet for displaying items in the newly-restored "1880 Parlor." Please contact Reynolds if you have any information pertaining to this need.

The annual "Open House" schedule starts on June 23, from 1 to 4 o'clock, Wednesday through Sunday. The Director will be available from 9 to 5 Wednesday through Sunday.

A new Scholarship Committee has been named: Bud Kohler, chairman; Pat Ranger; and Lou Orlowski, directors.

The annual "Attic Auction" will take place Thursday, July 27, at 6 p.m. Items for sale are being solicited now. Please contact Reynolds for donations. Note: Sale items are not to be donated as museum artifacts; they should be donated for sale only.

Traffic agencies meet

Public and private traffic safety agencies from 10 northeast Michigan counties held the inaugural meeting of the Northern Lower Traffic Safety Committee on thursday, May 18, at the Holiday Inn of Gaylord. Gaylord.

"The purpose of the committee is to provide a forum in which agencies work together to make driving safer in this area," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager. "When traffic safety executives coordinate their efforts, traffic safety programs are more effective."

Last year there were nearly 400,000 accidents in Michigan, resulting in 156,318 injuries and 1,632 fatalities.

"We believe the collective efforts of this committee can make a difference in reducing traffic accidents," Cullen said.

The committee will be comprised of police, judges, traffic engineers, educators and other civic officials from Alcona, Alpena, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties.

AAA Michigan and the Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning sponsor nine regional traffic safety committees around the state.

Grange working with hearing impaired

The National Grange, the nation's oldest and second largest farm organization, was founded on principals of fellowship and community service in 1867. One of the most successful Grange projects is their nationwide Deaf Activities Program.

The National and State Deaf Activities Program provides direct assistance to the deaf, educational projects designed to make the public aware of what deafness is, what it means to be deaf and how to prevent deafness and hearing impairment. The worlds first "sign-a-song" song book was published by the National Grange in 1976, combining music, words and signs.

Barnard Grange No. 689 is very active in deaf activities. Some of their achievements are: purchasing hearing aides for the hearing impaired class at the Char-Em Intermediate School District; sponsoring field trips for the Char-Em class; captioned movies at the Grange Hall; adopting a deaf child at the Michigan School for the Deaf in Flint; contributing to the Alexander Graham Bell camp and to the Nathan Byard Fund and contributing yearly to the National and State Grange Scholarship Fund. The recipients for the scholarship can be either a hearing or hearing-impaired person majoring in deaf education.

Remember, when communicating with a hearing-impaired person, be sure to have the attention of the person before you speak. Don't talk with your mouth full, chew gum or smoke. Speak at a normal pace, don't rush or slur your words. Your eyes and expressions are very important in communicating. If your message is not understood, don't repeat, rephrase. Lipreaders understand about 26 percent of what is said; but sometimes, by context, they can get the full sentence. If you cannot get the message across, write it. Don't be afraid to try and communicate with a hearing-impaired person. They are no different than a hearing person. You will please them and receive a lot of satisfaction.

Local girl signs song

Barnard Grange No. 689 is happy to announce that Christy Empey, Michigan State Grange outstanding youth for 1988-89, won first place in the Michigan State Grange Sing-A-Song contest held Sunday, May 21, in Haslett, Michigan. One of the judges was Bert Poss, Assistant Superintendent from the school for the deaf in Flint.

Each contestant signed to a song of their choice. Christy chose "Silent Love", a song writen by her father Norman Empey.

Christy will compete in regional competition in July against contestants from four other states. Winners will advance to the National Grange Contest in November

Christy, a freshman at Charlevoix High School, is the daughter of Norman and Kay Empey.

Hayes Twp. case may be pitched

The Michigan Supreme Court has given Hayes Township and Fox & Associates 14 days to show cause why the township's appeal to the high court in the long drawn-out Oyster Bay land development case should not be dismissed as moot, already resolved.

If the case is dismissed, the ruling by the Michigan Court of Appeals that the Hayes Township Zoning ordinance is unconstitutional would stand and set a precedent in similar cases having to do with waterfront development.

A complete report on the case will appear next week.

time later they'd be along.

In terms of training, Drenth had to work with Spieles to develop training programs which he was ready for, but the rest of the team was not.

Following high school, Drenth went to Central Michigan University (CMU) where he ran both track and cross country.

After receiving his degree from CMU in 1981, he returned to Charlevoix and for a time was an assistant coach for the Charlevoix cross country team. Later, he also coached at Ypsilanti.

In 1985, Drenth returned to CMU to study and work as a graduate assistant with the CMU cross country program. Subsequently, he became an assistant coach in the track program working with the distance runners and serving as head cross country coach.

Drenth has helped build the CMU program into a national power. This past fall, the CMU cross country team won their first five meets and found themselves ranked among the top 20 teams in the nation.

The team went on to qualify for the National Finals and Drenth was named Mid American Conference coach of the year.

the board will interview Steven Lampe, who is from Comstock Park.

At 7 p.m., Thursday, June 1 the board will interview Donald Barnes who is from Cedar Springs.

A committee of board members has already screened the applicants. Approximately 40 people applied for the position.

Board member Larry Levengood, who served on the screening committee, said the comittee felt strongly about one particular candidate, but are open to interviewing more.

One preference board members cited is a candidate who has experience as both a business manager and a superintendent.

The possibility of VanWieren and central office personnel taking over the business manager duties had been considered by the board. At the special meeting, board member Bob Drenth asked VanWieren if that had been ruled out.

VanWieren said the screening committee had indicated that was not viable.

and county officials drew a raft of criticism from local newspapers for meeting behind closed doors to determine how they are going to spend the public's money.

In response to that criticism, the city council has decided to hold the public hearing prior to ratifying the proposed agreement.

Key provisions in the agreement are:

Beginning in 1990, the city will refund the school district 50 percent of taxes which would have gone to the school if there were not a DDA. That figure will drop to 40 percent when the TIFA is abolished.

The TIFA will end in 1991.

The DDA and TIFA will not receive any additional money as a result of voted millage increases. (The school is seeking millage increases totalling 1.9 mills in the June 12 school election.)

The city will return 100 percent of DDA and TIFA revenue generated by last year's voted millage increase for the Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

The proposed agreement is null and void if the state reforms the school finance.

The DDA will end in 1996 unless the school board approves extending it.

Students' share a common bond of academic excellence

One soon will become an Eagle Scout. Four enjoy running. One teaches a children's Sunday School class. Another plays more than one musical instrument. A stage and audience appeal to one while a quiet golf course draws the next. If one fell during a ski run, she could voice her displeasure in French. Another can crunch numbers in accounting, but also helps raise money for art programs.

As common ground, the top 10 percent of Charlevoix's 1989 graduating class all carry a grade point average of 3.692 or better on a 4 point scale. Beyond that, their interests are diverse and following graduation they will each make their way in a different direction.

Class valedictorian is David Salmonson, who carried a 3.969 grade point average through high school. Salutatorian is Dylan Stewart with a 3.958.

Graduation forced to wait, but it was never forgotten

by PEG OHLE

Eight adults between the ages of 36 and 86 will don caps and gowns to receive diplomas at Charlevoix High School graduation ceremonies next week.

These students completed requirements for their high school diplomas through the Community Education program by attending classes at the Adult Learning Center. This is the largest adult class ever to receive diplomas from Charlevoix High School.

Some attended classes for as long as three years in order to earn the necessary graduation credits while others, lacking fewer credits, completed their work in a year or less.

For most of the graduates, earning a high school diploma means achieving a goal.

"I always wanted to finish."

"It makes me very happy at my age."

"Completing something left undone."

"Something I wanted to accomplish."

These were some of their comments when asked why they went back to school.

Their favorite subjects? Everyone mentioned history as either his or her first or second choice. Other favorites were geography, psychology, current events, government, and drama. One senior citizen said her favorite subject was math, and when asked why, she replied, "I don't know. It just kind of grew on me."

All of the graduates are parents, and many of their children have long since received the high school diploma now earned by their parents and grandparents. In fact, one of the graduates, Lois Vassoff, has a great grandson, Jeffrey Lewis, who is graduating from Waterford-Kettering High School this June.

The backgrounds and life experiences of these adult high school graduates are as different as those of the community in general. Some have worked in the nursing field; others in such domestic enterprises as sewing and child care.

Bertha Potter, an "Avon Lady" who lives out on the Marion Center Road, is now planning to expand her business, which has been on the back burner during the last two years she has attended school. She also will have more time to go camping, attend some plays, and do some art work. "My husband will be glad to have me at home more, too," she said with a grin.

Bill Bobola quit high school because of family problems when he had only one semester to finish. Now that he has his diploma, he is looking forward to taking college classes in business management. He is the father of two girls, ages three and 10. The 10-year-old thinks it's "neat" that daddy is graduating from high school, he says.

Oma Darrah needed only five credits to get her high school diploma. She attended classes while taking care of the needs of her husband and three children ages 11, 14, and 17. She will receive her diploma just a year ahead of her oldest son, Brian, who will be a senior at Charlevoix High School next year. Oma says she will now have more time to devote to the Charlevoix High School Sports Boosters, of which she is treasurer, and to do ceramics and cross-stitch. In her spare time, she also does volunteer work for the Department of Social Services.

Mary Margaret Lavery is one of the octogenarians graduating with the Charlevoix High School class of 1989. At age 83, she recalls quitting school at the end of the eighth grade to "help out" her family. She is an experienced seamstress who for several years made the habits for the nuns at the Conway Retreat House. "In the last two years, I've devoted my time to studying. I've given up church work and everything else," she says of her efforts to earn her diploma. Now this graduate will have more time to read and sew and knit and maybe even take a few more courses.

Deloris Weisler is the writer in this year's adult education graduating class. She has had five poems published in "American Poetry" magazine and each week she writes a story which she reads to a class at the Charlevoix Elementary school, which one of her children attends. Her goal, she says, is "to write and publish children- and family-oriented books, to bring laughter and joy into the lives of those who read my work and who know me personally." This mother of one child and five stepchildren, and the grandmother of 12, intends to continue her education.

As 89, Lois Vassoff is the oldest person ever to receive a diploma from Charlevoix High School. This energetic lady has taken care of her six-room house and a garden for two years while pursuing her studies. She has been a widow since 1960, but prefers living alone in the house she and her husband bought for their retirement years. Her daughter, Marilyn Marshall of Charlevoix, says of her mother's accomplishment, "Mom took her coursework very seriously, and there were times she turned down our dinner and lunch invitations with I'm sorry but I have homework that must be done."

Diane Psihopaidas, 40, is completing the high school work she missed when she dropped out of school in the 11th grade. She has had plenty of time to study because she has been serving time in the Charlevoix County Jail.

Diane is proud of being the first woman inmate ever to receive a high school diploma and hopes the program will be continued because, "Inmates have a lot of time on their hands and taking classes can give them something to do that will help with their future."

Her high school diploma will mean "broader horizons" to Diane, and she plans to continue her education. She lists "reading" as one of her hobbies.

One woman graduate has asked that, for personal reasons, her name not be publicized.

These adult education students will be among the 1989 Charlevoix High School graduates. They are Bertha Potter, Bill Bobola, Oma Darrah, Mary Margaret Lavery, Deloris Weisler and Lois Vassoff.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 7, 1989 ☐ VOL. 105, NO. 25 ☐ CHARLEVOIX, MICH. ☐ 20 PAGES ☐ 50 CENTS ☐ PLUS TWO SUPPLEMENTS

Thirteen years and finally the last minute details in getting a student through high school. High school counselor Toni Felter pins a flower to Linda McClanathan's gown prior to Sunday's commencement ceremony.

DDA/TIFA agreement amended and approved

Public sentiment expressed at a public hearing before the city council Monday evening was against a proposed agreement to give the school more money and leave less for downtown and Ferry Avenue Beach projects.

After more than half an hour of public and council discussion, councilmen amended the proposed agreement.

In the original agreement, the school would have received 50 percent of the money which would otherwise go to the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) in 1990 and 1991 and the DDA would have been terminated in 1996.

In the amended agreement, the school will receive only 25 percent of that money and the DDA won't have to be terminated until 1998.

Chamber of Commerce president Dan Barron, who was critical of the original proposed agreement, complimented the council on their amended agreement.

The city is only one party in the agreement. The others are the Charlevoix School District, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners and City of Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA board).

At Monday night's hearing, it was unclear whether it is necessary for the DDA board to approve the agreement for it to be implemented. DDA members in the audience voiced displeasure over the original proposal, but did not address the amended proposal.

During the public hearing, downtown business people questioned if the city could give the school the money, yet still accomplish established DDA and TIFA goals. City councilmen and administrators said they feel they can and feel the proposed agreement leaves them some room for unforeseen extra costs.

Several people were critical of the school's handling of finances and argued that the school already gets increased funds due to increased property values. Some of these people questioned why the city would want to give the school any of the DDA and TIFA funds.

Billie Smith noted that the school is asking for more millage on top of getting money back from the DDA and revenue increases due to property reassessment.

Barron said, "The school system has to live within its budgetary constraints just like everybody else."

He added that the question of the DDA and TIFA funds is properly a council decision and the school board should not be deciding public policy for the city.

Charles Papineau offered the most pointed criticism of the school's handling of finances.

Class of '89 sent forth

As much of the town as the high school gym will hold gathered Sunday afternoon to bid farewell to the Charlevoix High School graduating class of 1989.

The weather cooperated and was pleasant, yet not oppressively hot. The commencement speakers also cooperated in that they were witty, to the point and not oppressively long-winded.

Salutatorian Dylan Stewart told his classmates that they are at an important stage of transition in their lives. He also waxed humorously poetic in recalling the classes 13 years in the Charlevoix poem. He opened the poem with some words from Lewis Carroll, but promptly branched off into some verse of his own composed to suit the need at hand.

Valedictorian David Salmonson encouraged his classmates to continue moving forward, but to also enjoy each stage of life as they pass through it. He too recalled some of the lighter moments the class had shared in passing through school.

Commencement speaker Walt Drenth encouraged the graduates to reach their full potential. He said they should expect to excell and accept no excuse of "good enough."

Drenth told the students to plan, be motivated, take risks and be accountable for their actions and decisions.

"Be great," he said. "It's difficult. It's tiring. But there's no reason to not be great."

VanTreese sentenced and later released

Former city attorney Jeffery VanTreese was sentenced to jail and probation Thursday, June 1 for use of cocaine. Monday, June 5, VanTreese was released from Charlevoix County jail.

VanTreese was sentenced to six months in jail, with 60 days to be served immediately and the balance held at the court's discretion.

Earlier this year, prior to sentencing, VanTreese chose to revoke his own personal recognizance bond and begin serving time.

When he was released Monday morning, he had served approximately 50 days. The sentence allowed him credit for time served and he was given time off of the 60 day sentence for good behavior while in jail.

School board election Monday

Charlevoix school district voters will place three of five candidates on the school board in next Monday's school election.

Former mayor Ralph McRae will be challenging Scott Beatty for a one-year position on the school board. One year is what is left in the term of former board member Elaine Martin. Martin resigned from the school board this past winter due to expanded employment responsibilities. Beatty has filled the seat in recent months.

Another former mayor, Ken Staley, will challenge incumbent board members Max Novak and Doris Pearl. There are two four-year terms to be decided in that race.

Voters will also be deciding three millage issues:

The first is a 17.05 renewal for operations. The renewal breaks down into 15.25 mills paid prior

Sign up for swimming lessons

Swimming lessons are a Charlevoix tradition which goes back decades. If all of the Charlevoix people who have taken swimming lessons at Depot or Ferry Avenue over the years were to jump in Lake Charlevoix at the same time, the wave created would probably wash away Boyne City and East Jordan.

Once again this year the Charlevoix Recreation Department will be offering swimming lessons.

Sign up day for this summer's swimming lessons is June 14; however people can also sign up between June 14 and the opening day of lessons.

There will be two separate four-week sessions this summer. The first will begin June 26 and end July 21. The second session will start July 24 and conclude Aug. 18.

Lessons will be for a half hour at a time Monday through Thursday. Cost of the lessons will be $12 per child for city taxpayers or $25 per family and $17 for people not owning property in the city or $35 per family.

A variety of classes will be offered to compensate for differing skill levels among swimmers. There will be a toddlers class for three and four-year-olds and classes advancing in skill from there.

Wendy Crick and Kris Washburn will instruct the classes.

... DDA/TIFA agreement

He cited four percent salary increases given to city employees as opposed to seven percent increases awarded to teachers. He noted that approximately 80 percent of the school's budget pays for salaries and benefits.

"Before you give them (the school) anything, let's find out where in the Hell they learned their finance," Papineau stated.

School business manager Vince Olach read a statement from the school board supporting the originally proposed agreement. The statement said the agreement would allow the DDA and TIFA projects to be completed while also allowing the school to receive money voted for school operations.

Olach clarified that the percentage figure discussed (be it 50 percent or 25 percent) pertained only to millage levied by the school, not to millage levied by other taxing entities.

In regard to increased tax revenues due to rising property values, Olach said that after the effects of the tax limitation amendment and other things school tax revenues will increase by $200,000 this year while the school's fixed expenses will increase by $398,000.

The amended agreement was passed by a vote of 5-0. DDA proponents questioned whether councilman Norm Probert, a teacher in the school system, had a conflict of interest. Probert abstained from voting on the agreement.

Davis acts on tribal treaties

Congressman Bob Davis, fulfilling a promise made to 11th District constituents, has introduced two pieces of legislation dealing with Indian treaty rights.

The first bill would set up a Presidential Commission to investigate current treaty rights court interpretations and provide guidelines for states and tribes to follow to protect natural resources, the rights of off reservation property owners, and tribal members engaging in lawful treaty activities. Davis says the bill reflects the growing frustration with court interpretations of treaties signed over 100 years ago.

"It seems to me that we have to begin to recognize that the world has changed in the last 150 years," Davis said, adding that he does not believe the signers of the treaties intended that tribal use of natural resources would lead to the exclusion of non-Indian users.

A second bill would limit the unregulated Indian fishing going on now by Wisconsin as well as Michigan Chippewa tribal members in Western Lake Superior. The legislation would allow the State of Michigan to determine a "safe harvest" level of fish to ensure the continued growth of the fishery, and then set a limit of 10 percent for tribal fishermen harvesting the excess.

Davis said that he expects the legislation to be controversial.

"I will no doubt be labeled racist and anti-Indian which would be unfortunate since I am neither," Davis stated. "I believe that there are many citizens across the country who believe that the granting of Indian treaty rights has not only gotten out of hand by going beyond the intent of the original treaties, but has in fact become discriminatory against non-Indian Americans."

Davis pledged to be open to discussion with all affected parties in an effort to resolve the increasing conflicts over Indian treaty activities.

The sentence also places VanTreese on probation for one year and stipulates that he not practice law while on probation.

VanTreese, 33, was indicted on drug charges by the Charlevoix County citizens grand jury last summer. At the time, he was city attorney for Charlevoix.

Following the indictment, city councilmen considered dismissing VanTreese, but by a slim majority chose to wait and allow the justice system to run its course.

Following a preliminary hearing in the case last fall, VanTreese stepped aside as city attorney.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Learning to bound and prowl

Floppy ears at the front counterbalanced a swinging tail to the rear. If alternately jumping in the air and staggering sideways like a drunken sailor can be construed as "bounding," then she bounded into the living room.

"No casually strolling into a room for me," the nine-week-old puppy thought to herself. "When I make an entrance, I do it with some flare."

Even with her entrance completed, she bounded a little more, just for practice. She'd just finished her fifth nap of the day and had some spare energy to burn.

As she was bounding, she caught a glimpse of her tail. She quickly lept sideways to get out of its way.

"Whew! I'm not sure what that was, but it almost hit me. Can't be too careful."

The puppy surveyed the room and assessed her situation. Fred was the only person home and he was asleep on the couch.

"Well, I guess that means I've got the run of the joint."

She nudged the leg of a chair with her little wet nose.

"Maybe I'll chew on this. No. Wait. Can't do that. That's one of the things I get in trouble for."

She'd only belonged to this family for three days, but she'd already discovered two things puppies don't get to do: chew on the furniture and leave puddles on the floor.

She cringed at the recollection of all the grief and commotion over those few droplets she'd left in the dining room.

"A little while before the catastrophe, they'd put me out the yard and applauded when I'd done the exact same thing," she thought. "I just figured I'd bring the entertainment indoors. I sure miscalculated there."

A shoe rested innocently on the floor a few feet away. She lowered her head, raised her behind and began sneaking up on it. She circled slowly, moving in for the kill.

Tentatively, she extended a little paw and batted the shoe; just a jab, probing her opponent's defenses. The shoe did not respond.

"Ignore me, will you," the puppy said with disgust. "There's nothing I hate worse than being ignored."

She pounced on the shoe, grabbing it by its laces. She shook the shoe from side to side. She growled with all the ferocity a four-pound puppy can muster, giving the shoe the thrashing it so richly deserved.

After gnawing the shoelaces into submission, she cast the shoe aside and laid down for a second. She smiled, panted, wagged her tail and looked for her next victim.

About that time, Fred let out a snore as he slept on the couch.

"Well, what do you know?" the little dog thought. "He growls in his sleep. Sometimes I move my legs like I'm running when I sleep, but I don't think I growl."

Fred rolled over and as he did, his hand dropped over the edge of the couch and came to rest on the floor.

Fresh from her battle with the shoe, the puppy took an immediate interest in the hand. Once again the head went down and the tail went up. She crept forward. She batted the hand, but it did not respond. She gathered herself and prepared to spring...

Many an adult dog would have been proud to let out a howl comparable in volume to the one that Fred let out.

Editorial

For the past several years the relationship between property tax payers and the educational system has been give and take.

As long as property tax payers will give more, the educational establishment will gladly take more.

The time has come to call that relationship to a halt. Charlevoix school district voters should vote no on both of the school millage increase proposals on the June 12 ballot.

Both the request for nine-tenths of a mill for transportation and the request for one mill to balance the school budget should be turned down.

The third proposal on the ballot, a 17.05 renewal, incorporates and effectively makes eternal, a 1.8 mill increase passed just last year.

Voters in Charlevoix and elsewhere need to send the Charlevoix school system and the educational establishment as a whole a crystal clear message - Start living within your budget.

Educational budgetary problems aren't due to a lack of revenue. In Charlevoix, property tax assessments are increasing beyond the rate of inflation. There are built-in revenue increases.

Educational budgetary problems are due to expenditures increasing in excess of general inflation. It is the expediture side of the system which needs fixing, not the revenue side.

School officials throw up their arms in despair and cry that there's nothing they can do about expenditures. They say there are increases in "fixed costs." They make it sound like forces beyond human control are at work.

But analyze what these fixed costs are. Salaries and benefits account for about 80 percent of the school budget. Those are negotiable costs. These costs are subject to human control. They're not the law of gravity or the changing of the seasons. By voting no on millage increase proposals, tax payers are demanding that the educational system control those costs.

Two other things voters should keep in mind as they cast their ballots. Educators are fond of saying that any millage increase is for our children. Given the 80 percent figure above, it's clear that in place of "for our children" one can comfortably substitute "for educators salaries and benefits."

In Charlevoix, property values and the tax base also should be kept in mind. Local school officials are fond of pointing out that the Charlevoix school district levies one of the lowest millage rates in the area. The other side of that coin is that Charlevoix schools levy that millage on one of the highest tax bases in the area.

Letters to the Editor:

Bandshell plans questioned

Dear Editor,

In May it was "home again, home again" to my precious Charlevoix-the-Beautiful. The forsythia was in bloom, people working along the edges of the street getting ready for the petunias to be planted – I even loved waiting for the bridge when the Beaver Islander went by!

There is a concern I do have, though – the band shelter. Is the structure that is getting ready to be put in larger than the old? Would this block a portion of the harbor view? I hope not. When I come home again to my Charlevoix, I want to see as much of its beauty as I can.

Don't close churches

Since my religious affiliation is limited to membership in the Christmas Club at the First State Bank of Charlevoix, I am not exactly risking hellfire and brimstone if I cross swords with Cardinal Edmund Szoka over the closing of 30 Roman Catholic churches in Detroit's inner-city.

I think he is making a terrible mistake — tantamount to kicking a fellow when he's down.

So do a lot of Detroiters.

Religious leaders and parishioners from 18 of the doomed Roman Catholic churches filed suit in Wayne County Circuit Court last week asking Judge James Hathaway to prevent the cardinal from disbanding their parishes. Their aim is to keep the churches open beyond the June 30 deadline imposed by Szoka so they can appeal the closings to the Vatican.

I wish them well.

It is hard to imagine a more un-Christian act than the closing so many churches in a community already beset by as many problems as the city of Detroit.

- Deterioration of homes, businesses and infrastructure.
- Widespread poverty and homelessness.
- A drug problem that defies solution, and
- A crime rate that is a national disgrace.

Even though their community is on the ropes, Detroit's Roman Catholics have always had a firm rock on which to lean in times of adversity — a network of local churches that offered a harbor of sanity in a world gone mad.

But after June 30, these people who already have suffered so much will lose their neighborhood churches, too.

It is hard to believe that Cardinal Szoka could make such a bad decision, but according to all accounts the churches being closed are not carrying their own weight. Membership is declining and new members are hard to recruit. The population of the affected parishes is aging, and the birth rate has declined accordingly. Fewer babies are being born into the church.

Affluent members of the old parishes moved long ago to the posh suburbs in Oakland County and those who are left behind are less able to support their churches.

Furthermore, almost all of the church buildings are old and drafty, regular bears to heat with escalating fuel prices. Many are badly in need of repairs.

Szoka apparently is a good bean-counter and probably would have made an excellent corporation executive. But he obviously does not have the stomach to administer a diocese with as many problems as Detroit.

To close the churches is no solution at all, since closure will only speed up the deterioration of the old neighborhoods.

With the churches open, there is hope that Detroit may one day be saved. If they close, that hope will be gone forever.

There also is the problem of staffing. The Roman Catholic Church — thanks in part to its insistence on priestly celibacy —is having the devil's own time recruiting candidates for the priesthood.

But money, I am sure, is the bottom line. If the churches were humming along in high gear and paying their diocesan assessments promptly, you can be sure none of them would be earmarked for the wrecker's ball.

You would almost think that the Roman Catholic Church, with its vast financial resources, would be able to support a handful of parishes until Detroit either makes visible signs of recovery or is abandoned entirely to drug vendors and their customers.

I believe it is awfully shortsighted of Szoka to close parish churches when the fate of the city still hangs in the balance.

I wish Szoka were a better student of Detoit history, at least of the role played by Fr. Gabriel Richard in the early 1800s. Fr. Richard had his finger in just about everything that happened in Detroit — education, politics, commerce, even newspapering. He also made sure the roots of his Roman Catholic faith were deeply rooted on the banks of the Detroit River.

Fr. Richard believed in building churches — not tearing them down.

Or what would Jesus himself do if He were bishop of Detroit and some of His impoverished churches failed to turn a profit?

You don't need a degree in divinity to answer that one.

Organizers of the Venetion Parade aren't clowning around. They would like more local entries this year and are encouraging local people to begin planning for the event.

Venetian parade needs local floats

The committee in charge of the Venetian Street Parade on July 29 is upbeat and working hard to get better participation from Charlevoix business and professional people.

"Last year, only 10 percent of our floats were local. We have to do better than that", said Marell Staffel of the committee.

She added that if a person did not have the time or know-how to build a float, he could make a cash contribution so another person, perhaps younger and more talented, could do so.

Parade registration forms are being sent to all Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce members, other Chambers of Commerce, fraternal groups, and others. Registration forms are also available at the Chamber office.

"If a person wants to build a float but hasn't a theme idea, all he has to do is leave his name and phone number at the Chamber office and we will call him back and suggest several ideas.

The overall parade theme this year is "Hooray for Hollywood," which lends itself to all kinds of spoofs about Hollywood characters, human and otherwise; movie productions; movie titles; movie songs, Hollywood scandals; and many other facets of Hollywood life.

Children under 12 are encouraged to dress as five-pointed "Stars", a take-off on Hollywood, of course. These younger children will be put in the early part of the parade and will be escorted to a reserved area near the announcer so they will get a good view of the rest of the parade. Young people over 12 are encouraged to dress as their favorite Hollywood character.

"We want all the floats and participants to promote a happy idea, nothing controversial, and, for the first time, we are not encouraging political entries," Staffel explained.

Other ways in which people can help the Street Parade committee, Staffel suggested, are making contributions to help pay the expenses of "importing" bands and other entertainment features, assisting with crowd control, and registering entrants.

Ribbons will be awarded to prize-winning floats, with high priority given to originality.

Edith's column praised

Dear Editor,

Three cheers for both Edith Gilbert's article and Bob Clock's article in the Courier May 24. Many people are wondering what is happening in Charlevoix. I have to agree with Edith that no one seems to be able to make an intelligent decision and agree together on issues and it is certainly beginning to show in many areas of our lovely city. Is it a power struggle or is it greed? Each one thinking how does this effect "me", my business, my pocketbook or my prestige? As for meetings behind closed doors that Bob Clock spoke of. That has happened before and in the winter, when no one is around. I am happy someone is aware of these things and making it publically known.

We need qualified people to run for office. People who care about our community. Not just people who want an extra salary as councilmen and could care less what happens. We need dedicated people who truly love our beautiful area and are willing to work toward trying to keep it beautiful, not always trying to see how it will benefit them. That's where the confusion comes. They are thinking of me, me, me. They must think community, because what issues are agreed upon have to stay a long time.

Look at the bandshell. What a disgrace. We seem to be lagging behind other nearby communities. Take the time to drive around to the neighboring towns and you'll be surprised how they are working together and accomplishing a great deal. No longer are they living in the shadow of Charlevoix.

Perhaps the answer is for the city and township to unite. The more truly interested people we can get the better for the entire Charlevoix community. We want something more than one more condo. They are everywhere one goes in the country and certainly do not make up a unique community.

I believe councilmen salaries should be considered also. They should not be so attractive that it is the deciding factor. The councilmen should be interested in serving the people of Charlevoix, attending meetings regularly and truly dedicated to trying to make decisions that will benefit Charlevoix.

Soviets to visit Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

A few years ago, the warning statement, "The Russians are comin," could have created a sense of fear among the people of Charlevoix.

Now, this statement of fact is being greeted with anticipation and thoughts of good will.

Four Russian citizens are coming to Charlevoix this summer. They will be here from June 29 to July 5 (yes, they will be here on our Independence Day).

The visitors are part of a group of 400 Soviets who are visiting the United States during 1988 and 1989 under the sponsorship of "Soviets, Meet Middle America."

Former Charlevoix mayor Ralph McRae, who visited Russia last year, was instrumental in bringing the group to Charlevoix. They will have already visited in California and Texas before arriving here, and will continue on to Washington.

The purpose of the "Soviets, Meet Middle America" program is described as "bringing Soviet visitors to communities across the U.S.A. where we can get to know each other as human beings while discussing the problems that directly face our common futures."

McRae is busy putting together a committee of at least 10 local people who will assist in entertaining the Soviet visitors. He is also looking for two local families who will host the visitors (two to a home). McRae says he hopes he can find families with children and an extra private bedroom.

Supreme Court may not decide Hayes Twp. case

by PEG OHLE

So far, no one has won and no one has lost, and it may be that the Michigan Supreme Court wants to leave it that way.

At least that seems to be the situation in the long battle between Fox & Associates and Hayes Township over development of 337 acres of property with 2,800 feet of frontage on Lake Charlevoix at Oyster Bay in Hayes Township.

The Township turned down several development plans submitted by Fox because they did not comply with township zoning ordinance rules, especially Section 5.13, the section permitting only "one slip or dock space for each 100 feet of lake frontage, or lake access of more than one single family living unit for each 100 feet of lake property."

The "access" portion of the zoning ordinance, usually called "anti funnelling," is aimed at preventing persons living back from the water's edge (nonriparian land owners) from having access to the lake shore. (Funnelling is the type of development used at the Belvedere and Chicago Clubs, and many other places for many years).

In January, 1985, Fox filed suit against Hayes Township contending that Section 5.13 of the zoning ordinance deprived him of his riparian rights in and to Lake Charlevoix, and also that the ordinance was not written under the provisions of the Rural Township Zoning Act, so does not apply.

In October, 1985, the Circuit Court of Cheboygan County ruled the zoning ordinance was valid, and Fox appealed to the Michigan Court of Appeals. That court's decision struck down Section 5.13. This time Hayes Township appealed to the Michigan Supreme Court. However, in the meantime, Fox cut the size of his proposed development and received Hayes Township's approval for 16 single-family houses in a consent judgment that also included the provision that the Supreme Court would rule on the constitutionality of Section 5.13 of the zoning ordinance. The answer to this question would set a precedent for similar waterfront developments in the future.

The case was argued before the Supreme Court in Lansing last January. A partial answer came from the high court on May 25, when Fox and Hayes Township were given 14 days to show cause why the Township's appeal to the State Supreme Court should not be dismissed as moot, already resolved. (Referring to the consent judgment signed by the two parties).

As the end of the 14-day answer period approached last week, Seberon Litzenburger of Petoskey, a Fox attorney, said a final decision on Fox's answer had not been made but cited Fox's earlier offer to dismiss the suit.

Tim Arner of Boyne City, a Hayes Township attorney, has said that the consent judgment between Fox and the Township was written to assure the Supreme Court's ruling on provisions of Section 5.13 of the zoning ordinance.

County Planner Larry Sullivan told the Courier that if the Court of Appeals decision on Section 5.13 is not overturned, many area townships in addition to Hayes will be affected. Several other townships on Lake Charlevoix, including Bay and Evangeline, have "anti-funnelling" provisions in their zoning ordinances, as do all townships on Walloon Lake, according to Sullivan. In addition, the Emmet County zoning ordinance prohibits funnelling.

Provisions for land and water use have become not only an environmental matter but a political one in areas such as northwest Michigan, which is being developed rapidly. Some observers (who prefer not to be named) feel that the Michigan Supreme Court does not want to tackle the controversial question of funnelling at this time.

Garden Club receives awards

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club received an Achievement Award from the National Council of State Garden Clubs as well as the Pink Placement Home Show Award from the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan.

The awards were presented at the 58th Annual Conference of the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, held at the Thomas Edison Inn in Port Huron May 31, June 1 and 2. These awards represented distinguished work by the club, in the presentation of a Home Flower Show at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Moore of 200 Auld Street last July.

Attending the conference from Charlevoix were Mrs. Donald Haney, Mrs. Raymond Trentham and Mrs. John Lane. During the conference Mrs. Lane, representing Northern Michigan on Workshop's City Beautification Panel, told how her club has helped transform various areas of the city's landscape with particular attention to Operation Petunia, the Harsha House and the Middle School.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by the Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Do you remember the very first Bible passage you ever memorized? I can't recall if it was the very first, but I remember one of the first I learned was "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want." Watching another school year draw to a close brought that to my mind. The Lord is my shepherd, but He has also brought a number of other shepherds across my path over the years.

You see, to me a shepherd is more than one who looks after sheep. A shepherd is anyone who has helped guide, mold, shape or encourage your life as you face different challenges.

I was raised in a big city. I rode public buses to and from school. Over the years, those drivers became more than my ride to and from school. They became my friends. Looking at where I live today, I've wondered what "Bud" and "Petey" would think of driving in some of the weather we have. I'd say they would take their hats off to the shepherds that pilot their loads around here.

I am painting my house right now. It's the first time I've ever tried such a big project. The first time I splattered paint on my concrete walk, the voice of my first grade teacher came back to mine, "Bruce, you forgot to tap your brush!" I wonder if teachers still tell their students to "tap their brushes" today? From the Spring Musical, to the Art Fair, to Performing Arts, I would say that the shepherds who mold young lives today take our children well beyond that. Compared to my school days, the paths they lead their students through today are amazing!

When it comes to the hospital, I'm usually the one who is there to comfort people. Two Sundays ago, two very special nurses shepherded me through an afternoon full of pain. They made it so much easier to go through the tests. They taught this shepherd things about comforting I gratefully learned.

One look with a loving eye at Charlevoix and you cannot help but see the many shepherds God has placed around us. Have you acknowledged how much richer your life is because of them? Will you also express your gratitude to the Chief Shepherd for His personal provision for you today? Truly, the Lord is our Shepherd. We need not want.

Garden Club to travel

Charlevoix Area Garden Club members will travel to the Benzonia area Tuesday, June 13 to visit the studio of Gwen Frostic, an artist who features botanical plants in her drawings.

Following the studio visit and an optional visit to nearby Crystal Springs, Edith Close will host a luncheon at her summer cottage. Pati Moore and Derith Lane are assistant hostesses.

A car pool to the even will meet at 10 a.m. at the Captain's Corner Shopping Center.

Contestants from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, Burns International Security Services, Michigan State Police and the Charlevoix Police Department fire their weapons during this past Saturday's competition.

Charlevoix police chief Dennis Halverson presents the first-place trophy to Michigan State Police trooper Michael Tilley following Saturday's Big Rock Point Invitational Turkey Shoot at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

Cops compete in shoot

Troopers from the Michigan State Police Petoskey post took top individual and team honors in the second annual Big Rock Point Invitational Turkey Shoot, Saturday, June 3 at the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club. The event was sponsored by the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant and the Charlevoix Police Department.

Trooper Michael Tilley was the top-scoring shooter of the 24 competitors who took part. Tilley, trooper Andrea LeFevre (who had the second highest overall score) and trooper Brad Meyer made up the winning team.

A team of conservation officers from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources finished second. They won last year's event.

Other law enforcement organizations competing this past Saturday were: the Harbor Springs Police Department; East Jordan Police Department; U.S. Coast Guard Charlevoix Life Boat Station; Charlevoix Police Department; Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department; and Burns International security officers from Big Rock Point.

All participants were required to use standard sidearms on a 50-shot competition course that tested accuracy at various distances and positions using either hand.

Kingsley Bennett stands behind a sunglass display at The Sunglass Shoppe in the Market Mall.

Sunglasses shop opens

Sunglasses and sunglasses.

Old-timers like Ray Ban. New-timers like Buarnet. The popular Bucci of California. Revo. Noble Polarization for seeing under water. Photo Chromatic by Serengete, the drivers' lens. Fashion sunglasses by Christian Dior, some with snakeskin, others with jewels.

Protective lenses by Bolle' for high-impact situations. Zurich—great, big sunglasses with mirror coatings. Sports sunglasses for bikers by Oakley and J.T. Racers with irridescent lenses. Body Glove sunglasses of hydro rubber and plastic. Novelty sunglasses equipped with an off and on light switch. Sunglass for children of all ages.

All of these along with accessories such as chains, cases, and visors to keep sunglasses afloat when dropped into the lake are available at the Sunglass Shoppe in the Market Mall.

Kingsley Bennett, an optometrist by profession and father of The Sunglass Shoppe owner Jeff Bennett, explained something about the business last week.

He said there has long been a need for sunglasses with polished ground lenses for those who don't need prescription lenses, as well as for those who wear contact lenses.

That need is now being met, according to Bennett, by a number of manufactuers. There is the "ARC" (an anti-reflective surface coating to prevent glare.) There are lenses with a tempered treatment to keep them impact-safe, thinner but more expensive. And, for the fashion-conscious, there is an abundant display of colors, shapes, and sizes.

Prices at The Sunglass Shoppe range from $14 to $200.

The Bennetts live in Grand Rapids but spend as much time as possible boating in the Charlevoix area. Kingley Bennett suggested that we who live here year around probably don't appreciate the natural beauty of our area. "We do," he added.

... three millage issues, five candidates in school election to last year, plus a 1.8 mill increase which was approved in 1988.

The second millage issue seeks an increase of nine-tenths of a mill for school transportation. The millage would fund construction of a bus garage along with the purchase of six new school buses, two new pickups and a minivan.

The third millage proposal seeks one mill to balance the school budget.

Previous editions of the Courier have reviewed the millage proposals. Information on the five school board candidates follows:

Ralph McRae

Ralph McRae is a retired general contractor. His wife, the late Dorothy McRae, taught kindergarten in the Charlevoix school system for 30 years.

McRae served as city mayor in 1987 and 1988. Recently he has become involved in a concerned citizens group working to stop drug and alcohol abuse among young people.

McRae offers five reasons for seeking election to the school board:

He wants the school to provide a coordinator and core members to monitor substance abuse by students and institute proper intervention. He would have the cost of training these people paid by sources outside the school;

McRae says he would like to see a larger percentage of the school budget earmarked for vocational education;

McRae recommends that courses in parental education be required for juniors and seniors so they would be better prepared to become heads of families;

McRae would like to see the school establish sinking funds so they would be prepared to replace buses or buildings when the need arises;

McRae also would like to see the school release financial statements on a more frequent basis.

Scott Beatty

Beatty said he feels the proposed DDA and TIFA settlement is a good settlement. He said he thinks the DDA and TIFA projects are good, but feels they should have been funded in a different manner.

As to the multitude of state proposals for school finance reform, Beatty says, "There aren't any that would help our district."

He says the reform proposals would take money from Charlevoix and funnel it downstate, therefore he supports current methods of funding until a better alternative is proposed.

Among the five school board candidates, Ken Staley is the one most critical of the status quo, particularly in terms of the school's financial management.

Staley is concerned about school finance arrangements being discussed at both the local and state levels and says that concern is what prompted him to run for a shool board seat.

Staley was born in Charlevoix and has spent most of his life here. For many years, he and his wife Arlene ran a small grocery store. In recent years, he has repaired refrigeration units.

The Staleys have three daughters who graduated from Charlevoix High School.

Staley was Charlevoix mayor when the DDA was founded. He also served on the county board of commissioners for eight years and has worked on the development of state legislation.

Staley offers some strong opinions about the school system's financial management.

"I think we can get more for our buck," he said. "I think we can find other (funding) sources than this continual voted increased millage coupled with the evaluation increases."

Even in terms of curriculum, one of his focal points is finance. He said he doesn't believe students are being taught enough about economics.

Ken Staley

Asked his feelings on the school's three millage proposals, Staley replied, "I think they (the school system) should live within their means. I think the priority system is being abused."

Referring specifically to the millage proposal for transportation funds, Staley said, "There's something wrong when the motor pool goes broke. It's a misuse of funds. They robbed Peter to pay Paul."

He also said he is against having the school single out certain things (in this case busing) in millage proposals.

Regarding the proposal for a one mill increase, Staley said the school should have to show a need. He said the school receives an increase in funding each year from increased property evaluations without a millage increase.

Staley is also critical of the proposed agreement regarding DDA and TIFA funds.

"They're (the school) zeroing in on city and county programs. They're trying to run everything," he said.

In regard to state proposals to finance education through raising sales taxes and decreasing property taxes, Staley said the specifics of the proposals have to be considered to determine their effect on specific school districts such as Charlevoix's.

Max Novak is a retired teacher and principal who has been on the Charlevoix School Board for 17 years. He has been board president for more than a dozen years.

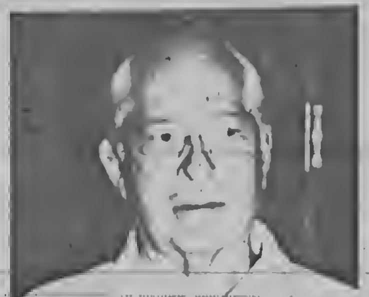
Novak's wife, the late Fran Novak, also taught in the Charlevoix school system for several years.

Novak, who has five adult children, has been active in several local organizations including the American Legion and V.F.W.

Although he feels Charlevoix schools have a good curriculum, one thing that bothers him is that due to a declining number of students enrolling in vocational education classes, that program is faltering. He said Charlevoix is trying to make arrangements with other area schools for a jointly operated program.

In terms of finance, Novak said he hates to see the citizens of Charlevoix pay so much in local taxes. He said he prefers to see the state contribute more.

Despite that problem, he said, "I think our school has run smoothly and pretty much trouble free."



Max Novak

Novak supports all three millage proposals.

"I think that we need these," he said. "If they are passed, it will keep up our (bus) fleet."

He noted that in terms of total millage, Charlevoix's levy is lower than most schools.

Novak is skeptical of school finance reform coming from Lansing. He said he thinks it's possible for a proposal to be developed which would help Charlevoix, but the state could also try to give the school district something, but then take back more than they gave.

Doris Pearl has been on the board for approximately 10 years. She is married to John Pearl. They have a son and a daughter who graduated from Charlevoix High School.

Pearl keeps the books for her husband's contracting business and has also been involved with zoning and planning in Norwood Township.

MY REASONS FOR BEING A CANDIDATE FOR THE CHARLEVOIX BOARD OF EDUCATION

I would ask for preventive policies that would enable every child to have thirteen years of quality education without harmful interruptions. That no teens go to treatment centers, that no students become drop-outs, and that none become pregnant.

Many children now have single parents or working mothers. To help these kids cope with todays lifestyles dedicated teachers and motivated counselors need support from us all. I understand their frustrations. I would urge that all juniors and seniors required to take courses in parental guidance.

Taxpayers should be given full disclosure of financial operations of the schools. 42% of the five million dollar plus budget goes directly to teachers, teacher aids and instructional supplies. The remaining 58% of the budget should be carefully studied and questioned. Non-contractual expenditures could be adjusted without lessening our high scholastic goals. Ten percent now spent for vocational training should be increased. Sinking funds should be established for replacement of old buses and obsolete buildings.

The cost of educating a Charlevoix student for one year is $4,200, the State average is $3,400.

...candidate profiles for June 12 election

She said she is seeking reelection because she feels she has something to offer the school system and has a strong interest in young people and education. She attended Northwestern Michigan college as an adult student and picked up an Associate Degree in English.

In regard to the school curriculum, Pearl said she feels the school has a strong curriculum committee and therefore offers a good curriculum. She said there are always problems which crop up, but the committee and board are able to deal with them.

Doris Pearl

As to the school's handling of finances, she said, "We do the best we can do under the circumstances."

Pearl is critical of the state legislature's handling of school finance and the state's minimal contribution to the Charlevoix school district.

"Our millage is low. I don't want to see it increase, but without state help, it may have to," she said.

Pearl supports all three millage proposals. "I don't know that we have much choice, but to support them, given the circumstances," she noted.

She also favors the proposed DDA and TIFA agreement saying she feels very good about the school getting some of the money back.

As to the possibility of the state changing the way schools are financed, she said she feels special interest groups have paralyzed the legislature.

She also noted, "There isn't anything that's come forward in the past four years which would help out-of-formula districts, which Charlevoix is."

SPORTS

Whitley wins two state titles

Track team fourth in state

By Tim Henne

From the moment the starter's gun pointed at the grey, overcast sky, Charlevoix hurdler Jason Whitley was in his element Saturday.

Earlier in the day he had become state champion in the 110 meter high hurdles, his time of 14.99 seconds barely beating his closest competitor and the school record.

As a light rain fell, he flowed over the first hurdle in the 300 meter event, taking an early lead in the event he had won at the state meet for the past two years.

That lead was lost seconds later as Whitley stumbled going over the fourth hurdle and came down flat on both feet.

"I could hear him coming up behind me," Whitley said of his nearest competitor. "And I knew I would really have to run."

He did, winning the event by a fifth of a second.

Whitley also placed seventh in the pole vault. His three events scored 20 and three-fourths of the Charlevoix team total of 28 and three-fourths points at the State Class C meet in Alma.

The team total placed Charlevoix fourth in the meet, only a quarter point behind third place Kingsley. Saginaw Nouvel won Class C with Constantine taking second.

Scott Miller, a junior and cross country state champion, also had a strong state track meet. He led for much of the 3200 meter race before eventually finishing third with a time of 9:42, a school record and good for all-state honors.

Miller also led the 3200 meter relay team to a seventh place finish. Although the team of Miller, Bill Crook, Bill Burns and Dylan Stewart didn't place as high as they expected to, they competed in one of the fastest fields in the history of Michigan Class C competition.

Several Charlevoix girls also competed at the state track meet.

Michelle Jacobs, Inga Miessner, Julie Bush and Tracey Smith competed in the 3200 meter relay. Smith also ran the 400 meter race in 63 seconds. Sandy Fershee cleared opening height in the high jump and barely missed clearing 5 feet 2 inches. Laura Wilmot capped her high school track and field career with a toss of 33 feet 10 inches in the shot put, good for fourteenth place in the state meet.

As a team, Charlevoix's girls finished 14th in Class C.

Jason Whitley (center) won both the 110 and 300 meter hurdles at the State Finals in Alma this past weekend. Whitley closed out his high school career as a four-time state champion.

Tennis team takes seventh

Charlevoix's tennis team placed sixth at the Class C-D finals in Kalamazoo this past weekend.

Two Charlevoix doubles teams reached the semi finals to score four of Charlevoix's five team points in the 22 team meet.

The team of Scott Crain and Webb Friedly won their first match 6-0,6-0, their second match 6-1, 7-5 and then lost in the semi finals 6-2, 6-4.

The team of Bob Sell and Chad DeYoung won their first match 6-2, 6-2, their second match 6-4, 6-7, 6-3 and lost in the semi finals 6-0, 6-3.

The Rayders' other point came from Tim Holm who won his first match 7-6, 7-5 before falling in his second match 6-0, 6-0.

Other Charlevoix players participating in state finals were: Ryan Holmes, Tim Jervis, David Puhl, Dan Bickersteth and Charlie Witthoeft.

Local bowlers win area crowns

Several Charlevoix teams are competing and faring well in the Champion of Champions bowling tournament. The tournament is sponsored by the Northern Michigan Bowling Centers Association and encompasses top league teams from across Northern Michigan.

The tournament is divided into three divisions by geographic areas. Charlevoix bowlers competed in the northern area division. There were a total of 181 northern area mens, womens and mixed doubles teams bowling in the northern area division. The area tournament was hosted over the month of May by Paul Bunyan Lanes of Charlevoix and concluded June 4.

Two local teams won area titles. Niswander Trucking and Leasing won the women's area title with a pin total of 3098. Another local team, Paul Bunyan Lanes, finished fourth in the womens division.

In the mens competition, Flight Deck Bar won the area crown with a pin total of 3094.

In the mixed doubles division the top local teams were Lee-Prevo and Moore-Morrison who finished sixth and seventh.

The top teams in each division will compete against division winners from other areas in the Champion of Champions finals which will take place at Paul Bunyan Lanes June 18.

Taylor is All-American

Bill Taylor from Central Michigan University men's track team traveled to the NCAA National Championships in Provo, Utah, on Thursday, June 1-3.

Taylor, a senior from Charlevoix, competed in this fourth NCAA meet, this time in the 5,000-meter run. He qualified with a time of 13:58.12 in the 5,000 at the Penn Relays on April 28. Last year, he placed 15th in the 10,000 meters and in 1987 he was 12th in the same event at the NCAAs.

Golf tournament successful

The 10th Annual Kentucky Fried Chicken March of Dimes Golf Tournament took place Sunday, May 28, at the Belvedere Golf Club. Despite a little frost the night before, the day of the tournament was a beautiful one.

Thirty teams turned out for a shot-gun start at 8:45 a.m. In total the tournament raised nearly $1,500 to be used for continuing programs in education aimed toward the prevention of birth defects.

"As always, the community was very generous and the participants were great," commented Tracey Towner, Divisional Director for March of Dimes.

"The tournament chairs, Joe and Chris Etienne did a wonderful job of organization and the Belvedere Club itself made sure that the greens were in excellent condition. I think everyone had a nice time."

For the second year, it was possible for an individual with a hole-in-one on the 17th hole to win $10,000. The closest to the pin, Gary Switzer, was a little less than 4' and another player touched down even closer, but bounced back to land at the edge of the green.

"It would be fun to have someone win it," said Joe Etienne. "We take out insurance every year, but so far nobody has been lucky enough."

Yachting Notes

Some sailors probably thought they were in an East Coast Pea Soup when they left the dock for this past Wednesday's race. The fog was so thick the visability was less than 200 feet and it was a challenge to find the Race Committee boat at Oyster Bay.

The dense fog lifted about the time of the first start and the racers were left with steady 10 knot breezes and the ability to see where the competition was! Gary Gleason's new boat The Apprentice had to start three times to get it right, but sailed through the fleet and was first home in the A Fleet. Gotcha had some crew and sail problems and let Gleason sail by on the fourth windward leg. The only other "big boats" that ventured out in the soup were Pygmalion and Mint Julip which finished third and fourth.

Dr. Tinney's Lost Vermonter continued her winning ways with another convincing first place in the hot Pearson fleet. Can't anybody stop this cow? Karl Jurries and crew narrowly beat out John Gordon's Flash for the third place honors followed by Cygnus, Noname, and Kittiwake.

Only two J boats made it to the starting line and Marty Jensen beat Tom Barnes by exactly two minutes! Let's get some more boats out on the line you guys. Call your friends!

The Fair Weather Fleet (aka Main and Jib) could only muster two boats with Jim Mielke beating Norm Tolman's blue Maureen by 3 minutes. Poor weather brings out the best in your sailing and navigation skills. Come on out next time, it will make finding Charlevoix easier next time you come back from a cruise on Lake Michigan!

Anyone wanting to crew for racers on Wednesday Nights (no experience needed) should stop by Gleason Spinnakers on Ferry Avenue. They have a list of skippers willing to take on extra crew. You'll have a great time, learn new skills, and are welcome at the Yacht Club after the race for food and liquid refreshments. Dave Phillips caters every Wednesday with a different meal each week, plan on dinner after the race next week!

BRAKE PRICES?
UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.
Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.
Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.
That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.
And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.
So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

5th Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament

A fine stringer-full of fishermen will be in Charlevoix June 9, 10 and 11 for the 5th Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

The tournament has grown each year and this year has a shot at passing 1,000 participants. Cash and merchandise prizes with a total value of more than $30,000 will be awarded in the tournament.

Deadline for entering the tournament is 10 a.m., Friday, June 9. There is a $20 registration fee for adults and $10 registration fee for young people 14 and under. People may register in the Market Mall in downtown Charlevoix.

There are four categories in the tournament: brown trout; lake trout; steelhead; and salmon. A fish must be at least 18 inches long to be entered.

The Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament is a quality, not a quantity, tournament. Fish are judged by individual weight, not by number of fish.

First place in each division wins $1,000. Second place takes $500. Third place $200. Fourth place $100. Fifth place $75 and sixth through tenth place $50 apiece.

There are also some special bonus prizes being offered.

The largest fish caught in the tournament will be mounted by Lasting Memories taxidermy, owned and operated by Jeff Lutz.

A $1,000 bond will be awarded if the largest fish of the tournament is caught on a Stinger lure.

A $1,000 award will also be made if the winning fish is caught from a boat using a Yamaha Outboard motor.

The first place winner in the Lake Trout division will be awarded the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy.

The standings board and weigh-in station will be in East Park. Tickets will be sold for a $10,000 first prize in a fundraising event. The winning ticket will be selected in East Park Saturday evening.

The city of Charlevoix has agreed to waive launch ramp fees for the weekend of the trout tournament.

DNR offers fishing tips

Need a ruler, but forgot to take one with you on your fishing trip? If you have a dollar in your wallet, you'll be prepared just the same; a bill measures just over six inches in length.

Fish have a keen sense of smell. Always be sure to wash away tell-tale odors from your hand before handling line or lures, especially after applying insect repellent. The chemical ingredients not only repel mosquitoes and gnats, they can repel fish from your plug or spinner as well; they can also weaken your fishing line.

Don't toss your used fishing line on shore or into the water where it can be a hazard to birds, animals, and outboard motor props. Treat old line as litter and dispose of it accordingly.

Carry worms and nightcrawlers safely and neatly in a plastic margarine container. A bedding of wet peat moss will help to keep the bait lively. Be sure to puncture the lid for ventilation. If you accidentally drop the container into the water, it'll float.

Successful live-bait anglers know fresh bait attracts fish best. As soon as your bait begins to lose its spunk, replace it.

A bicycle pump is a handy device to keep minnows alive when you're traveling. Every so often, place the pump hose in your bait bucket and pump a few times to replenish the water's oxygen supply.

When approaching a prime fishing spot, cut your outboard motor well away from the spot and drift in or use a small electric motor. Bass and other sport species spook easily and a noisy approach may just scare them off.

One way to prevent squeaky oarlocks from scaring off the fish is to wrap the pins in plastic sandwich bags — you'll then row in silence.

Boat anchors handled incorrectly, often spook fish. Don't bang an anchor on the boat bottom or against the gunwale. Try to make as little noise as possible with the anchor and never abruptly drop it into the water; instead, ease it down so that the anchor creates a minimum of disturbance.

A piece of carpeting or rubber mat placed in the bottom of your boat will help deaden sounds that might frighten the fish. The mat or carpeting can be easily removed and shook out after each trip.

Scraps of carpet glued to the bottom of waders or hip boots will help to keep you from slipping when wading rivers and streams.

Sharp hooks catch more fish. Experienced anglers carry a small hook sharpener with them so they can keep their hooks in "sharp" condition.

Avoid placing wet hooks in your tackle box. Damp hooks will eventually rust and need to be replaced.

Empty plastic pill bottles make excellent containers for hooks, sinkers, lures and other small items. They pack neatly and safely in your tackle box or pocket.

Always face into the sun when casting for bass. The reason? Even more so than most fish, bass are very shadow conscious and will often spook when a shadow falls on the water above them.

In muddy or stained water, try fishing when the sun is bright. The visibility in such waters is quite limited and the sun can't penetrate further than the top few feet or so making them oxygen-rich. There's where you'll find bass, even in the middle of the day.

Big bluegills are more apt to be on their spawning beds on overcast days rather than on sunny ones. Successful 'gill fishing seems to relate to the amount of sunshine with the least success coming on the brightest days.

Under high-glare conditions, it's often difficult to see a white or brightly colored bobber. Spray a bobber black and use it at those times you need heightened contrast because of the glare.

Always try to net a fish head first. If you do, the fish can't jump out and any wiggling motion the fish makes will only drive it deeper into the net.

More hatches of aquatic insects take place near dusk than at any other time of day. This fact makes the hours of fishing just before and after sunset many angler's favorites.

A plastic gallon-size bleach jug makes an excellent boat bailer; simply cut out the bottom leaving the cap in place. It can also serve as a handy funnel by removing the cap.

Waterproof waterfowler's decoy gloves are great for ice fishermen; they'll keep you dry and warm, guaranteed.

Your local DNR conservation officer can be a wonderful source of up-to-date fishing information. He or she is on the water nearly every summer day and knows local angling conditions firsthand.

LAKE CHARLEVOIX AREA TROUT TOURNAMENT
WINNERS CIRCLE

Several people clustered around the weigh-in station in East Park during the Fifth Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament this past weekend. (See sports page for additional photos.)

Salmon captures trout tourney

A Boyne city man landed the largest fish as nearly 700 anglers cast their fates to three area lakes in hopes of winning the fifth annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament during the weekend.

The largest fish was a 15-pound, 2-ounce salmon, caught by Richard Wolanin of Boyne City. First place winners in the other categories, Doug Hewitt of Boyne City caught a 10-pound steelhead; Marlin Sweet of East Jordan caught a 13-pound, 14-ounce lake trout; and Mike Webb of Charlevoix caught a 14-pound, 12-ounce brown trout.

Wolanin also won a $1,000 savings bond for catching his fish with a Stinger Lure. Sweet won a place on the Rex Blanchard Trophy, which hangs in the Charle-

Voters turn down two millage levies

Voters turned down approximately two additional mills for transportation and increased operational costs, but renewed the operational levy, 17.05 mills during the annual school election.

A separate .9 mill transportation levy, sought for the first time, would have been used to update the school's bus fleet and buy other equipment for the bus garage, Vince Olach, the school's business manager, said earlier.

Since the millage failed, 588 no to 486 yes, transportation money will have to come out of the general fund, as it has in the past, Olach said Tuesday.

The additional 1 mill request, defeated 669-412, was intended to cover a 1 percent increase in the cost of operating the school this year, according to Olach, and to cover the money the school lost to the city's downtown development authority (DDA) financing, board member Doris A. Pearl said.

Although the city and schools have cut a deal where the schools would recapture 25 percent of the total funds, the school board has not signed the contract.

Incumbents re-elected

CHARLEVOIX — Reelection to the school board was overshadowed for two incumbents by disappointment about the defeat of two millage proposals.

Doris A. Pearl, reelected for a four-year term with 784 votes, and Scott Beatty, reelected to a one-year term with 803 votes, both said they were "disappointed" in the millage results.

The board will have to look into budget cuts, both said.

Max Novak, also reelected to a four-year term with 660 votes, could not be reached for comment.

Pearl and Novak beat Ken Staley, 451 votes, for the four-year seat. Beatty beat Ralph McRae, 205 votes, for the one-year seat.

Veteran scoutmaster steps down

Over the past 31 years, more than 500 Charlevoix boys knew Louis Edwards as their scoutmaster. He's sat through more than a thousand troop meetings and been on at least 100 campouts in weather both beautiful and frightful.

Yet, while the numbers are impressive, they pale in comparison to other aspects of Edwards tenure as Charlevoix scoutmaster.

Edwards became scoutmaster for Charlevoix Troop 11 in 1958. He'd never been a scout himself. As Edwards recalls, Russ Lewis and Bob Bergmann initially asked him if he would be interested in becoming the local scoutmaster. Edwards said he would consider it.

In considering the proposal, he decided to talk to Pete Burns. Burns had been active in scouting and had also known Edwards for a long time. Edwards figured Burns could tell him if he would be a suitable scoutmaster.

So one evening, Edwards visited Burns. Burns gave Edwards a scoutmasters book and explained the program and its values.

"By the time I got through talking with Pete, it was all over and I was it," Edwards says of becoming scoutmaster.

Edwards said being the scoutmaster and dealing with the 11 to 18-year-old boys hasn't always been easy.

"It took me a while to learn everything about it," he notes. "There were some bad times when I thought about quitting, but the district executive and the committee encouraged me to stay."

Encouragement from other adult scouting volunteers wasn't the only reason Edwards stuck with the program.

"I learned to appreciate how much the program could do and how much there was in it," he explains. "I could see what a real value it was."

While the average person may see the Boy Scouts as an organization which takes kids camping, Edwards sees the program for what it teaches boys; things like leadership, outdoor skills and teamwork. Boy Scouts are also encouraged to be reverent, to have some religious values, and to be patriotic, respecting and caring for their flag and country.

An interesting benefit Edwards observed is that scouting offers boys "a chance to make

Antique boat show may grow

Antique and classic boats will be on display at the municipal docks this Saturday. This is the first year for an antique and classic boat show in Charlevoix, but organizers hope it will continue and grow.

Chamber of Commerce director Jacqueline Merta said that as of late last week there were 15 boats registered and she hoped that would double by the time of the show.

To be considered an antique, boats must have been constructed no later than 1930. As of last week, the boats entered included a 1908 launch and a 1930 Dee Witt.

Bill Stewart of Bullfrog Light Co. has also been working on the boat show committee.

He said since this is the first year, he anticipates the show will be relatively small. However, he added, "I think we're going to have a reasonable representation of some interesting and nice old boats."

Stewart and Merta both said they feel an antique boat show is a natural event for Charlevoix. Stewart noted the protected harbor and boating history of Charlevoix.

The boat show is being coordinated with the Boyne Country Celebration, a regional event. There will be antique planes in Harbor Springs and antique cars in Petoskey this coming weekend. Many of the antique cars will also stop in Charlevoix late Saturday afternoon.

There is no admission price to come down to the docks and see the boats. There will be a tent where people can get information on the boats displayed and also cast ballots for the people's choice award which will go to the most popular boat exhibited.

The boats will be on display from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The town of Hessel in the Upper Peninsula has had an antique boat show for several years and draws a large number of boats. Merta has consulted with area residents Bill and Julie Munroe, who are active in antique boat shows.

She hopes the Charlevoix show will also grow and become a community drawing card.

"I'm excited about it and I'm hoping it ends up being a huge thing eventually," she said.

... Edwards steps down

mistakes on little things so they can avoid making mistakes on big things later."

As an adult leader, Edwards said he sometimes had to let boys make mistakes so they would learn from them. He said once in a while a boy would burn some breakfast bacon on a campout. But that was no great catastrophe. The boy just learned to be careful next time.

As he looked back over the years, some campouts stood apart from others. Edwards recalled one time when he and former assistant scoutmaster John Houting took some scouts to the Upper Peninsula for a weekend campout in early May.

He said that early on the weather turned cold and brought a rain which threatened to turn to snow.

On Saturday afternoon, Edwards and Houting asked the scouts if they wanted to go home early or stick it out for another night. The troop was intent on staying camped out. So camp out they did and spent a cold, wet miserable night in the outdoors with some of the scouts deserting the tents and seeking refuge in the cars.

Edwards smiled as he recalled Houting later telling him that would be the last time they asked the kids what they wanted to do in a situation like that.

In the mid 1960s, Edwards became friends with a Canadian scoutmaster and in 1965 the Charlevoix troop and the Canadian troop began exchanging visits. Edwards said those trips and campouts have been some of the most fun. He recalled one trip to Niagara Falls. The Canadian scoutmaster had arranged several special excursions around the falls and gotten a number of price discounts so that the entire weekend ended up costing each Charlevoix scout only $8.

Edward's years in Charlevoix scouting have not only spanned decades, but generations. Several local men and their sons share having had Edwards as their scoutmaster. As examples, Edwards said that current scouting committee chairman Dave Novotny was in one of his early troops while in recent years, Novotny's sons have been in scouting. Local pharmacist John Ochs is also one of Edward's early scouts whose sons also went through the program.

This year, Charlevoix will have two scouts achieve the rank of Eagle. They are Bill Burns and David Salmonson. They will join Larry Anders, Jerry Fochtman, Walter Kroush, Alan Avery, Terry Mol, Jerry Chase and Brian Phillips who also became Eagle scouts while Edwards was scoutmaster.

This camping trip around Lake Huron was taken in 1961, only a few years into Louis Edwards' tenure as scoutmaster. In the front row from the left are: Robert Bergmann and Louis Edwards; (middle row from left) Jose Olson, Jon Goldstick, Ed Whitley, Lawrence Feindt, Dick Kenny, David Goldstick; (back row from left) Skip Young, Tom Maxwell, Charles Boss, Orlin Cunningham, Tom DeYoung and Nick DeYoung.

Edwards is retiring from scouting and recently attended his last troop meeting. Jack Laucher is the new scoutmaster.

"I'm sure I'm going to miss parts...but I do feel someone younger should take over," the 64-year-old Edwards said. "Jack is certainly enthusiastic and I'm sure he will do a good job."

The quiet and reserved Edwards said, "I just kind of wanted to fade away...but at the last troop meeting they got a cake and flowers and it was nice."

Although Edwards may be stepping down as scoutmaster, he's not going to be allowed to step down as a valued friend to many of his former scouts.

"Some of them (the scouts) I got to know quite well," he says. "When you work with a kid for five years, you form a pretty good friendship."

Several boys carried that friendship with Edwards into their adult years. This fall, Edwards is going to be the best man at the wedding of one of his former scouts.

"Seeing the boys become successful in life in later years is rewarding," Edwards remarked.

Reflecting on the wide variety of boys he has dealt with through the years, Edwards said, "Each kid is different. I've never had two who were the same. And you have to handle each one differently."

Although there are now more activities for boys to choose from than when Edwards became scoutmaster, he still feels there's a place for scouting and the values it offers.

"There's not another organization around that's capable of giving a boy what scouting can."

In all, 687 fishers caught 112 fish, all 18 inches long or larger. The minimum size was included this year to prevent the lakes from being depleted of fish, according to Sherry Withers, a tournament organizer.

The largest salmon came out of Lake Charlevoix, News-Review outdoor writer George Rowe noted. The second-largest salmon came from Round Lake.

Weather wasn't entirely in the fishers' favor, Rowe said. It rained Friday and was a little too windy to go out on Lake Michigan on Saturday. Sunday was "lovely" he said, but all fish had to be weighed in at noon.

On Sunday, it was the early bird who cast the worm, according to Rowe, who said there were "dozens" of anglers on the water by 7 a.m., when he got there.

Prizes were awarded for the 10 top finishers. Winners were:

Brown trout — 1 — Webb, 14 pounds 12 ounces; Randy Thompson, 7-14; Mitch Buday, 7-3; Chad Staley, 7; Joseph G. LaMieux, 6-14; Alf Porter, 6-7; Dennis Penfold, 6-7; Lloyd Vance, 6-4; Bud Heise, 6-2; Larry Simpson, 5.

Lake trout — 1-Sweet, 13 pounds, 14 ounces; Dennis Coyne, 11; Ken Boss, 10-15; Harvey Jacobitz, 10-7; Jerry Glaser, 10-1; Tom Durecki, 9-14; Lucinda Hall, 9-9; Larry Sullivan, 9-5; Jerry Sladek, 9-4; Bill Cutting, 9-2.

Steelhead — Hewitt, 10 pounds, 11 ounces; Ron Hancock, 10-2; Walt Romanik 9-13; John Peterson, 9-12; Robert Miller 9-2; Mark Toczylowski, 8-15; Phillip Duquay, 8-13; Les Kennedy, 8-7; Timothy M. Spiewak, 8-5; Ted Rundblad, 8-2.

Salmon — 1-Wolanin, 15 pounds, 2 ounces; Jennifer Kerr, 15; Terry L. Ball, 14-11; Randy Thompson, 12-4; Ron Dunbar, 11-7; Phil Duquay, 11-2; Jeff Renaud, 4-3.

Sponsors for the event were Stinger Lure/Advance Tackle of Boyne City, Walstrom Marine of Harbor Springs, Davis Chevrolet Buick Nissan, Grand Bay Marine and Brokerage of Charlevoix, Dilworth Boat Shop of Charlevoix and Boyne City, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, Bellinger Marine Service of Charlevoix, Electrical Concepts North, and Small Engines Unlimited of Charlevoix.

... school election results

What happens next with the budget is up to the school board, but board members Pearl and Scott Beatty and Olach expect some budget cuts.

Beatty, reelected to a one-year term Monday, said he was "very disappointed" that the additional millage did not pass. The board will have to consider making budget cuts, he said.

"I guess we'll have our work cut out for us as a board," Beatty said.

Olach, who attends the board meetings as an administrator, also expects the millage rejection to result in budget cuts. "We'll have to live within a very austere budget and maybe make some internal cuts," he said.

People and programs are two areas that may be cut, he said. The decision is up to the board.

It seems unlikely that the board will call for another election to pass the millage.

"Normally, our board does not go after (second) millage elections," Olach said, and one board member seemed to agree.

"I have no intention of asking for another election. The voters have spoken, and we'll have to abide by that," Pearl, said.

The 17.05 mill renewal passed 737-343.

TENT CATERPILLARS. FOR THOSE FACED WITH DEALING WITH THE PESTS THEY ARE MESSY AND UNSIGHTLY - BUT THERE ARE SOME INTERESTING THINGS TO NOTE ABOUT THESE INSECTS. THEIR LIFE-CYCE IS UNIQUE. THEY WINTER-OVER AS EGG MASSES, EMERGING IN EARLY SPRING TO BUILD THEIR "GREEN-HOUSE" LIKE WEBS. THO WE VIEW THEM AS MESSY, THEY KEEP THEIR OWN ENVIORNMENTS CLEAN MOLTING FIVE TIMES, THEY BUILD ADDITIONAL LAYERS OF SILK AFTER EACH MOLT, EACH LAYER HOLDS THEIR DROPPINGS AND SHED SKINS. SHORTLY AFTER THE FIFTH MOLT THEY LEAVE THE WEB, FIND A PROTECTED SPOT, AND WEAVE THEIR COCOON. THE ADULT EMERGES AS A BROWN MOTH ABOUT MID-SUMMER. THEY MATE, LAY THEIR EGGS AND THEN DIE. MEANWHILE THE OLD WEBS BECOME NESTING MATERIAL FOR SUCH BIRDS AS THE HUMMING BIRD

Edith Gilbert congratulated

Dear Editor:

I just want to congratulate Edith Gilbert on what I believe is the best article she has ever written for the Charlevoix Courier. Of course, I am referring to the May 24 pubication where she discussed Charlevoix politics.

Little basketball players

A little two-year-old boy held the basketball down by his knees. He stood in front of the basket, looking up at it and preparing to fling the ball underhanded for all he was worth.

After psyching himself up for a few seconds, the little guy threw the ball as high in the air as he could. The ball got three, maybe four feet off the ground. Instead of going toward the basket, it arched upward and backward over the kid's head.

Now, if I had taken a shot which went backwards over my head, completely opposite of the direction I intended for it to go, I'd have been angry and embarrassed.

But when this little fellow turned around to find where the ball had landed, he was smiling from ear to ear. Proud as a peacock he was. You'd have thought he'd buried a game-winning shot at the buzzer.

It kind of shows how a person's view of success is relative to that person's past successes.

The shots the little guy had taken before that had mostly just bounced off his foot and rolled away. To have one go all the way up over his head, that was something...no matter which direction it flew.

The little boy's five-year-old brother had some different standards of success. Granted, most of the shots he took found nothing but air, yet he did take one shot which caught the bottom of the net.

I fielded the ball and congratulated him, telling him that hitting the net was close.

He graciously accepted the congratulations, but then pointed to the rim and said impressively, "One time, I hit the bottom of that metal thing."

"Oooh," I said, trying to act appropriately impressed.

Then I thought to myself that it was fortunate this kid hasn't been at the park on weekends when some of the local men play basketball. Some of these guys, myself among them, get upset with ourselves when our shots don't fall in like we want them to.

I imagined what this five-year-old would think if he saw some men playing basketball and one of us clanged a shot off the rim and started fuming and fussing about it.

I can see the little kid wondering, "What's he all mad about? So the shot didn't go in. He shouldn't feel bad. He hit the metal part."

Another little kid took an even different view of shooting baskets. This kid recognized his limitations. After shooting and missing a few times, he could see that the handwriting on the wall said he wasn't going to make a basket.

So for him, actually shooting the ball became anticlimatic. He decided the fun was in preparing to shoot the ball.

When it was his turn to shoot, the kid would grab the ball, clutch it to his chest and scurry down to the other end of the court. Occasionally, he would stop and bounce the ball once and then scurry some more.

Meanwhile, myself and the little kid's counterparts would be waiting for him to come back and shoot the ball so one of us could shoot it again.

With any luck, that kid, as he grows older, will give up basketball and take up bowling. In bowling everybody gets to have their own ball. If he wants to pick up a bowling ball and scurry around with it between shots, there's no harm in it.

Interesting times

If I were a young person today, I would make it a point to read a newspaper every day and listen to as many TV and radio newscasts as I could cram into 24 hours.

Chances are pretty good they will never live in a more exciting time.

The tension in the air feels something akin to the days leading up to World War II.

Only this time all the vibes are good.

For decades the United States touted the advantages of democracy, freedom and "laissez-faire" economics without making a discernible impression on the Iron Curtain countries.

Now it appears that a few people around the world have been listening — like the Soviet Union's Mikhail Gorbachev.

WITHIN THE PAST year:

— The Soviet Union has withdrawn her troops from Afghanistan.

— Russia has held her first "open" elections in years.

— Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania, the Soviet Union's captive nations on the Baltic Sea, are suing for independence. And Moscow is listening. All along, the Kremlin has pretended that those beleagured countries voluntarily joined the Soviet Union in 1940. In the West we know there was nothing voluntary about their annexation.

— Poland, once a bastion of communism, has done a complete about face. The government not only has recognized the legitimacy of Lech Walesa's Solidarity union but the union actually captured both houses of the Polish parliament at the polls June 4. There's talk that before long Walesa, a winner of the Nobel Peace Prize, will stand at the helm of the Polish government.

— In China, hundreds of thousands of Chinese students have raised their voices against the government, demanding more freedom and a free press. Although the demonstrations were peaceful on the part of the students, the hardliners in Beijing are quaking. They put down the rebellion with a bloody massacre, but they certainly know their days of power are near an end. Once the toothpaste is out of the tube, you can't put it back.

THIS WORLD-WIDE revolution appears to have happened in the past few months, but actually it has been building for decades.

The Soviet government, for example, must have been terribly embarrassed year after year when it was forced to turn to the United States, hat in hand, to buy grain to feed her people. For heaven's sake, some of the world's most productive cropland is in the Soviet Union, but collective farms are cumbersome and inefficient when compared to the privately owned farms of North America.

Even before the student uprising, China was beginning to relax its tight grip on the economy and daily life. Farmers who had fulfilled their obligation to the government were allowed to sell home-grown produce on the open market. A few successful business people actually were allowed to buy such luxuries as automobiles.

The bloodshed in Tiananmen Square is regrettable because I feel the Chinese could have made the transition to democracy as peacefully as the Poles.

BUT IMPATIENCE is a human characteristic. Thanks to global communications, the residents of Communist countries know they are being short-changed when it comes to the good things of life. They realize they will never catch up with the West as long as they labor under the heavy hand of Karl Marx.

They are not willing to wait any longer.

What will such upheavals in the Communist world mean to the United States?

Plenty.

For one thing, as a leader of the free world the United States has a responsibility to help the newly emerging democratic nations stick to their goals.

For another, we are going to have to double our efforts in the areas of technology and production to remain competitive with our new rivals.

That is why I hope our kids are keeping up with current events. This is the stuff history is made of.

Several ministers and volunteers gathered at the Rainbow Shop last week to celebrate the shop's sixth anniversary. The shop is run by local churches with profits donated to charity.

Senior citizens say thanks

We wish to thank the people of Marion Township for their $500 contribution to the Center's general fund. It is people like you who make our center possible and the Senior Citizens and the students who attend our learning center appreciate your support. You are helping the City of Charlevoix run a quality program for its senior population, one that will benefit the surrounding area as well. Thank you. Sherry Black and the membership of the Charlevoix Senior Center.

What becomes of graduates

The Charlevoix High School Class of 1989 numbers 134; of this number, four are exchange students and fifteen are adult education graduates or are receiving diplomas under special circumstances. These nineteen are not included in this profile. The remaining 115 (58 females and 57 males) were surveyed as to their plans upon graduation.

Results of the survey indicate the following: 47 percent of the class have a job, are seeking work, or will be entering the armed services and 53 percent of the class will be continuing their education.

Of the 47 percent who will be working, 25 students are females and 29 are males. Twenty-four now have a job and will continue with that job; 19 have jobs now, but are seeking different jobs; and four are actively seeking a job. Those who are seeking a job have met with a counselor and have received information and possible leads for employment. Seven students have indicated that they plan to enter the armed services within the next few months. Of the total group of 54, 36 indicate that they plan to continue their school on a part-time basis or sometime in the near future.

While we can predict that some graduates will go on to college and some will not, we cannot predict what each will do. Each class has its own personality and the decision made by individuals continue to be based on their own needs and desires.

The college-bound portion of the class consist of 33 females and 28 males. The vast majority of this group (52 students) will be attending four year programs. This is the first year in quite a while that the percentage of the class attending college has dropped below the 60 percent mark. Part of this dip may be due to the large number of students who have full-time jobs lined up already and will continue with them and go to college on a part-time basis.

Beaver Island
America's Emerald Isle

The cover on this year's Charlevoix and Beaver Island Visitor's Guide is even more eye-catching in the many colors in which it is printed.

Guide promotes area

The good word about Charlevoix and its close neighbor, Beaver Island, is being distributed throughout Michigan in the Chamber of Commerce's "Visitor's Guide".

Planned and written by members of the Courier staff and printed by the Petoskey News Review, the Guide is laden with calendars of events for both communities and long lists of "Places to Go," "Things to Do," "Places to Stay," "Bed and Breakfast" and "Places to Eat."

In addition, there are notes of historical interest about the areas and many pages of advertising displaying offerings of services and merchandise by local business people.

Twenty thousand copies of the 50-page "Charlevoix and Beaver Island Visitor's Guide" were printed. Five thousand copies were delivered to Lansing for placement in Welcome Centers along the highways and 4,000 copies were distributed to area locations most frequented by visitors. The remaining copies are being held by the Charlevoix Chamber as replacements when needed.

Pause for Flag Day

Wednesday, June 14 is Flag Day. The local American Legion provided the following background information about the day -

The first official flag of the United States was adopted by an Act of Congress June 14, 1777.

In 1949, Congress declared that each year National Flag Day would be observed June 14.

In 1982 the National Flag Day Foundation was chartered to conduct educational programs and to encourage all Americans to pause for the Pledge Of Allegiance as part of Flag Day.

Soviet's Charlevoix visit delayed

by PEG OHLE

The visit of four Soviet citizens to the Charlevoix area has been delayed from June 29-July 5 to some time in September.

A snag in getting visas postponed the trip, organizer Ralph McRae told supporters Tuesday.

McRae had been expecting a visit by four business people — a man and woman from a Leningrad bank, the president of an association of ballet fans and the manager of a plastics plant.

McRae who visited the Soviet Union last year is coordinating the trip. He shared the biographies of the expected guests although it was not clear at presstime if the same people would be visiting in September.

Fund-raising efforts to cover the costs of the visitors will continue, McRae said.

This is the second time a visit, organized by the group Soviets Meet Middle America, has been cancelled. The group has been in business since 1985.

A group was in the country in April and May and SMMA is confident a tour group will get to Charlevoix, McRae said.

Biographies of possible visitors follow.

Evgenny Subbotin, who was born in 1948 and graduated from a technical college in the city of Perm. He is founder and president of the "Arabesk" Association, a non-governmental association of ballet fans. He does not speak English well but is interested in contacting ballet people.

Shraga-Goga Clauzmer was born in 1936 in the city of Tyumen. He now manages a plastic plant, and although he does not speak English, he is interested in visiting a plastics plant here.

Vera Derjavina was born in where she graduated from a financial-commercial institute. She now is a manager of a Leningrad Innovation Bank. She speaks English and is interested in making contacts with American bankers and financiers.

Alexander Agajan was born in 1951, lives in Leningrad, and graduated from Tbilici University. He is manager of the Leningrad Innovation Bank. Although he speaks no English, he would like to make some contacts with bankers and financiers.

These four Soviet citizens are part of a larger group who are visiting the United States under the sponsorship of "Soviets, Meet Middle America," who have a goal of creating permament channels of citizen communication and cooperation that will enhance official diplomacy between the United States and the Soviet Union.

While in the Charlevoix area, they will be house guests of local families and will be escorted around to see, hear, and participate in many cultural, political, educational, business, scientific, and fun social events. Some of the events being considered at this time are:

Appearance in Judge. Varnum's Court; Big Rock visit; City hall, fire, police and council chambers visit; country trip; cruise on Lake Charlevoix; dinner, formal; factory tours; fireworks somewhere; fishing trip and picnics.

Also, pig roast at Grange Hall; service clubs' get-together; school buildings, hospital, senior housing.

Further information about the Soviets' visit is available from Ralph McRae, phone 547-6764.

Comments sought on federal fish rules

Congressman Bob Davis says Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan will ask for comments from the state officials, affected Indian tribes and federal fishery management agencies on proposed regulations to limit unregulated Indian fishing in Western Lake Superior.

Davis had written Lujan in May urging the Secretary to adopt the regulations which had been proposed by the State of Michigan.

"While I would have preferred the Secretary to go ahead and publish right away, I am encouraged that he obviously is giving serious consideration to the problem," Davis said. The Congressman added that he plans to meet with Lujan to personally push an opportunity for the general public to give their views to the Interior Department.

The Lujan letter went on to say that after the affected parties had given him their comments, the Secretary would then decide whether to take the next step and publish the proposals in the Federal Register.

"That's of utmost importance," Davis said, "The people who have written to me, called me, and talked to me personally over the years about their frustration with Indian treaty fishing rights need to be heard by the federal government. They have good ideas and they have been fishing in these waters a long time – they have just as much right to provide input on this as anybody."

Lujan's letter said he is asking that the state, tribes and federal agencies address their comments to issues such as "the adequacy of present tribal and state regulation of the harvest by treaty and non-treaty user groups, respectively, the biological date relevant to determining whether the resource is threatened, and their evaluation of the extent to which the proposed regulations adequately address the threat to the resource without unnecessarily restricting the exercise of treaty rights."

Charlevoix hospice auction set June 24, tickets now available

Tickets are on sale for the fourth annual Charlevoix County Hospice auction party. The event will take place Saturday, June 24, 7 p.m. at the Wolverine Dilworth Inn, Boyne City. Among the over 100 auction items donated by merchants, businesses and individuals are antiques, old movie posters, local artwork, meals at area restaurants and an opportunity to be co-sheriff for half a day. Auctioneers Judge Harvey Varnum and Jim White of Boyne City Ace Hardware are aiming to double last year's $5,000 profit.

Margaret Lasater, Hospice Director, explained that, "with the expanded party and generous number of donations, the auction will be our biggest fund raiser of the year."

The evening includes the auction party, hors d'oeuvres, cash bar and a chance to win a $500 grand prize. A silent auction will include smaller items, such as a hand painted sweatshirt and nine color, mounted cover portraits donated by TV Guide Magazine. Auction items will be displayed in the window at Kadens in Boyne City until the event.

The hospice program provides trained volunteers to assist terminally ill patients and their families in their own homes.

Tax deductible tickets ($15 donation) are available at Kaden's in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, Wildwood Innovations in Charlevoix and from hospice board members and the fund raising committee. For more information call the Charlevoix County Hospice (536-2842).

Candidates file for council

There will be two races for city council seats in the November general election. Cheryl Hoffman is challenging incumbent Norm Probert for a first ward seat while Pat Gaskin is challenging Earl Muma for a third ward seat.

Second ward councilman Butch Russell and city clerk Arlene Staley are unopposed in seeking reelection.

June 6 was the filing deadline for council candidate petitions. Since there were no more than two candidates for any of the positions open, there will be no primary election in August.

Garage sale to benefit anti-abuse group

CHARLEVOIX — Concerned citizens who can't resist a good sale or a good cause will be in luck on Saturday, June 24.

Charlevoix Concerned Citizens (CCC), an anti-drug and alcohol abuse group, will hold a giant yard sale between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. that day at the high school gym.

Tables will be available for people to set up goods to sell, according to Ralph McRae, president of the organization.

Proceeds will go to CCC to help them educate teachers, students and the public about drug abuse.

Earlier this year, the group sponsored a community workshop and seminar for professionals on drug and alcohol abuse. Similar activities are planned.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

One of my favorite Courier columnists really intrigued me last week with his sharing about church closings in Detroit. No Bob, it's true that you didn't really risk anything. But I really wish you'd think about a few other things.

I had a hard time getting into your thoughts about church closings. I couldn't really get past your religious affiliation being nothing more than the Christmas Club at the local bank we share. Bob, do you know what you are missing?

Money may indeed be a portion of the Cardinal's thinking. But don't forget what makes up the heart of every church, people. People like you who worship together, sing together, laugh together, cry together, and seek the will of God together. I'm glad you recognize the difference churches can make in the life of Detroit. They make a difference in the life of Charlevoix too. Without people, a church would be just another building.

You spoke of Detroit history. I wish I could share a broader history of the entire religious community in Charlevoix. I suspect that we have had many pastors and priests in the mold of Father Gabriel Richard. I only know about men like Harold Kohn who blessed the Congregational Church for so many years. His books like "Thoughts Afield" and "Adventures in Insight" carried the richness of the faith Charlevoix offers far beyond our community.

My own parish still fondly remembers the shepherd's touch exercised by George and Marie Majors. Some of the older saints around will tell you about the fish frys he supervised and cooked through that were the talk of the town. Long before women in ministry became an issue, there are folks who would tell you that Ma Pulsifer was a better preacher than Pa the pastor.

I recently had the joy of watching Father Jim Gardner in action during a children's mass at St. Mary's. You could not help but be blessed watching his loving care at work. I know some of the people at Christ Episcopal who are involved in the search for a new rector. Their excitement over the future is positively contagious. Have you noticed the changes in Bethany Lutheran's building?

Yes, Bob, speak out about the things that are on your heart. Your voice is an important one that needs to be heard. But Bob, you and other people who read you and just look on from the sidelines at what is happening in the community of faith ought to come join us. We need your wisdom and experience. We would welcome you and any other interested soul in sharing the blessings, challenges, and hopes that a journey of faith with Jesus Christ brings.

Church offers special film Sunday

"Love thy neighbor as thyself."

It's the second greatest commandment in the Bible, and one of the hardest to obey. If heeded by mankind, it would effectively make war, poverty, hunger and injustice obsolete. If applied by an individual, it can change a person forever.

Mike Adkins discovered the power of love when he grudgingly obeyed that commandment and became a friend to his "unlovable" neighbor, Norman. The humorous and moving story of their unusual relationship is told in the new film presentation "A Man Called Norman," which will be shown Sunday, June 18, at 7 p.m. at Charlevoix Assembly of God, 05291 M-66 North.

In this release from Focus on the Family Films, Adkins describes how he befriended Norman – a misfit who had been rejected by everyone in town. As their relationship grew, Adkins discovered that the road to recovery was a two-way street with very tangible rewards for both men. The film chronicles the unusual friendship – sometimes humorous, sometimes touching – between two individuals whose lives have been changed forever.

Consumers Power, Audubon to study fish pollutants

Consumers Power Company and the Michigan Audubon Society have announced that a comprehensive series of studies will be conducted in 1989 to examine the relative levels of contaminants found in fish from the Great Lakes and inland rivers, and the potential effects of these contaminants on the bald eagle, water birds and other wildlife.

The studies, the first joint research effort by the two organizations, will fill in critical data gaps that presently exist on the distribution of certain contaminants in fish and wildlife and the rate of uptake of these contaminants by wildlife that live in the Great Lakes setting. The studies will further research recently summarized by the U.S.-Canadian International Joint Commission's Great Lakes Water Quality Board, which documented lower reproductive rates in eagles nesting near the Great Lakes relative to those nesting inland. The difference in reproductive rates appears to be due primarily to contaminants in Great Lakes fish and fish-eating birds, such as herring gulls, eaten by shoreline nesting eagles.

The studies will be partially funded by Consumers Power Company and conducted by researchers contracted by the Michigan Audubon Society. Analytical work will be done by Michigan State University's Pesticide Research Center and Eco Logic, Inc. of Ann Arbor. All of the field research will be completed in 1989.

"The Michigan Audubon Society is concerned about persistent levels of contaminants found in bald eagles, water birds, mink, otter and other wildlife found in the state," said Terry L. Yonker, Michigan Audubon Society executive director. "What's needed, and what Consumers Power's support will help make possible, is more scientific research on these contaminants and their effects on the reproductive process of these species," Yonker said.

One part of the study will focus on the Great Lakes, where cormorants and other colonial water birds are being tested to determine the rate at which contaminants accumulate in nesting birds, their eggs and their young.

Another research component will build upon an existing bald eagle study conducted by the U.S. Forest Service. In this study, contaminants in blood samples of bold eagles living near hydroelectric plants on three Michigan rivers, the Manistee, Au Sable and Muskegon, will be compared to those of eagles nesting near the Great Lakes.

The third part of the study will compare contaminants found in inland fish and other prey upon which bald eagles feed with contaminants in comparable prey from the Great Lakes.

"Consumers Power is committed to protecting the quality of Michigan's natural environment. We're pleased to support these studies, which should provide critically needed information on the food chain of bald eagles and other wildlife," said Paul A. Elbert, vice president of fossil and hydro operations for the utility.

BUSINESS

Rosemary and Norman Lawson stand besido some of the many greeting cards in their recently opened "Wishes and Whimsios" shop.

Card and gift shop opens

The new gift shop on Bridge Street with the intriguing name "Wishes and Whimsies" could probably fulfill most shopping wishes as well as a good many whimsies.

However, Rosemary and Norman Lawson, owners of the shop, are especially proud of their stock of greeting cards. "We carry 10 or 15 lines of cards and probably have the largest selection of cards in town," said Rosemary, and a visit to the shop confirms that there are a lot.

The Lawsons formerly operated a gift shop in Ypsilanti and brought with them to Charlevoix their knowledge of people's wants and needs.

Rosemary is a handicrafter and decorates many of the baskets and wreaths she sells in the shop. She also makes pillows and quilts and stained glass sun catchers and similar items.

Other shop merchandise includes sweat shirts, candles, mugs, collectibles, decorative towels, stuffed animals, hat boxes, jewelry, wall pieces, a Christmas corner, and some antiques.

Last winter, the Lawsons tried to buy the White house adjoining the parking lot on Clinton Street, which the City Council later decided to tear down.

"Unfortunately, we didn't get that house, but we're happy to be here" (in the former Kentucky Fried Chicken location), says Norman.

The Lawsons fell in love with Charlevoix during 11 years of vacationing in the area. They will keep their shop open year-around if business permits. Their summer hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., seven days a week.

Counseling services added

Two new staff members have joined Charlevoix Counseling and will allow the business to expand their services.

Susan Hansen, a limited license psychologist, will do psychological testing and assessment and also individual family therapy.

Diane Liverance, a wellness educator and lifestyle counselor, will work with clients in the areas of stress management, biofeedback, relaxation training and offer programs on problems such as stress, smoking and nutrition.

Liverance was formerly the administrative director of the pain management center at Burns Clinic.

Insurance credentials received

Kenneth R. Kruzel has been awarded the Accredited Adviser in Insurance (AAI) designation and diploma by the Insurance Institute of America for successfully completing three national examinations which test for the person's knowledge of insurance coverages, marketing concepts, selling techniques, and agency and sales management.

Mr. Kruzel is currently a Commercial Insurance Agent for Bingham Insurance & Associates at 507 Water Street, East Jordan.

Summer activities keep health inspectors busy

by PEG OHLE

Since food service establishments are numerous in vacation areas like Charlevoix County, their inspection and licensing is a major part of the work of the local health department.

Vacation and resort areas are also home to a large number of food service facilities connected with private camps and clubs, which to some persons' surprise must be inspected and licensed the same as any commercial food service establishment.

While camps, especially children's camps, are inspected by the health department for water quality, swimming pool conditions, and other facilities, inspection and licensing of kitchens and dining rooms has become a routine practice.

In the case of private clubs, however, the health department often does not have special inspection responsibilities and may not even be aware of the fact the club is cooking and serving meals to members and their friends. So some such clubs have gone for years without the inspections and licensing required by law.

To set the record straight, an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Robert J. Taube to Thomas A. Hoogerhyde, Chief of the Bureau of Environmental and Occupational Health, was recently distributed to local health departments.

One quote in the opinion reads, "The Court also notes that clubs with defined membership are not exempted from the purview of the statute."

It is even noted that "Funeral establishments must secure a license to serve food and beverages to the public in connection or conjunction with any part of funeral service operations."

Food service sanitation is covered by Michigan's Public Health Code, Act No. 368, Public Acts of 1978, Part 129. The third paragraph of Part 129 reads:

"Food service establishment' means a fixed or mobile restaurant, coffee shop, cafeteria, short order cafe, luncheonette, grill, tearoom, sandwich shop, cafeteria, soda fountain, tavern, bar, cocktail lounge, nightclub, drive-in, industrial feeding establishment, private organization serving the public, rental hall, catering kitchen, delicatessen, theater, commissary, or similar place in which food or drink is prepared for direct consumption through service on the premises or elsewhere, and any other eating or drinking establishment or operation where food is served or provided for the public."

In a later paragraph, the comprehensiveness of health department licensing becomes apparent: "When a food service establishment is constructed or remodeled or when an existing structure is converted to use as a food service establishment, properly prepared plans and specifications for the construction, remodeling, or alteration shall be submitted to the local health department for review and approval before construction, remodeling, or alteration is begun...A food service establishment shall not be constructed, remodeled, or altered except in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the local health department."

Taking notice of the need for more food service inspections and licensing in the area, District Health Department No. 3 Chief Sanitarian Dean Mikulski, said, "Believe me, we're not looking for more work, but we'll get around to all of the private clubs and others sooner or later."

Permit thwarts lake plan test

The first test of the Lake Charlevoix Management Plan was found not to be a test at all.

After the Charlevoix County Planning Commission recommended against expansion of the Boyne City Marina because the expansion would result in more slips than allotted to the city under the Lake Management Plan, it was found that Boyne City had received a Department of Natural Resources permit for the expansion in 1985, about two years before completion of the Lake Management Plan.

According to County Planner Larry sullivan, that permit is valid until December 31 of this year and marina expansion work could proceed until that time, or even later if an extension of time is granted by the DNR.

The County Planning Commission has now sent letters to the Northwest Region Council of Government the DNR approving the expansion.

Another case has arisen with the Swan Valley Marina in South Arm Township, Sullivan says. Swan Valley now has a boat launching ramp and 10 slips on its 100 feet of lake frontage. This is more than permitted under the Lake Management Plan, but since they date back several years, they are considered acceptable. However, Sullivan says that any expansion would be prohibited under the Lake Management Plan. The County Planning Commission is therefore recommending against the expansion.

Home accidents key cause of injury

Injuries are a significant public health problem. As a cause of death, age adjusted death rates from accidents rank third after cardiovascular disease and cancer. Sixteen point three percent (16.3) of nonvehicular accidental deaths were designated as occurring in the home. The very young and the elderly are at greatest risk of home accidents because of limitations related to developmental processes and disabilities due to aging, and because they spend the greatest proportion of their time at home.

Falls are the leading cause of nonvehicular accidental mortality. Falls cause few deaths before age 65, but after age 65, falls result in three times higher death rates than motor vehicle accidents. In a recent study of falls in senior citizens, injury occurred in about 24 percent of falls. The risk of falling increases as the number of risk factors, like sedative use and balance or gait abnormalities increases. In children, falls are the leading cause of emergency visits for an injury.

Housefires are the cause of the majority of burn deaths for all ages, especially in young children and the elderly. A study of fatal housefires in Baltimore suggested that 55 percent of these fires were started by cigarettes. Tap water scalds is another category of burn that warrants attention. A third degree burn can occur in 5 seconds in water at a temperature of sixty degrees celsius. A new type of scald burn emerging is the use of the microwave oven to heat up nursing bottles where the liquid becomes dangerously hot while the container remains cool. Both mouth and splatter burns have been reported.

The majority of poison exposures have been reported to involve children under five. Accidental ingestion of poisons by children is most often a result of inappropriate storage of the agent. Most poisoning deaths occur in people 25 to 65 years of age. In seniors where case fatality rates are higher, confusion over dosages of prescription drugs, mistaking one drug for another or mistaking household products for mouthwash, food, etc. can cause the majority of unintentional poisonings. Other accidents include choking and suffocation with 62 percent of choking deaths due to respiratory obstruction from food.

Most literature on injury prevention advocates the "passive" approach which offers automatic protection regardless of individual efforts. Examples include the Poison Prevention Packaging Act 1970 which reduced poisoning deaths of children under 5 by 70 percent from 1970-87.

Next in effectiveness are measures that require action only once on the part of the individual, like installing smoke detectors or lowering the setting of hot-water heaters. Least effective, in general, are measures that require frequent action.

Home accidents are a significant cause of unintentional injuries. The effectiveness of prevention programs of any type is only as good as the interest and actions taken by each of us to protect ourselves and others.

Six parcels of state land for sale in Charlevoix County

Six parcels of land in Charlevoix County are included in the list of state lands to be sold at auction by the Department of Natural Resources Tuesday, August 1, in Grayling.

Compared with other counties in the state, this is a very short list. One offering is a lot in Susan Shores Subdivision in Hayes Township, for which a minimum bid of $100 is required; one offering is .46 of an acre in Eveline Township, for which a minimum bid of $100 is required; three offerings are in Boyne City, requiring bids of $400, $100, and $100 respectively; and one offering is in East Jordan, for which a bid of $100 is required.

The D. N. R. urges that all prospective bidders do their own research to determine whether or not the land can be used for the purpose for which they intend to use it.

A complete listing of state land auction sales in the northern Lower Peninsula can be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources, Real Estate Division, Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan 48909.

Charlevoix Twp. OK's plan for North Point

Trails, signs and parking plans for North Point were accepted by the Charlevoix Township board Monday night in an effort to get work on the park completed before the grant expires.

Three citizens — Virginia Finney, Virgina Olson and Katherine Hull — raised concerns that the board is moving too quickly and too many trees would be removed under the plan.

The plans are preliminary, but Traver Wood, representing Site Planning Development, said he doesn't expect them to change.

Trails, parking and signs are the three components of the plan, Wood said as he introduced it to the board.

Changes to the park have to be done by October or the state's matching grant for developing the trails and signs will be lost, according to Tom Bailey, executive director of the Little Traverse Conservancy.

Contributions from Charlevoix area residents raised $300,000 to help purchase the property for $700,000, and the township took control of the land in late 1988. The state also gave the township a matching grant to create the trails, signs and parking areas, Bailey said.

Because the grant money is from last year's allocation, the project has to be completed by October.

At the board meeting, Oscar Stroud, township supervisor, and Dale Glass, a board member, expressed concern that work on the park should be completed soon.

Wood will work on the park's developments.

Two of the three projects — trails and parking —raised some concerns from community members at the audience.

The trails, proposed to be six to eight feet wide, will be limited to six feet after Glass raised a concern about the width.

Six feet is wide enough for two people to walk side by side, said Carol Martin, board member and township clerk.

Parking for a dozen cars was not as easily resolved.

Finney, who lives next door to the proposed parking area told the board she was concerned because her home angles out from the property. Her house, built by her father at least 50 years ago, almost touches the property line and she fears parking would be adjacent to her bedroom window.

She asked Stroud how close the parking would come to the property line.

"Well, we're not going to damage it, I'll tell you that," he said.

Parking plans include six spaces overlooking Lake Michigan and six spaces perpendicular to the road. The spaces overlooking the lake would require the clear cutting of 66 feet and would abut Finney's property.

Both parking areas will be in the right of way of Mt. McSauba Road, which is a county road. Bailey said the area will not spill over onto the conservancy property.

Finney, Hull and Olson also expressed concern that a 100-year-old grove of white pine trees will be removed for parking spaces.

The driveway to the parking area would be narrower than the parking area, he said, and probably would not eliminate all of the trees in the area.

Unopposed candidates win Char-Em seats

Each of the three incumbent candidates for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District board of education were unopposed in Monday's election.

Clayton Healey received 5,043 votes in Charlevoix County and 1,685 in Emmet. Healey received 68 votes in Ellsworth and 124 in Central Lake, two districts also served by Char-Em.

Robert W. Anderson received 5,163 votes from Charlevoix area schools and 1,818 from schools in Emmet County. He received 135 votes in Central Lake and 71 in Ellsworth. Jay Essenberg received 4,598 votes from Charlevoix area schools and 1,555 in Emmet. In Central Lake, Essenberg received 142 votes and he received 76 in Ellsworth.

Charlevoix vote tallies do not include Beaver Island results. The results were not available at presstime Tuesday.

Township ups millage for operations

Charlevoix Township residents will pay .1157 more millage next year, the township board decided Monday night.

With very little discussion, one resident supporting the increase and one resident against it, the board passed the millage, which will net $4,860.

"I think you better pass it. Charlevoix Township is a place where you really get your money's worth," said Dale Boss, a township resident.

The increased millage is within the 3 mills the voters allowed the township to levy, township supervisor Oscar Stroud, told the audience. With the additional .1157, the township's total levy is 2.9406 mills, according to Carol Martin, the township clerk.

Ostling explains school fund vote

State Representative Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon) said he voted against the Governor's school finance proposal because it fails to address equity in education, lacks a defined distribution formula and offers only token property relief for Michigan residents.

The Blanchard-Harden plan, which calls for a 1-cent increase in the sales tax to be split equally between property tax relief and education funding, was voted down by the state House Wednesday by a 52-56 vote.

"The Blanchard-Harden proposal simply does not do enough to ensure the adequate funding of our schools, nor does it give taxpayers much-needed relief from high property taxes," Ostling said. "As a Legislature, we can do better.

"One of the most glaring inadequacies of the Blanchard-Harden plan is its lack of substantial, lasting property tax relief," Ostling said. "It is an insult to the voters of this state who are clamoring for a real reduction in property taxes. It does not limit future school millage rates or property assessment in any new manner."

The Roscommon lawmaker said the Blanchard-Harden plan does nothing to reform the current formula for distribution of state education funds under which school districts receive less aid as local property assessments increase — and more aid when local property tax millage rates are raised. This formula provides insufficient state educational funding support and has led to a property tax-dependent school finance structure, and a $2,000-$7,000 per-pupil spending inequity.

"This has been an incredibly long, intense and divisive debate over our state's educational future. I understand and sympathize with citizens' frustrations over the Legislature's inability to resolve this issue sooner. However, Michigan residents deserve the opportunity to vote on a meaningful plan that will have a positive effect in the long run. I cannot in good conscience vote for a second-rate measure that simply will not be effective."

Following the vote, Democratic leaders moved to reconsider the defeated measure, which allows the bill to remain on the House agenda.

Arts council home tour visits Walloon

Walloon Lake has been chosen as the general area for the eighth annual house tour sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Six diverse styles of homes will be shown on 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday, June 26. Limited luncheon reservations at the Walloon Lake Country Club will be available or picnic sites are suggested.

All the homes are located on Walloon Lake not too far from each other. The earliest cottage dates to 1890 and the most recent home was built in 1987. A tempting variety of styles and decor will appeal to everyone.

It will be possible, weather permitting, to take a float boat from one of the houses to another, as was popular on a previous tour.

Homes on this year's tour are:

The Doody House

Alton Doody purchased this magnificent piece of property in 1971. The 180-degree view of Walloon Lake first attracted the Chicago Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad Co. to build a fishing cottage here. This was replaced by the Indian Garden Hotel, a popular 28-room summer place. The old ice house still stands and serves as a boathouse.

The present house was built in 1964 and completely remodeled by architect Lajos Szabo from Columbus, Ohio. The modern design was inspired by Frank Lloyd Wright's home in Wisconsin. A cantilever deck extends over a high bluff. The contractor was Vern Goodwin. Landscape design by John Hoffman. Please notice the evergreens trimmed in Japanese style.

The interior decor is eclectic-/contemporary with period pieces blending with modern to create an international style. Bleached panelling and 14-foot high beamed ceilings give the 20x40-foot "great" room much light. Twin fireplaces at both ends of the room embrace many large oil paintings by American contemporary artists.

The Bower House

John and Nancy Bower asked architect Jack Begrow to build them this dramatic, contemporary home in 1983. It is located on a densely wooded lot with many winding steps leading down to the private dock on Walloon Lake.

The three bedroom, 2½-bath home has an open air feeling with much glass and a spectacular view through the trees to the lake. There are two decks, one off the master suite, and the other off the dining area, filled with bright red geraniums.

A special feature of this house is the central atrium with stairs leading off the foyer to the lower level. An antique mirror hangs over a marble topped commode as a decorative accent. Soft pastels are combined with terra cotta Mexican floors, cedar walls and original contemporary oil paintings.

Off the kitchen, there is a pantry for the owner's collection of china. A table will be set, one for breakfast, one for lunch and one for dinner as an added attraction for the house tour.

The Heisel House

Fortunately this turn-of-the-century Victorian farmhouse, built by the Singer Sewing Machine family, is making it's second appearance on our house tour. Bill and Pat Heisel have done a lot of redecorating, floor restoration and kitchen remodeling recently and the house merits another look.

Centered on a large open lawn stretching to the lakefront, it is located just south of the "narrows" leading to the north arm of Walloon Lake. A recently established perennial garden greets the visitor.

This stately home has a large, wrap-around porch filled with antique wicker furniture. Inside you will find more antique chests, a hall tree, tables and chairs.

Don't miss the romantic, white bedroom upstairs with a family wedding gown displayed on an antique form.

The Smith House

Sidney and Judy Smith built this multilevel contemporary home in 1983. Designed by Nicholas White, Petoskey architect, it has 4 bedrooms and 4 baths. The master bedroom suite includes a fireplace, a sunken jacuzzi and privacy garden. A spacious entry hall steps down into the living-dining room overlooking the lake. A massive 2-story fieldstone fireplace connects the loft to the various levels of the house.

... a visit to Walloon

A collection of antique wicker furniture on the open veranda sets the stage for the interior charm of a pleasant mix of Victorian period pieces, decorative wallpapers and ceramic tile floors.

The landscaping was designed by John Hoffman of Petoskey. A wooden walkway leads to the hot tub, screened from the wind by a planting of trees. Down several steps is a deck overlooking the west corner of the lake. A perfect spot to view one of Walloon's glorious sunsets!

The Coffin House

Gordon and Susan Coffin offer us the newest house on the tour. Designed by Petoskey architect, David Trautman, it was completed in December 1987. The builder was Pete Palka. It has 4 bedrooms and 3½ baths.

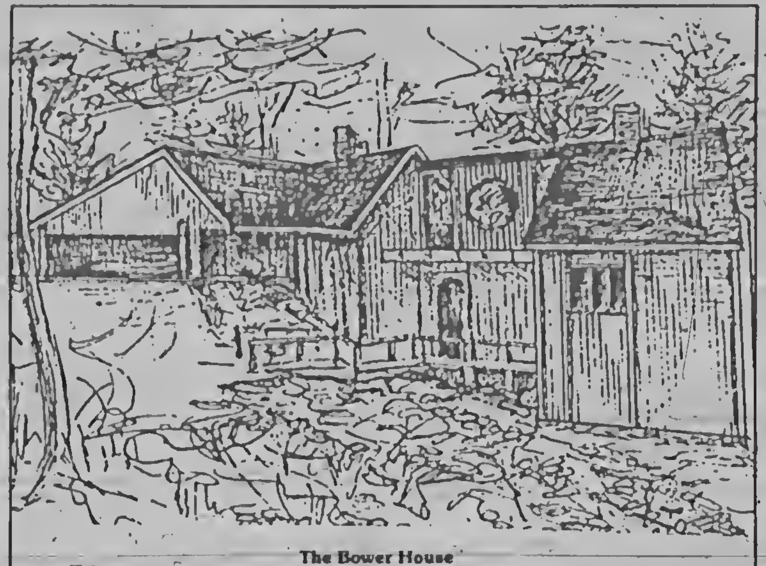
Built on three levels, it boasts a dual view of woods and water. On one side — the house has an unobstructed view of the north arm of Walloon Lake, and on the opposite side there is a large wooded area that is home to many wildflowers. Charming wooden walkways and a series of railed stairs descend to the private dock on Walloon Lake.

The interior design is a blend of antique furniture and Indian Navajo rugs. An oil painting of an Indian by Anthony Sinclare hangs in the living room, which is decorated in earth tones, to complement the two-story native Michigan fieldstone fireplace.

The Buck House

John and Anna Buck have created a dream cottage that's right out of today's Country Living magazine. This small pioneer cottage has been in John's family since 1890. An original log structure near the main house still stands on the property.

Located among rolling farms, a long drive leads to the house, near the water. Filled with antiques and memorabilia, the tiny house resounds with the comings and goings of an active young family. Every nook and corner reminds one of a still-life arrangement. Two cozy screened porches catch cool brezes and one can picture generations of this pioneer Petoskey family sipping lemonade while enjoying a view of the lake below.



The Bower House

The price for the house tour is $12 and the cost of the luncheon, catered by the Sweetwater Catering Company, is $8. Both tickets are available at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey. You may call 347-4337 to purchase tickets, and Mastercharge and Visa are accepted for the tickets.

The Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament leader board (shown above) changed frequently during this past weekend as, much like a good fish story, fish grew larger and larger as time went on.

Some of the largest fish were kept on ice inside a tent in East Park so spectators could come in and view them and speculate on the secrets which lead to such fine catches.

Local Olympians fare well

Eleven clients of Bergmann Center Sheltered Workshop won a total of 17 gold, silver, and bronze medals in competition at the 1989 Michigan Special Olympics Summer Games held recently in Mt. Pleasant.

Topping the list was Karen Klooster of Charlevoix, who won a gold medal in the 50 meter dash, a silver medal in the 100 meter walk, and a bronze medal in the long jump.

Linda Moyer of Boyne City, Marcia Bischoff of East Jordan, and Sally Rogler of Charlevoix each won two medals. Moyer won a gold medal in the 100 meter walk and a bronze medal in the soft ball throw. Bischoff won silver medals in the 100 meter walk and the 50 meter walk. Rogler won a gold medal in the long jump and a silver medal in the 100 meter walk.

Other gold medal winners were Jay Kessler of Boyne City, in the 100 meter walk, and Allan Hughey of East Jordan, in the 100 meter walk.

Other silver medal winners were Randy Woodard of Charlevoix, in the soft ball throw, and Mike Klooster of East Jordan, in the 50 meter dash.

Other bronze medal winners were Joe Mason of Charlevoix, in the soft ball throw, and John Koepke of Boyne City, in the 100 meter walk.

The 71 young people from Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego, and Cheboygan Counties who participated in the Summer Games were among several hundred from all over the state who vied for honors under the motto, "Let me win; but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt".

The Special Olympics were sponsored for the fifth consecutive year by Spartan Stores, which operates two stores in Charlevoix, Glen's Market and Family Center, and Oleson's Food Store.

Jim McCallum of The Bergmann Center reports that some phone solicitations for Special Olympics support have recently been made in the area. These calls are completely unauthorized and should be reported to him immediately when received, he urged.

Bowling to raise funds

A "Fun Bowl Fundraiser" at Paul Bunyan Lanes will be the summer money-raising event for the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Scheduled for Sunday afternoon, June 25, the event will be a bowling tournament for which bowlers will receive pledges of at least 25 cents a pin, which will be paid to the Humane Society.

Further information about the Fun Bowl is available from the Humane Society, phone 547-9711.

Charlevoix seniors take two

Stevens Construction won two games during play in the Senior Division of Little League for Charlevoix.

The team downed Galmores of East Jordan 16-1 on June 7 and Michigan Officeways of Charlevoix 5-4 on June 8. Against Galmores the winning pitcher was Ken Olinger who went five innings while Jody McGlinch pitched the final two. For Stevens Bill Dreyer had four hits, Travis Blissett, 3, and McGlinch and Olinger, 2.

Losing pitcher was John Ramsey.

Against Michigan Officeways, Blissett threw a no-hitter striking out 12 and walking five. Olinger had two doubles while McGlinch, Dreyer and Blissett singled.

Guy Gengle was the losing pitcher with relief from Luke Porath. They struck out 11 batters.

The teams play in a league made up of teams from Charlevix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls.

THEREFORE SECTION 6.06, PERMIT REQUIRED FOR "PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT" shall be published, in its entirety, to read as follows:

SECTION 6.06 - PERMIT REQUIRED FOR "PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT"

A. PURPOSE

1. As used in these following Sections the term "Planned Unit Development" includes such terms as cluster zoning, planned development, planned residential development, and other terminology denoting Zoning requirements designed to accomplish the objectives of the Zoning Ordinance through a land development project review process based on the application of site plan criteria to achieve intergration of the proposed land development project with the characteristics of the project area. The term "Planned Unit Development" shall be abbreviated as: P.U.D.

2. The objectives of requirements established in this ordinance for P.U.D. shall be to permit flexibility in the regulation of land development, encourage useful open space and protect the natural environment.

3. The review and approval of P.U.D.'s shall be by the Township Planning Commission acting as the Township Zoning Board.

4. A P.U.D. may be permitted in any zone district, accept R-1, R-2, or R-3, upon any area of not less than ten (10) acres of contiguous land provided that those portions of the P.U.D. which are contiguous to other lands not part of the P.U.D. shall be developed and arranged in a manner compatible with the zoning of such other contiguous lands.

5. The applicants for a P.U.D. shall be the owners of the land, and any person, firm or corporation with any interest therein at the time of the application shall endorse their consent thereto, however, only owners or their successors or assigns shall have any obligation in connection with the condition of development. The owners or duly authorized agents, shall be participants in the review process.

B. Acceptable "Planned Unit Development" Projects

1. The Planning Commission may, after appropriate public hearings, approve a P.U.D. project and may permit modifications of setback requirements, provided that the approved project shall be consistent with, and promote the intent and purpose of the zoning ordinance as a whole.

2. All permitted P.U.D. projects shall insure that the land use or activity authorized shall be compatible with adjacent use of land, the natural environment, and the capabilities of public services and facilities affected by the land use.

3. All permitted P.U.D. projects shall meet standards insuring that the land use or activity is consistent with the public health, safety an welfare of Township residents. A permitted P.U.D. use shall also comply with all conditions imposed by the Township Planning Commission acting as the Zoning Board, other applicable ordinances of the Township, County, State and Federal Statutes.

C. Conditions for approval of "Planned Unit Development"

1. The Township Planning Commission acting as the Zoning Board, may impose such conditions for approval of a P.U.D. project as are reasonable to protect the natural environment, conserve natural resources and to insure compatibility with adjacent uses of land.

2. A P.U.D. will be designed to protect natural resources and the health, safety and welfare of those who will use the land or activity under consideration, residents and landowners immediately adjacent to the proposed land use or activity, and the community as a whole.

3. Conditions for approval shall meet all of the following requirements:

a. Wet or dry hydrants shall be required, the number and location, as recommended by the Township Fire Committee.

b. All utilities shall be underground.

c. Lighting of homes, streets, signs and other P.U.D. facilities shall meet lighting requirements of the zoning ordinance and, in addition, shall be shielded and directed to prevent sky illumination.

d. Water and sewage facilities shall be on-site. As a result the number of units shall be limited to the recommendations of relevant county state and federal agencies as to on-site water and sewage capabilities.

e. Outdoor parking spaces shall be limited to two spaces per dwelling unit, not to exceed 200 square feet per space.

f. Building height shall be 30 feet maximum, as measured from average grade to ridge of roof.

g. Waterfront setback requirements may be extended to 200 feet to protect the natural environment and/or if any unusual circumstances of land forms exist. In such circumstances the greenbelt requirement may also be extended.

h. Buildings that blend into the natural contours of the land are encouraged along with natural color and design schemes.

i. Residential and all P.U.D. developments shall not exceed the lot area/density requirements as allowed by the Zoning Ordinance in that district.

j. All land that is left in a totally natural state (See Section 2.02, Definition - Natural State) shall be counted as eligible for one additional "bonus" residential unit per lot area/density requirement as allowed by the zoning ordinance in that district.

i.e., a 100 acre P.U.D. in A-1 can have 10 initial residential units plus one "bonus" residential unit for every 10 acres of land left in a totally natural state.

The "bonus" acreage will be measured from the set-back requirements of the zoning district the P.U.D. is located in.

The purpose of this section is to encourage more open, totally natural areas by allowing the developer more residential units per zoning district than normally allowed.

School discusses legal action against city over DDA/TIFA

Negotiations between the school board and city council concerning altering the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) have broken down.

At Monday evening's school board meeting, Pat Bernardo, an attorney, discussed what arguments the school would pursue in court were the school to file suit against the city.

Although litigation was discussed, school board members did not indicate they are inclined to pursue that course of action.

In introducing Bernardo, school administrators said he was at the meeting so the entire board would know the legal background and possibilities regarding the DDA and TIFA.

Earlier this year, representatives of the school and council negotiated a tentative agreement in closed door sessions. However, when the proposal became public the city council responded to input from businessmen at a public hearing and amended the proposed agreement.

Compared to the original proposal the amended agreement would refund fewer DDA and TIFA dollars to the school and would allow the DDA to exist for a longer period of time.

School business manager Vince Olach who is soon to retire criticized the city council in their handling of the negotiations.

"The city negotiating team signed an agreement, then at the last minute the city council backed out and changed the whole thing around," Olach said. He later added, "We're talking, for lack of a better term, a point of honor."

Bernardo noted that past opinions by the State Attorney General's office and advisory opinions by the State Supreme Court have said that DDAs and TIFAs are allowable under the Michigan Constitution.

However, Bernardo added that these opinions concern only specific legal questions and there are other questions which could be asked. Among the questions he discussed was uniformity of taxing within a taxing district.

Board member Scott Beatty asked if there is currently any other litigation pending on the questions Bernardo referred to.

Bernarado replied that there is no other litigation on these matters which is very far advanced, if there is any at all.

He added that many other school systems and cities have engaged in a similar debate and most have reached a negotiated settlement.

"The cost, obviously, of litigation is great for all parties," Bernardo said. He noted that questions in DDA or TIFA are the kind which would end up go-

Splat, splat you're dead

While some might consider the game militaristic, local young men who play it view it as only a game of tag for adults.

Between 10 and 20 young men have been taking to the woods once or twice a week for the past year to play splatball. The game, which is also known as the survival game, is played with Co2 powered marking guns which shoot gelatin balls filled with coloring. When the gelatin balls hit someone, they break open and leave a splotch of color.

At 25 years old, Shannon Reynolds is the oldest of the local splatball players. He says he enjoys the game because it's competitive, requires teamwork and is great exercise.

The exercise comes from running through the woods and across openings dressed in full camouflage gear.

The other splat ball enthusiasts are mostly in their late teens or early twenties, however they also have players as young as 15.

There are two primary forms of the game. One involves capturing an enemy flag. The other is simply a matter of splatting all of the opponents before all of the members of your own team get splatted.

game were originally designed to mark livestock. A few years ago, people began using the guns to play splatball with each other in the woods.

With the game growing in popularity, different variations of marking guns have also been developed. Currently, the guns range from small pistols to longarms with silencers. Marking guns can be modified to hold different sizes of Co2 cylinders or a larger number of marking balls. Guns range in price from $80 to $800, with a good set up costing about $200.

Even the marking balls come in a variety of colors. Red used to be popular, but now the players prefer camouflage pellets because they are difficult to see coming through the woods.

Players say the guns are accurate up to about 60 yards. They say being hit by a pellet stings a little and will leave a small welt on bare skin. However most of the Charlevoix players wear full camouflage. The Charlevoix group also requires that anyone playing wear goggles and a mask to protect their eyes and face.

The coloring from the marking balls washes out of clothes with water. The marking balls are also biodegradeable and are beneficial rather than harmful to plants.

Although there has been controversy in some parts of the country about the game being too warlike, the players don't feel that's a problem.

"It's just a game," says Alan Bergmann. He that if one of the players started getting obsessed with the game, the other players would probably no longer allow him to participate.

ing beyond the Circuit Court level.

Olach said the city council has refused to sit down as a whole with the entire school board.

Dave Strawbridge, who was in the audience Monday evening, said of the possibility of the school initiating litigation, "I can't imagine the school board would consider that." Strawbridge said litigation would be costly and would also generate bad will.

School board member Larry Levengood said he felt the along with benefits to the school, the original proposal also offered benefits to the city.

Bernardo indicated that although he was outlining the legal questions litigation would entail, he didn't mean to suggest that is the appropriate course for the school board to pursue.

School considers options following millage defeat

After voters rejected two proposed millage increases, the school board is discussing what to do in the wake of the defeat.

At Monday evening's board meeting, school administrators and board members briefly discussed budgetary cuts, dipping further into fund equity, hosting a public hearing and holding another election.

In discussing the millage increase rejections, school superintendent Gordon VanWieren said that voters evidently didn't see the school's needs or the school didn't do a good job of getting the message of their needs across to voters.

In the June 12 election an operational millage increase of one mill to balance the budget was turned down 669 to 412. An operational millage increase of nine-tenths of a mill to be earmarked for transportation was turned down 588 to 486.

VanWieren said that if cuts are made he would like to maintain the school's present educational program and staff.

Some of the areas he said might be candidates for budgetary cuts and belt tightening are: administrative costs, the hot lunch program, extracurricular activities, special field trips and bus routes.

As to the hot lunch program, he mentioned the possibility of raising prices or changing to inhouse management.

Concerning busing, he said that it may be possible to shorten some routes.

"My main concern is that we don't start cutting back to the point where kids' education is affected," he said.

Board member Larry Levengood said that last year after a three mill increase proposal was defeated, the board held a public meeting. Subsequently, a 1.8 mill increase was passed. He said he would be interested in holding a similar meeting.

Levengood said he is concerned about the bus fleet and feels some type of capital improvement fund is needed.

Board member Bob Drenth pointed out that only 25 percent of school district voters voted in the June 12 election. Birdie Whitley, an audience member who also worked at the election, noted that turnout was higher than normal.

Were the school board to decide to hold another election, the cost of the election would be approximately $3,000.

The quest for a giant pumpkin

The giant pumpkins always look so impressive in the seed catalogues.

Early every spring I look through the Gurneys' seed book and I see bright, cheery pictures of some little kid sitting next to a 200 pound pumpkin.

Every spring I think, "This year, just maybe this year, I'll be able to grow a giant pumpkin."

And every year I order a packet of giant pumpkin seeds. Giant pumpkin seeds are expensive. For the price of a single packet of giant pumpkin seeds a person could buy two or three packets of regular pumpkin seeds.

But any gardener with half a brain can grow regular pumpkins. It takes a special kind of gardener with half a brain to grow giant pumpkins.

Although I've never succeeded in growing a pumpkin larger than about 25 pounds, I have not given up hope. Each year I have failed, but as the years have passed I have refined my failures.

The first few years I attempted to grow giant pumpkins in the same manner as regular pumpkins. I just planted a few hills here and there in the corn patch and stood back and aited to see what happened.

The results were not impressive. The plants came up and a few pumpkins developed, but nothing worth getting worked up over.

In my mind, a giant pumpkin is not just a pumpkin the size of basketball. Nay. When I think of a giant pumpkin, I think of a pumpkin so large that when it finishes service as a Halloween jack-o-lantern, it can be recommissioned as a light house. Now that would be a giant pumpkin of note.

After the first few years of failure, I began trying some of the more elementary tricks of pumpkin growing. I began planting the seeds at different locations in the garden. I planted some in the eepest, darkest jungle of the sunflowers. Others were placed in the softer shade of the corn while still others were located in the wide open sunlight of the pea patch.

It didn't seem to make much difference. The pumpkins still failed to measure up.

Last year my wife read somewhere that in order to get giant pumpkins, you're supposed to snip off all but one or two blossoms from each plant. That way all of the nutrients and other good things are channeled into the remaining one or two pumpkins.

It sounded like a reasonable theory so I gave it a shot. Although I only had one plant that summer, I snipped all except one blossom. The remaining blossom became a pumpkin and for a while showed considerable promise.

The pumpkin grew larger and larger until it was about 20 pounds. Then the vine suddenly withered and the pumpkin I'd held so much hope for stopped growing. I got out my pocket knife and sliced open the vine. This autopsy revealed that the pumpkins demise was a homicide. A hideous white grub had bored into the base of the vine and killed it.

That single casualty wiped out my entire giant pumpkin crop that summer. I'd violated one of the basic rules of agriculture. Never put all your pumpkins in one basket.

This year things are going to be different. Things might not only be different, they might even be better.

As of this writing, I've got 14 giant pumpkin plants. I started out with four hills. I've got two plants on each original hill and six other plants which I've transplanted.

The eight originals are holding up well. The six transplants were a bit shaky for a while, but following some special tending I think they're on the mend.

I've pulled out all the stops this year. I'm pampering the giant pumpkins. I've built little moats around them to hold water. I've surrounded the stems with peat moss. I'm sprinkling a white powder around which is supposed to kill grubs and all other evils which afflict pumpkins. I'm even mixing some green plant food powder with water and putting that on them.

I'm getting almost as bad about those pumpkins as my wife is with her tomatoes. But that's all right. One of these years, and who knows this may be the year, I'm going to grow some substantial pumpkins.

The next challenge will be figuring out what to do with them.

BOB CLOCK

Low tides and low class

After living cheek by jowl with Lake Michigan for 24 years, and being a native Michigander to boot, I shouldn't be surprised by the rise and fall in the level of the Great Lakes.

But I'm always astonished by the cyclic change — particularly when the lake levels fall.

Where did all that water go? Are we ever going to get it back?

It seems like only yesterday that owners of lakefront property were driven to desperate measures to protect their shoreline from rising waters. The water was so high that trees on forested banks were toppling like straws into Lake Michigan.

Although the water crested two or three years ago, some of the steps taken by property owners to protect their property are still in evidence, namely huge canvas bags filled with concrete that are now high and dry on the beach.

Others made breakwalls of huge boulders.

The cost was tremendous, but if the water rises again (and it will) the breakwalls will still be in place, unless they are demolished by wave action.

Wide, sandy beaches ideal for sun bathing are the rule rather than the exception this year.

NOW ALL WE need are a few warm days to end the longest, coldest, wettest spring in living memory.

According to the calendar, summer starts today — but if I had stock in Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. I wouldn't sell it right away.

I had moved our stove wood from the front porch to the back yard and it became rain-logged before the deep chill set in last week. In order to survive, we had to kick up the thermostat and let the gas furnace take over.

I can't remember ever before having a furnace fire in mid-June, but this has been a very strange year.

FOR ALL HIS political clout, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young is hardly a class act.

Here is this guy, a septuagenarian, childless through two marriages, who suddenly learns that one of his paramours — Annivory Calvert — bore him a son, Joel Loving, six years ago.

To be sure, the mayor and Ms. Calvert never married. Little Joel was born out-of-wedlock, as they say in the Harlequin romances.

Wouldn't you think this old duffer, teetering on the brink of the grave, would be tickled silly to have a real, live son — regardless of the circumstances of his birth?

For pity's sake, Ms. Calvert has presented the mayor not only an heir but also a toehold on immortality.

But what does hizzoner do?

At first he denied emphatically that he was the father. But court-ordered paternity tests conducted by three independent laboratories indicate that the mayor is Joel's father beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Young grudgingly agreed to have his attorneys enter into an agreement with Ms. Calvert's attorneys to work out a schedule of child-support payments.

Now Ms. Calvert charges that after she filed her paternity suit, the mayor had his police department launch an investigation of her sex life.

The mayor's office admits there was an investigation, but claims it was in connection with an auto "chop" scam.

Holy Moses!

The whole scenario leaves an awfully bad taste, particularly when you consider that the mayor has thrown away a wonderful opportunity to set a good example for all the unwed fathers in his domain.

Why didn't he own up to the paternity right away and accept responsibility for support of the child without a lot of legal hassle? By now he should be spending a lot of time with Joel, taking him to ballgames, buying him pennants and hot dogs and loving him to pieces.

But the mayor is made of pretty stern stuff.

I wonder if he'll have the common decency to put Joel in his will.

Letters to the Editor:

North Point plans questioned

Dear Editor,

As we all know, the people of Charlevoix were successful in obtaining 26 acres of North Point beach, sand dunes and forest, to be set aside hopefully forever, as a nature preserve. Once the people were informed that the undeveloped North Point wilderness was to be devastated by the building of a number of attractive but completely unnecessary condominiums the people, in their wisdom, united to give of their time, energy and treasure, so that North Point, in its pristine natural condition, would remain, as nature created it, a safe haven for plants, animals, birds and humans, from that time forward. The people, are, and of a right should be, eternally grateful for the help. The Little Traverse Conservancy and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Land Trust Fund gave in full measure, so that the wishes of the people could be successfully carried out, and North Point could be saved forever.

It has been written that "Eternal Vigilence is The Price of Liberty" and the people of Charlevoix should remember that this true statement also applies to the North Point Nature Preserve... for now that the preserve belongs to them, they must keep themselves informed as to the plans for the "improvements" and mangement of the beautiful area that they fought so hard to preserve. More specifically, they should be informed of the plans for the creation of a parking area at the end of McSauba Avenue, where it ends at the lakeshore, and joins Agate Avenue, which runs along the shore out to the point. It appears that plans have already been finalized, to open up the lane from the paved part of McSauba Ave., down to the lake shore, utilizing the full 66 feet of the McSauba right-of-way. This will of course destroy the only reminder of what the roads were like in the early days of the North Point community. This widened roadway will be blacktopped, and used as part of the parking area.

It is our feeling, writing for D.U.N.E., that since the proposed parking area is to be created from the last charming reminder of the old North Point roads, and is to be used by the people who visit the North Point Nature Preserve, and may affect the natural beauty of that Preserve, the people who gave so much to save the North Point wilderness should be informed of the time and date of a public meeting, to be held in a place convenient for all to attend, and at this meeting the plans for the parking area should be displayed for the people to see and understand.

The people should then be given a chance to discuss the proposal and suggestions for alternate plans should be given a hearing. It appears that there may be at least one suggestion that would not only save the appearance of the McSauba Lane, but would afford a much better view of the lake shores, especially to the west; allowing all the people to enjoy the magnificent spectacle of the glorious sunsets that Charlevoix is famous for.

North Point Forever..

Sr. citizens say thanks

The Senior Citizen's Center in the City of Charlevoix wishes to thank Norwood Township for its $500 donation to the general fund for support and maintenance of the Senior Center.

This donation completes the fund raising required by the City of Charlevoix for the Center to qualify for support from the city council.

This year, all four townships in our area gave support to its Seniors through their donations (Hayes, Charlevoix, Marion, and Norwood), and the City of Charlevoix itself increased its support by $2,000. This is heartwarming and we feel twice blessed because of your actions.

Thank you, thank you, thank you.

Offbeat artist's work to be displayed

Nancy Swan Drew's lighthearted look at the world is the subject of a featured artist exhibition in the Art Tree Sales Gallery this month.

Drew's off-the-wall sense of humor comes alive through her wildly colorful portraits with slogans. She has been snapped up by the Chicago Tribune as a cartoonist, and by Recycled Paper Greeting Cards as a contributing artist.

Last year, the Niles, Michigan, woman (yes, her name is really Nancy Drew) added a collection of t-shirts and chef's aprons to her repertoire. This year she has developed a line of designer originals in response to a rowing demand for wearable art.

Hats, handbags, sunglasses, dresses, suitcoats and vests are included in Drew's exhibit. All bear bright colors splashed on with her trademark abandon, plus sewn-on "conversation pieces" that make her work into humorous, functional collage.

Nancy Drew's "Body digs for the wide awake" will be featured through July 3 in the center gallery of the McCune Arts Center. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, and until 9 p.m. Tuesday and Friday evenings. The arts center is located in the historic former Methodist church at the corner of Mitchell and Division streets, downtown Petoskey.

Benefit sale scheduled

A chance to buy, a chance to sell, a chance to make some money, but most of all, a chance to help a good cause.

The Charlevoix Concerned Citizens, who are trying to discourage the use of drugs and alcohol by young people in the area, are sponsoring a giant yard sale next Saturday, June 24, in the Charlevoix High School gym.

They will rent tables to sellers for $20 for the day and permit sellers to keep their profits; or they will rent tables for $10 for the day and permit sellers to keep 80 percent of their profits.

The sale will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The public is encouraged to take some of their unneeded but good quality items to the sale, and merchants are especially encouraged to use the sale as a means of disposing of some of their outdated inventory.

Proceeds from this yard sale will go toward training persons on how to recognize the tell-tale signs of early usage of controlled substances and alcohol.

Further information is available from Ralph McRae at 547-6764.

School board pressed to take swimming pool position

Early in Monday evening's school board meeting, board members pressed Pool Steering Committee (PSC) members for information concerning their funding plans.

Near the end of the meeting, audience members pressed the school board to take a stand of approval or disapproval concerning swimming pool plans.

PSC cochairman Dave Strawbridge was at the meeting to update the school board on plans for a public swimming pool.

The swimming pool committee is a completely separate entity from the school board. However, the committees current plans call for the pool to be built at the elementary school. Consequently, Strawbridge and other pool proponents have frequently updated the school board.

At Monday evening's meeting, Strawbridge said the PSC has hired an architect and has a preliminary conceptual design for the pool. He said the conceptual design will be used in summer fundraising efforts.

Strawbridge explained that the pool committee wants to stake out an area at the elementary school to indicate where the swimming pool and parking lot would be located according to the current proposal.

Board members said they would allow that.

Board member Scott Beatty asked Strawbridge what direction the pool committee plans to take in terms of financing.

Strawbridge said that at this time the pool committee is pursuing private financing (i.e. grants and contributions). He said the committee realizes that at this time the school board is dealing with other financial issues.

Audience member Lyle Ance asked if the board has indicated either approval or disapproval of the swimming pool plans. Board members indicated that at this time they have indicated no position one way or the other.

Ance pointed out that the pool committee is proceeding on the assumption that the elementary school property will be available.

Strawbridge said that consideration of a suitable site for the pool goes back several years and that the elementary school has been deemed the most suitable site given the priorities of teaching water safety and benefitting public health.

Near the end of the meeting, following discussion of recent millage defeats, another audience member said he felt that in dealing with the millage defeat the school board should take a stand on the proposed pool.

He said that with stakes going up at the elementary school, the pool begins to look more like a reality and be associated with the school.

Pool committee to benefit from auction

The Pool Steering Committee (PSC) will be the beneficiary of this year's annual Labor Day auction.

Usually sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB), this year the auction will be sponsored by the Kiwanis Club to support building a swimming pool.

More than $10,000 worth of donated items will auctioned off to silent and live bidders. The group is looking for donations that can be combined with other contributions to create an appealing package for bidders.

The auction and a fund-raiser for Operation Petunia will be held 5-8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 4, at Irish Boat Shop.

The pool committee is not the first organization KCB has shared its fund-raisers with, according to organization president Bruce MacArthur. The Rotary Club has been part of the KCB auction and the Little Traverse Conservancy and Charlevoix Concerned Citizens (CCC) were part of the petunia picnic.

The KCB fund-raiser will be a drawing for a Buick Reatta. Tickets will be available next week from KCB board members or the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Other contributions to the pool fund can be made out to the Kiwanis Youth Foundation and sent to P.O. Box 275, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

New business manager hired

Former Boyne City school superintendent Rich Kelly has been hired as the new Charlevoix school business manager.

Kelly, 47, will replace Vince Olach who is retiring.

At the end of the 1988 school year, Kelly left Boyne City to become superintendent of Bellvue schools.

Prior to leaving Northern Michigan, Kelly and his family lived in Charlevoix for several years. His wife Anne taught at Charlevoix's St. Mary's school.

Bruce Reinhart, 77, of Charlevoix, died June 19, 1989, at his home.

Funeral will be 10 a.m. Thursday, June 22, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix will officiate and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Reinhart was born Nov. 24, 1911, in Charlevoix, the son of George and Helen Reinhart. He graduated from Charlevoix High School and on Aug. 20, 1933, he married the former Goldie Peters. The couple moved to the Detroit area in 1938 where Mr. Reinhart was a machinist by trade. He had worked for manufacturing plants in the Detroit area and retired in 1971 from Excello Corp. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhart then moved to Charlevoix to make their home. Mrs. Reinhart preceded him in death on Oct. 4, 1984.

Mr. Reinhart was a cribbage player for the Odd Fellows during the annual Odd Fellow-Masons tournament each year. He was also a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club and was an avid golfer.

He is survived by: five sons, Larry of Florida, Jerry of California, David of North Carolina, Richard of Troy and Michael of Charlevoix; four daughters, Carol Useted of California, Mrs. Alfred (Annette) O'Neil of Berkley, Mrs. John (Natalie) Bykayio of Hazel Park and Mrs. Larry (Marilyn) Fink of Charlevoix; 22 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by two sons, Terry and Robert and one daughter, Kathleen.

The family suggests memorials to the Coronary Care Unit of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where friends may call 6-9 p.m. Wednesday.

Archie Graham

Archie Graham, 87, of East Jordan died Wednesday, June 14, at Provincial House of Gaylord. He was born Dec. 25, 1901 in Brown City, Mich. the son of John and Ida (Bell) Graham.

On Dec. 24, 1923 he was united in marriage to Madoline Renwick in Brown City where they made their home. In 1933, they moved to Echo Township where they owned and operated a farm.

Graham was a charter member of the Antrim County Farm Bureau.

Surviving are his wife, Madoline; three sons, Cameron, James and David all of East Jordan; 15 grandchildren; 28 great grandchildren and one great-great-grandson; two sisters, Gladys Fraleigh of Marlette and Jean Roberts of Dearborn and many nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by two sons, Angus John and Archie Jr.

Funeral services took place Saturday, June 17, at the East Jordan United Methodist Church with Rev. Merlin Delo and Pastor Dennis Williams officiating. Memorials may be made to the East Jordan Ambulance Fund. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Hastings Funeral Home in Ellsworth. Burial was in Sunset Hill Cemetery in East Jordan.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Do something for yourself this week. Pack up the family in the car and go to one of our Lake Michigan beaches to watch the sunset. Anyone who might have doubts about God's existence could just have them taken care of while watching that sunset.

If you have children, send them on a hunt for Petoskey stones. I have always looked at those things as one of the ways God says, "I've been here all along." To think about the animal that once was alive and has now become the fascinating fossil you hold in your hand is a testimony on creation worth contemplating.

While the kids are picking up rocks, Mom and Dad ought to take off their shoes and socks and wiggle their toes in the water. Don't just gaze out at the vast horizon. Feel the pulse of the lake against your feet. Know that just off shore God has a teaming community of salmon, whitefish, trout and countless other species there for you. In an age of power boats and depth finders, it may be hard to conceive of just casting your nets and hoping for the best. Yet, that is how it all began.

Have you ever skipped rocks? The flat smooth ones work the best for me. Four hops has been my top number. I wonder if you have ever considered the coordination of mind and body that goes into such a fun moment? God is very much at work around and within you.

Teenagers tell me they like laser light shows. As thrilling as they may be, I don't think they will ever compare to what happens each night at sunset. The subtle changes in the color of an evening sky stir up something deep within my soul. The glorious orange, the palest pink, regal purples, romantic reds ... what fascinates me is that no two sunsets are exactly the same. Each display is unique and unforgettable if you view it with the right eyes.

Then just as the sun's final gleams sink beneath the horizon, inevitably one of my children spots the first star. I could go on and share about the wonders of a diamond studded sky, but I won't. Just do yourself a favor. Forget the television for one night. Go out to the lakeshore and drink in the wonders of God.

In the midst of your busy-ness, remember these words of David: "Be still, and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth."

Erosion officer closely monitors soil erosion permits

by PEG OHLE

Rick Pierson, Charlevoix County Soil Erosion and Sedimentation officer, reported to the Board of Commissioners last week that since January 1 he had issued 53 permits, and another 33 permits were pending.

Twenty-six of the permits were issued in May, many of them for work on Beaver Island, where landowners are concerned about possible restrictions being put on their properties by the pending sand dunes legislation.

The little-known County Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Ordinance, which became effective on January 1, 1974, requires that "Any person who proposes an earth change which will disturb one or more acres of land or which is located within 500 feet of a surface watercourse within the county shall obtain a grading permit...prior to initiating the earth change".

Up until last year, the office of Soil Erosion and Sedimentation was under the supervision of the Building Code Official, but it is now being administered in the offices of the Soil Conservation Service in Boyne City. The ordinance has a five-fold purpose:

–To protect their health, welfare, and general safety of the people of the county and to preserve natural resources.

–To encourage use of lands in accordance with their character and capabilities.

–To eliminate the need for costly repairs to roads, embankments, ditches, streams, rivers, and lakes.

–To protect and preserve the water quality and associated fish and wildlife resources.

–To outline land development procedures which will conform to established conservation practices.

A new schedule of fees for Soil Erosion and Sedimentation permits went into effect the first of this month. Costs range from $20 for a single family dwelling to $75 for a commercial project of five acres or less. There is also a $50 "late fee" for all applicants not obtaining a soil erosion permit prior to beginning their earth change.

Among the projects on which Pierson worked during May were:

The Walloon Country Club Golf Course, East Jordan Iron Works Landfill, Charlevoix Cove Subdivision, Charlevoix Landfill, Pine Lake Condo-Marine Development, Fox Oyster Bay Development, Mill Creek Golf Course, Lake Michigan Heights Mobile Home Park, Boyne City Landfill, Boyne City Municipal Projects, and three residential projects.

County passes audit

The auditors for Charlevoix County could find only minor flaws in the County's bookkeeping records when they went over the books for the County's 1988 audit.

Gaudette and Company of Traverse City reported to the County Board of Commissioners last week that "Nothing came to our attention in the course of our tests in connection with our report on the financial statements to indicate any improper, illegal, or other action".

The audit did indicate that the county was not able to live within its budget, however. Its expenditures exceeded revenues in the General Fund by $365,177. Thirty-nine departments exceeded budgetary funds in varying amounts, ranging from $16 for the Michigan Justice Fund to $187,642 for the District Health Department. In connection with the latter figure, it was noted that the Health Department budget was not submitted to the County Board for adoption, as it should have been.

KCB to meet this Saturday

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's annual meeting will take place at 10 a.m., Saturday June 24 on the steps of Hoffmann Park. In case of inclimate weather, the meeting will take place in the conference room at Pointes North.

The public is invited to the meeting which is expected to last approximately an hour.

Among matters to be discussed at the meeting are results of a recent survey of KCB board members to determine future goals of the group.

There will also be a report on correspondence with K-Mart and Glens concerning signs planned for the businesses.

Board members and officers will also be elected at the meeting. For additional information call 547-6960.

HAPPY 100th BIRTHDAY BARNARD GRANGE

June 1889 — 1989

by PEG OHLE

Time will turn backward for a while this Saturday as members of the Barnard Grange celebrate the 100th anniversary of the group's founding.

The big event on Saturday will be an old-fashioned square and round dance, to be held in the parking lot behind the Charlevoix Fire Station on State Street from 8 to 10 p.m., rain or shine. Music for square dancing, waltzes, polkas, two-steps, and fox trots will be provided by the Grange Band, "Jasper and His Tag-A-Alongs".

Organizers of the dance explain that the Grange is hosting the dance in town so everyone who wishes to do so may join in the celebration. Those who do not know how to square dance will be helped by Grange members, who will be wearing bonnets or top hats.

The other event on Saturday is the annual salad luncheon, pie sale, and Hobbycraft Show at the Barnard Grange Hall on Barnard Road. Hobbyists will display and sell their items from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The luncheon, to be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., will feature a variety of hot casseroles, salads, rolls, and choice of beverage.

Old records indicate that the Barnard Grange was organized on June 28, 1889 by J.J. Woodman of Paw Paw and James Williams of Eastport (apparently representing other Granges).

Edwin Cook was elected Overseer; William Clark, Master; Melvina Clark, Lecturer; George Anderson, Secretary; Henry Gornell, Treasurer; Carrie Clark, Lady Assistant Steward; Robert Gregory, Assistant Steward; William Burns, Steward; John Smith, Gatekeeper; John Oldham, Chaplain; Ettie Burns, Pomona; Sarah Anderson, Flora; and Mary Smith, Ceres to serve the 27 founding members, who, in addition to the above, were:

If the Grange members had come to Charlevoix for a dance on that first meeting night, they would not have found a smooth outdoor dance floor but there were plenty of hitching posts for their horses in and wooden sidewalks to protect their dancing shoes.

But the organizers of the Barnard Grange stayed in Barnard that night in 1889. They met in the old Barnard school house, which was their home until 1905, when a new Grange Hall was built. That original hall was moved across the road in 1956 to its present location on Barnard and Klooster Roads, and an addition was constructed in 1983.

When the Barnard Grange was founded in 1889, it became part of a national organization called "The Grange, or Patrons of Husbandry," which had been founded in Washington in 1867. Its purposes were educational and social, and, to some extent, financial. The National Grange led the fight for lower railroad rates and many local Granges operated cooperative stores and elevators. By 1875, there were 600 local Granges in Michigan.

The Barnard Grange was the first Grange organized in Charlevoix County and is the only active Grange organization in the area today. It retains the original Grange purposes of educational and social pursuits, with emphasis on community service, and participates in the National Grange program of assisting those with hearing problems.

Although the Barnard Grange was founded as an agricultural organization, only two percent of its members today are making a living as farmers. The membership list of 206, the largest of any Grange in Michigan, shows addresses in cities and towns as well as in outlying townships.

Jasper (Warner) and His Tag-A-Longs Band is an integral part of the Barnard Grange and participates in community and fund-raising events throughout the area. This past spring, the band provided music for a dance that netted $1,400 for the Charlevoix Senior Citizens building fund. They participate annually in the Charlevoix Venetian Parade and in the Horton Bay Fourth of July Parade.

Each year, the Barnard Grange honors a person or persons who have given a large measure of time and energy to serving the community. Lou and Rita Orlowski of Charlevoix were this year's honorees.

Christmas time and Halloween are special times at the Barnard Grange, with family gatherings featuring the arrival of Santa Claus at Christmas and goblins, black cats, and spooks keeping away evil spirits on Halloween.

The Barnard Grange is known beyond the confines of northern Michigan. Last October, it was host to approximately 300 members of the Michigan State Grange at its 115th annual state convention.

Many of the men and women overseeing the activities of the Barnard Grange in its 100th year of community service bear family names long recognized in Grange activities. The officers are:

Master, Norman Empey; Overseer, Rod Stevens; Lecturer, Donna Stevens; Secretary, Beverly Smith; Treasurer, Charles Dhaseleer; Lady Assistant Steward, Kay Empey; Assistant Steward, Bill Stevens; Steward, Dick Smith; Gatekeeper, Franklin Cellner; and Chaplain, Mary Warner.

Also, Pomona, Irene Cellner; Flora, Catherine Stebe; and Ceres, Josephine Stutzman. These offices, always held by women, represent the graces of Faith, Hope, and Charity, and the harvest of fruit, flowers, and grain.

All 206 members of the Barnard Grange invite the public to join in their festivities on Saturday in Barnard and in Charlevoix.

BUSINESS

Bill Bellinger stands behind the counter in the showroom of Bellinger Marine Service. The building is one of the distinct in the harbor. During the past year, the dock, building front and showroom have undergone major renovation.

Boatyard gets facelift

One of Charlevoix's most historic waterfront buildings recently completed a face lift.

Bellinger Marine Service on the southwest side of Round Lake has been a boatyard since 1950. Back in the 1920's it was the Booth Fisheries building. Even earlier than that it was a coal dock.

The late Jim Bellinger opened the boatyard. It is now owned by his son Bill.

For several years, the 81 foot dock had gas pumps only at the east end. Last year a second set of pumps was installed at the west end. The new docks help cut down on boaters racing for the one set of pumps and also allows small boats to take on fuel while large boats are fueling.

Structural work on the dock and the building's showroom began last fall. The dock formerly was supported by wooden pilings.

The foundation at the front of the building is difficult to describe. Bellinger said it appears that one floor was built over another and that some coal or something was left in between.

Whatever was there had become unstable. The showroom floor had heaved and the front of the building was slowly migrating north. In a way, it was ironic. A building which had seen thousands of fish and boats come from the lake was now headed toward the lake itself.

Stopping the building's descent required: removing the old wooden dock structure, placing solid footings and a foundation at the front of the building, enclosing the dock area with sheet piling, filling where the dock had been and pouring 85 yards of cement.

Even some of the materials used in the renovation have local historical significances. Some of the steel at the western edge of the building came from the old railroad bridge.

"Now we've got a good solid front dock and the showroom is much more complete," Bellinger said in explaining the major benefits of the repairs.

The showroom now has a wider variety of boating accessories while the dock is solid and the ripples are gone where the words "Bellinger Marine Service" are painted on the front of the building.

Boaters will also be happy to know the big pilings which cushion the shock of imperfect dockings have been reinstalled outside of the sheet piling.

Radioactive waste should be sent elsewhere according to congressmen

Congressman Bob Davis has written a top state official opposing the location of a low-level radioactive waste facility in Northern Michigan.

"It would be in Michigan's best interest to exclude the northern half of the state from consideration," Davis said. "Even the very remote possibility of a leak is reason enough not to put it up north."

Northern Michigan is completely surrounded by the Great Lakes which contain twenty percent of the world's fresh water supply," Davis continued, "We simply cannot take a chance like this with our natural resources."

Davis expressed his opposition in a letter to James Cleary, Commissioner of Michigan's Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority. Within the next sixty days, the authority will publish a list of communities that have been eliminated from consideration.

Michigan is one of seven states in the Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact. The Compact has the responsibility of resolving the storage of the region's low-level radioactive waste. Michigan generates more low-level radioactive waste than any of the other states in the compact and has been designated as the initial host of the region's waste disposal site.

According to Davis, by law Michigan would be the host state for 20 years at which time another of the states in the Midwest compact will become responsible for the waste.

While a Member of Michigan's State Senate, Davis authored a law prohibiting the disposal of radioactive wastes in Michigan. Legislation passed in the United States Congress in 1980 and 1985 requires states to assume new responsibilities for low-level radioactive waste management. In the case of nuclear wastes, federal law supersedes state law. Michigan joined the Midwest Interstate Low Level Radioactive Waste Compact to comply with these federal laws.

Basketball camp next week

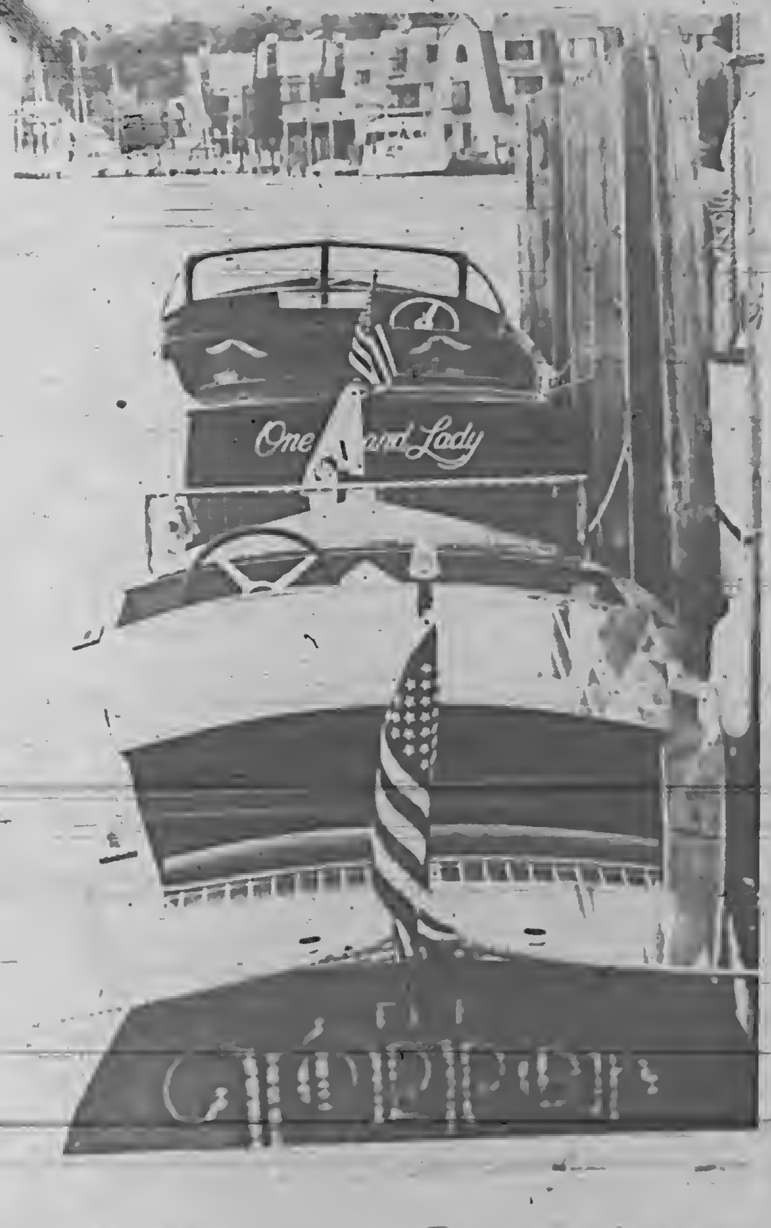
A basketball camp for seventh and eighth grade boys will take place June 26-30 at Charlevoix High School. Charlevoix varsity basketball coach Jim Kanine will instruct the camp which will run from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day.

The cost of the camp is $25 per player. Players will receive a reversible mesh jersey and daily refreshments will be provided.

Two awards will be given at the end of the camp: one for the player with the most hustle and enthusiasm and a second to the most improved player.

Registration for the camp will take place June 26. Parents will be required to sign permission slips and fill out insurance forms. For additional information, call 547-9495.

Several people braved the overcast weather to view the boats displayed at Charlevoix's first antique boat show.



Looking just as bright and shiny as when they were new, these two boats which are actually decades old sat at the Charlevoix docks Saturday.

Yachting Notes

An east wind and balmy 50 degree temperature set the stage for the fifth race of the spring series. The fleet started at Depot Beach and proceeded to Oyster Bay, Water's Edge and back to the Yacht Club. The second weather leg saw some places change hands as the wind was very unsettled and dramatic wind shifts occurred. In Fleet A "The Apprentice" passed Gotcha in the second windward leg and won her third race in a row. Gleason and crew lead the big boats with 4.25 points, Gotcha 6.75, Miss Piggy 8.75, Mint Julep 13 and MiJoy 19.

The Lost Vermonter and Blasen are slightly ahead of John Gordon's Flash after Blasen beat The Vermonter by almost 5 minutes this past Wednesday.

Mike Miller has his new "old" boat moving and is just ahead of the pack with 20 points, Cygnus follows with 21, Kitty-Wake 22, Sandpiper 23, One-legged Skipper Carland 23 and Foxy Lady 27 points.

The wise old man in Bandit has Fleet C pretty well wrapped up with only 3 points. Newsense and Moisture Missle follow, and barring any dismastings or sinkings, this is the way they'll stay!

Jim Mielke and crew in Cabaret are in a pretty convincing first place (in fact, with 5 first places in a row they don't even have to sail the last race!). Seems like they need a new Fleet or a new rating number! Maureen, the Bald Eagle and Canusa are locked in a battle for third place and the rest of the fleet follows closely, Stalworth with 18 points, Cheemaun 19 and Apothecary 19.

Now that summer is here all the sailors are hoping for warmer temperatures and steady winds. Come down to the club after the race on Wednesday to see who the winners are!

Taylor 12th in race

Following a 12th place finish in the 5,000 meter run at The Athletic Congress National Championships this past Saturday in Houston, Texas, Charlevoix's Bill Taylor has been invited to compete in the Olympic Sports Festival. The Olympic Sports Festival will take place in late July in Norman, Okla.

Taylor, a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix, ran for the Nike North team and was clocked at 14:04.58. Tim Hacker of Athletics West won the race with a time of 13:39.75.

Lawsuit on hold pending legislation

The legislature will have to act before the lawsuit between the city and the Robert Pew can be resolved, according to a Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) spokesperson.

Both the city and Pew, with an interest in obtaining railroad right of way, have agreed to settle the lawsuit, but MDOT, also a party to the suit, has not made a reply or taken any action on the suit.

"They can't do anything until the legislature takes action on the Essential Rail Corridor Act," said Susan Allen, MDOT public information officer.

Before MDOT can agree to the suit, "I think (the legislature) would have to say 'yeah, you can do that,'" Allen said.

Removal of the swinging bridge to the south of the Depot Beach area and political battles and rail washouts to the north have prevented the track from being used for several years.

Recently, city council sent a letter to MDOT and the legislature to clear up possible inconsistencies in the city's stand on the railroads.

Although the city has supported retaining the railway, council believes expanding Depot Beach would have a positive effect.

It is unclear if the rails would have to be pulled up for the settlement to be effective, Allen and other MDOT officials have said.

Regardless, city council favors expanding Depot Beach.

"The public interest is best served by the elimination of this approximately 600 feet of railway and its conversion into an expanded park and beach with a parking lot," said the letter, drafted by city attorney James Young.

Ferry Ave. changes discussed

A new question has arisen concerning Ferry Avenue Tax Increment Financing Authority (TIFA) project plans.

The property in question is south of the current beach area, down near Foster Boat Works.

The city owns a piece of property which according to plan is to become a park and parking lot.

Irish Boat Shop owns the adjacent property to the north. They plan to put a building and parking lot on their property.

City TIFA plans call for Ferry Avenue to be moved from its present location up the hill, to the west. The object is to have the parking lot on the same side of the road as the beach.

According to plans, the entrance to the proposed parking lot would be where the street is currently located, partly in front of the boat shop property.

Scott Beatty, an attorney representing Irish Boat Shop, said that according to the Irish deed they own the land to the center of the current roadway, but there is an easement for the public road. If the land is no longer to be a public road, then Irish would own the land to the center of the roadway. In other words, the city's proposed parking lot entrance would cross land owned by Irish.

Beatty said his client would like to have a driveway to their property open onto that parking lot entrance. He also said his client is concerned about landscaping to be done in front of their property. The concern is that tall trees or shrubbery would reduce the exposure of the business to Ferry Avenue.

City councilmen said that because the new public parking lot will be attached to the current public parking lot, they are concerned that traffic will go from one boat yard property to another via the parking lots rather than using the street.

Councilmen discussed the possibility of moving the proposed parking lot entrance, but said that might mean sacrificing parking spaces.

City attorney Jim Young said the council must decide if their interested in pursuing a settlement whereby: Irish would give up rights to the property where Ferry Avenue is currently

North Point preliminary plans approved by township

The Charlevoix Township board has approved preliminary plans for nature trails, a viewing platform and 12 parking spaces at the North Point Nature Preserve. Township officials express hope that following Department of Natural Resources (DNR) review and subsequent plan refinement, work can be completed by fall.

Site Planning Development Inc. drew up the preliminary plans which the township board approved June 12.

Landscape architect Traver Wood said the plan is "essentially a nondevelopment plan." He said the main goal of the plan is to preserve the natural setting while allowing the public access to the area.

The preserve is located on the shore of Lake Michigan and encompasses approximately 26 acres. It was purchased last year with a combination of grant money and contributions. It is administered by Charlevoix Township.

Building the trails, viewing platform and parking places will cost about $52,000. Half of the money will come from a state grant administered by the DNR. The rest of the cost will be a

Ahead-lines

Beware of school finance reform

In the next several weeks and months voters in Charlevoix and the rest of Michigan are going to be hearing about the state legislature's school finance proposals.

Voters will vote on both proposals Nov. 7. One proposal, if passed, would raise the state sales tax by half a cent, the other, if passed, would raise the state sales tax by two cents.

The half-cent proposal would do nothing in terms of property tax relief. It's a tax increase, pure and simple. The two-cent proposal may decrease property taxes to some degree, but when all of the adding and subtracting is done, Michigan taxpayers will still be paying more taxes if the two-cent proposal passes.

All Michigan voters should view the two proposals with a wary eye. Charlevoix voters in particular should be concerned.

These proposals were born in the Lansing legislature.

When it comes to educational funding, the Lansing legislature can hardly be considered a friend to Charlevoix's educational effort.

For several years, state funding for K-12 education has been allocated based upon a state aid formula. The formula takes into consideration property value (or tax base) and student numbers, but neglects to consider average income.

Relative to many areas of the state, Charlevoix has high property values and low student numbers. That allows the state to consider Charlevoix "out of formula" and out of luck for state funds.

If the Lansing legislature also considered average income, the picture might be different. But they choose not to consider average income.

The primary source of state educational funds, which Charlevoix receives very little of, is the state sales tax.

Proponents of the two sales tax proposals are going to have a difficult time convincing Charlevoix taxpayers to contribute more money to a pool which recent history indicates they get very little out of.

located; the city would permit Irish to put hook a driveway into the parking lot entrance; and the issue of landscaping would be addressed.

Mayor Gary Probert said, "I would hope we would be able to work this out."

He noted that landscaping shouldn't be a problem as the city also would like to keep the landscaping from blocking the view of the shop and Lake Charlevoix.

"I guess I'd have to endorse working with these people...It's a give and take situation," Probert said.

Ambulance staff asks for class time pay

City councilmen considered a proposal to pay city ambulance emergency medical technicians (EMTs) for time spent taking courses to maintain their certification.

Currently the city pays course fees, mileage and associated course expenses. The proposal is to also pay the EMTs $10 per credit hour for their time.

City fire and ambulance chief John Martin said the city currently has nine EMTs on the ambulance staff. Ambulance staff members are volunteers, but are paid $15 per call plus $5 per half hour after the first hour of the call.

To maintain their certification, EMTs must take 30 credit hours of training each three years. They also must renew their CPR credentials.

Martin said that for most EMT classes, one credit hour equates to about two actual hours.

With nine staff members averaging 10 credit hours per year, paying the EMTs $10 per credit hour would mean an added average cost of $900 per year to the city.

City manager Mike Wiesner also pointed out that there is an active fundraising effort to purchase a heart machine for the city ambulance. At $10 per hour, the cost of training EMTs for that would be $3,100 the first year, plus $2,400 to maintain certification each year after that.

Wiesner also noted that ambulance department revenue is projected to exceed ambulance department expenses by $20,500 this year. It was also noted that no money was set aside this year in a sinking fund for equipment replacement.

Councilmen indicated they are not opposed to paying the EMTs for their course time, however they questioned where the money would come from in the city budget.

Councilman Bill Haggard pointed out that this year's city budget calls for expenses to exceed revenues with the difference to be covered by dipping into city savings.

"I'm really for it," Haggard said. "I just want to see that we (can) get the money for it."

Haggard also asked if city firemen were currently paid for time spent in training classes. Martin said they are not at this time.

Mayor Gary Probert and other members of the council said that before they make a decision, they want to check and see if other area communities are paying firemen and ambulance personnel for time spent in training classes.

local match either in cash or services.

Plans call for two to two and a-half miles of foot trails through the preserve. The trails will be six feet wide with a tamped-earth surface.

Wood said trails are designed to pass through the differing plant communities in the preserve, but exclude an area which DNR officials have indicated contains threatened plant species.

Six of the parking spaces will be at the end of Mount McSauba Road, next to Lake Michigan. Township supervisor Oscar Stroud said the reason for having the spaces there is so that people will be able to view the sunsets over Lake Michigan.

The other six spaces will be on the site, farther up Mount McSauba Road.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

It was not a pretty job ...

Had I been working in an oil field, striking a gusher would have been a wonderful thing. But I was working on a septic line so it wasn't nearly as desirable.

My wife, who leaves for work earlier than I do and consequently also wakes up and gets out of bed earlier, has been discovering things again.

About a year ago, she shook me awake one morning and told me she'd discovered that the hot water heater was leaking and there was about an inch of water in the basement. I turned the appliance off and called the plumber.

Last Monday, another big discovery sent her scurrying into the bedroom to wake me and make an important report.

As I was still shaking the fog of sleep from my mind, she asked, "Do you realize we have a serious septic problem?"

Being in the news business myself, I don't believe in summarily executing the bearer of bad tidings. My wife is fortunate.

I muttered some words expressing my level of delight. Although I can't remember my exact words, let it suffice to say there are places where some paint has peeled.

As I put on some old clothes and prepared to go into battle with this enemy septic line, my wife briefed me on how the war had started. She'd taken her morning bath and when she went to drain the tub, the water began coming out in other places of the house.

One stroke in my favor was that I did have some previous experience in such skirmishes. The septic line in the basement had plugged up once before and I'd succeeded in getting it unblocked.

I went to the garage and armed myself with a pipe wrench, bucket and a roll of heavy wire.

My plan of attack was to drain the system, poke the wire down the line and clear the obstruction. It was a simple, logical plan which seemed good in theory. It had but a single drawback. In practice, it failed to work.

Although I didn't get the entire clog cleared, I did get the drain so it would work slowly.

By this time, it was getting to be time to go to work. So I took a shower, letting the water drain in increments, and put the battle on hold until evening.

That evening, I called in fresh troops. I recruited my brother Nick to help me. He and I tried the wire method again, but it still failed.

The catheter method having failed, we decided surgery was in order. I fetched a hacksaw.

While Nick held a flashlight and showed the good sense and foresight to stand back a safe distance, I began cutting.

It took me a few moments to saw the pipe in half, but at the instant I got it separated an old whaling term came to mind. "Thar she blows!"

There seemed to have been a little water left in that line.

Nick and I were able to clear more of the obstruction, but the pipe still wasn't draining exactly right.

Be that as it may, I patched the pipe together well enough to get through the short term. Right from the project's inception, my wife encouraged me to complete it A.S.A.P. She expressed a certain eagerness when it came to having a kitchen sink and bathrooms that worked. Some people have no sense of adventure.

The next day I dug up the septic line between the tank and the house. Eureka! I discovered what was causing the system to plug. The line outside of the house was made of an old tile type material which had crimped. It was a wonder anything was getting through.

Saturday morning, my father and I replaced the problem areas of pipe. It wasn't a pretty job, but it had to be done.

The next day, I was talking on the phone to my other brother, Gregg, who had been getting updates on the situation.

"How's the septic system?" he asked.

"Fine," I answered. "I think we've got her fixed."

"You can flush without fear and trepidation?"

"We can flush without fear and trepidation."

Ornamental thievery

A neighbor of mine drives an expensive car and has an expensive problem.

"Hoods" keep swiping his hood ornaments.

The problem has been reported to Charlevoix police, but apparently there is not a great deal they can do.

The most vulnerable models seem to be Mercedes, Cadillacs and BMWs.

The police told my neighbor that the thieves convert the expensive hood ornaments, which cost more than $50, into into real "hood" ornaments — fancy belt buckles and flashy medallions. The medallions are are worn on a chain around the neck to decorate an otherwise uninteresting thicket of chest hair.

Very macho, I guess, when the shirt is open to the belly-button.

It's a wonder the thieves don't become round-shouldered carrying all that metal around.

My neighbor says some of the ornaments are removable, but it's a nuisance to have to remove your hood ornament every time you park your car to buy a loaf of bread.

But it's also a nuisance to have to buy a new hood ornament every few weeks.

He was particularly surprised to have his Mercedes vandalized in Charlevoix — a community which has a long reputation for law and order.

So am I.

I thought Charlevoixans had more class.

So all "hoods" pay attention: "If it's not yours, don't touch it."

Charlevoix doesn't need a reputation for petty thievery, particularly with the summer people in town.

IF YOU'RE familiar with the watercolor paintings of Luke Buck, you'll be interested to know that an exhibit of Buck's work is on display at the Koucky Gallery, 319 Bridge St.

Buck's work is characterized by a very neat device: he lets his colors dribble off the paper at the bottom.

Sounds sloppy, but it's very effective. Each picture appears to be in the process of creation — a living, breathing work of art.

If you're not familiar with Buck's work, stop at the gallery. The display will continue through July 6.

Buck lives in Indiana but spends a good part of the year traveling — winters in Florida and summers in Northern Michigan.

His work will be on display this summer at art fairs in Charlevoix, East Jordan and Traverse City.

Oh, yes, Buck paints pictures without dribbles — in case you are a hide-bound traditionalist.

WHILE YOU are downtown, stop at Jeannine Wallace's newly refurbished Shop of the Gulls, 207 Bridge St.

Shop of the Gulls has always been the epitome of good taste. But now shoppers can get double the flavor by padding down a carpeted stairway to the fieldstone basement, which has been converted into an exquisite showroom for literally hundreds of gift items.

Many years ago, Charlevoix's posh Polly-Kay shop was located on the same premises, according to retired schoolmarm Fran Milner. Fran worked summers for Polly-Kay and recalls the basement stockroom was a veritable chamber of horrors.

But those days are over. Jeannine has kept the original stone walls, using them as a backdrop for her tasteful — and amusing — gift selections.

CONGRATULATIONS to the U.S. Supreme Court for its decision that it's OK for political protesters to burn Old Glory.

When I first heard the decision, I — like everyone else — was outraged. But after a few hours of sober reflection I came to the conclusion that the court's decision is sort of what the U.S. government and being American is all about.

We can still be outraged at the flag-burners. But, dammit! Isn't it great to live in a country where you can burn the flag and not end up in the slammer?

It's the nth degree of freedom — and it's ours!

Happy Fourth of July!

Some people want to see me tarred and feathered for my recent column on local politics. But most of my readership has felt that I hit the nail on the head! As reported, different people have different solutions for the lack of leadership in our town. Some would like to see the city and township unite, and some think a local PAC organization is the answer.

A fourth solution, offered by a local industrialist, is worth passing on. He suggests that since the city of Charlevoix is made up of almost one quarter "second-home" owners, (and let's call them resorters and not fudgies) that this group should have at least one member of the family register to vote in Charlevoix. Now isn't that an interesting idea? In this way the second-home owners could have a voice in local government. With an absentee ballot, this group could influence many close elections. Hundreds of families have been summering here for sixty, seventy years or more and all this time they have quietly paid taxes, supported the hospital, the churches, contributed to all the charitable benefits, and provided summer jobs for the "locals" in restaurants and shops. In their hearts they consider Charlevoix home. Their children are married here, they have family reunions here, and some are even buried here. As much as they love Charlevoix, many summer people are unhappy with the direction Charlevoix is heading. They see the town making the same mistakes other places have made when they let their guard down. If their voice is to be heard, then they too need to vote, along with the merchants, developers, realtors, environmentalists, school board, industrialists, and motel owners. How's that for another point of view?

Getting away from politics and on a more positive note, we give the White Orchid award to some of the improvements that have enhanced our town. We applaud Foster Boat Works development and marina; the outstanding fish cleaning station at Ferry Beach; Fairport Marina with the lush, well trimmed lawn planted on top of the garages; the adorable Victorian Historical Society building including its garden and fence; Don Berlage's new grey and white condos on the channel; well designed Hoffmann Park and Virginia Olsen's new cottage on Michigan Ave. Even the once controversial Lake Harbor Apartments on Petoskey Ave. have stood up well under the test of time (although it would help if they put a gate in front of the Waste Management container).

On the outskirts of town, in Hayes Township, is the exciting Oyster Point development. I took that beautiful sunset drive on the unfinished, rough, dirt roads, and looked down at the sparkling vista across Oyster Bay. I stood on the future site where 16 single family residences will soon rise, each with its own private dock. Set among the densely wooded pines, this secluded and expensive property promises to become a complex of very desirable homes for families who appreciate what northern Michigan has to offer. And that does not include another T-shirt store on Bridge Street.

Hospital says thanks

Dear Editor:

We want to extend our thanks to all those who turned out on Father's Day to golf in the Charlevoix Area Hospital's 4th Annual Golf and Dinner Benefit. Your support for the hospital is greatly appreciated and you were key to the success of the day. It was a beautiful day and we hope you all enjoyed the event. Please know that because of you and the many companies you contributed the event was a success. We raised $3,500 which will more than meet our goal in order to purchase an Emergency Control Module for the E.R.

Without friends like you, the Charlevoix Area Hospital could not exist.

Many thanks to all.

There's no need to be bored July 4th weekend

by PEG OHLE

Although Charlevoix does not have a formal Fourth of July celebration (waiting, instead, for Venetian Weekend, July 28 to 30), there will be many parades, carnivals, and fireworks in the county to entertain those who yearn for the traditional.

East Jordan

The Fourth of July falls on Tuesday this year so it will not be part of a "long weekend" celebration. However, the City of East Jordan has found a way to create a long weekend filled with events to commemorate this country's Independence Day even before that Day arrives.

The Jordan Valley Freedom Festival officially opens Friday, June 30, and continues through Sunday, July 2.

Friday's events include a soap box derby, basketball tournament, gymnastics exhibition, bingo games, lip sync contest, and teen dance.

On Saturday, there will be a flea market and hobbycraft show, an art fair and antique and special interest car show, a youth parade, a chicken barbecue, the Grand Parade at 12:30, a musical stage production called "Mainstreet", and fireworks.

On Sunday, coffee and doughnuts and a brunch will be served at the Charlevoix County Senior Center and there will be a beach volley ball tournament and a "4 Wheelers Mud Bog".

There will also be several other entertainment features throughout the three days, including amusement rides, concessions, and games of chance which begin on Thursday, open house at the Portside Art and Historical Museum, and walk-in bingo games.

After a day of rest, Charlevoix residents may then join in celebrations on Tuesday, July 4, in one or more neighboring communities:

Boyne City

Boyne City will have a long schedule of events on the Fourth of July, beginning with foot races at 8;30 a.m., through fireworks at 10:30 p.m.

The "American Pride" parade will start at 10 a.m., followed by the Rotary Club chicken barbecue and Boyne Valley Garden Club pie sale, children's games, duck races, band concert, raft races, frog jumping contest, and a dance at the Eagles Club.

All day long, the Waterside Arts and Crafts Show will be in progress, and in the evening there will be bingo at the American Legion Hall. In addition, the Boyne City Eagles and the Boyne Valley Lions will have refreshment concessions.

Central Lake

Central Lake will start July 4 activities at noon with a street parade down Main Street, to be followed by concessions and games in Thurston Park, featuring the Lions' chicken barbecue from 1 to 6 p.m. There will also be bingo games in the V.F.W. Hall and musical entertainment provided by "The Mountaineers" and "The Lost Valley Band" from 2 p.m. until fireworks time.

Children will not be forgotten. There will be games for them at 2 p.m., followed by a tug-of-war for their mothers and fathers (women against the men).

Horton Bay

As on recent Fourths of July, the road from Charlevoix to Horton Bay will probably be the busiest one in the county. The parade starts there at 1 p.m., with the line of March beginning at the corner of the Horton Bay North and Charlevoix Roads and continuing through the village, past the store, to the Methodist Church.

Approximately 100 crowd-pleasing participants will reflect the creativity and handiwork of people in the area. There will be no commercial floats and no political messages–just good fun and catchy music.

Evel Knieval impersonator Greg McNaughton will attempt to jump his motorcycle over 250 Petoskey stones, 50 more than last year; the Crandell and McCraney families will appear as a close order drill team, using drills as weapons; Merrell Herrod and her Sea Creatures will demonstrate how to clean up Horton Creek after an oil spill caused by an "indisposed" captain; members of the Banana Republic will present a tribute to John Wayne; residents of the Villa de Charlevoix will repeat last year's "Lawn Ranger" skit; tenor Bob Munn will present "Vanna and Her Vowels" and the list continues.

The Horton Bay Olympic Team, made up of members from across the United States, will be on hand to show off their skills; Nordic Bar's Horton Bay Skinny Dippers will just show off; Betty Kelts will play the role of Horton Bay Bowl Queen; Betty Bragg will walk her pet hamster on a leash; Cindy Hawkins Johnecheck, Jack Hawkins Skeel, and Betty Johnecheck will portray U.S. Mail Service from Pony Express days to the present; and Bill Price will work his sanitation equipment.

There will be music to march to, music to hum to, and musicians to laugh at. There will be the tallest Uncle Sam in America, Smokey the Bear, and the Biggest Wheel in Horton Bay, but they may all be outdone by some real live llamas from Maplewood Farm, which Horton Bay has adopted as its own.

All the other "regulars" will be there, too–the bag ladies, the Hell's Angeles traffic cop, and Sheriff George T. Lasater and some of his men to direct traffic and keep the crowds safely off the road.

The warning is: Come early. The highway through Horton Bay will be closed just before 1 p.m., with traffic detoured via Church Road.

White cane sale raises funds

by PEG OHLE

Members of the Charlevoix Lions Clubs will be out in force Friday and Saturday, July 7 and 8, passing out small White Canes to all who make a donation to the White Cane cause.

Services for sight-impaired persons, as illustrated by the White Cane, is a major activity of Lions Clubs throughout the world, and has been for 72 years, but the Clubs' humanitarian efforts now cover a much wider area, according to local Lion Jerry deLaSilvern.

"Now we try to help everyone who needs help," deLaSilvern told the Courier. There are two Lions Clubs in Charlevoix, one of which meets at noontime, and the other which meets in the evening. To illustrate the breadth of local Lions' contributions and so people may know where their money goes, he furnished a copy of the 1888-1989 budget for the daytime club:

Coleman Scholarship, $200; Special Riders, $200; Sunshine Club, $200; Mt. McSauba, $240; Eagle Village, $250; Leader Dog for the Blind, $500; Michigan Eye Bank, $250; Dental program at the Elementary School, $160 and $108; Lions Quest Program, $500; Community Pantry, $500; Charlevoix Little League, $700; Boys and Girls State, $400; and Welcome for the Blind House, $250, for a total of $4,458, "All of which stays in town", deLaSilvern pointed out.

The Charlevoix Lions Clubs are part of the international organization which numbers 1,355 members in 39,153 clubs.

An international project of the Lions Clubs is a program called 'Quest, which is an anti-drug abuse program, operating in 12,000 schools in 11 countries in which more than a million and a half school children are enrolled. The curriculum is offered in English, French, Spanish, Swedish, and Icelandic deLaSilvern has lived in Charlevoix only two years, but he and his Leader Dog, Mic, are a well-known pair around town. A former educator, deLaSilvern became visually impaired several years ago and has devoted much of his time and effort to Lions Club fundraising and other works.

He cautioned against using the word "handicapped" in connection with those who have problems seeing. "When one loses his ability to think and cannot communicate, he is handicapped," deLaSilvern explained. "Otherwise, he just has limitations."

deLaSilvern and Mic have been together for almost six years and he is exuberant when he talks about what the dog means to him. "I can go anywhere with him and not have to worry," he says. "As the old hymn goes, 'He Leadeth Me', and I have no fears."

Mayor Gary Probert (right) shakes hands with Mic, a leader dog belonging to Jerry deLaSilvern. Local Lions Club members will be conducting their annual white cane fundraising drive next week.

Consumers offers incentive rates

Consumers Power Company has received approval for two new electric incentive rates which encourage economic development by granting new and existing businesses lower electricity costs, based on the addition of new capacity or new jobs created. Approval for the rates was granted by the Michigan Public Service Commission.

The first new rate, the Base Jobs Economic Development Rate, offers for the first time in Michigan, lower electricity costs to new and existing businesses based on the number of jobs they create. Under the rate, qualifying businesses may take advantage of electricity costs approximately 8 percent below Consumers Power's standard industrial rate.

This rate introduces in the State of Michigan the concept of providing new and existing businesses an electric discount incentive based on the number of new jobs created. Similar rates have been offered by electric utilities in Ohio and Pennsylvania to encourage business investment.

The Base Jobs Rate is designed for small industrial firms which create a minimum of 25 jobs within a 12-month period. Examples of businesses which could benefit by the rate include tool and die shops, small manufacturing processes, assembly operations and automobile parts firms. Qualifying businesses receive a monthly credit of $7.50 per new job created, up to a maximum of 100 jobs. Jobs qualifying for the credit include any new full-time labor, technical, support or managerial position.

Also approved today was the Large Industrial Economic Development Service Rate, open to all industrial customers with a new electric load of 5,000 kilowatts or more, not served prior to January 1, 1989. The rate offers a fixed discount of approximately 19 percent from Consumers Power's standard Primary Service Rate.

Both rates are available through 1991. Customers qualifying for these rates may receive the discount for three years.

Blue Cross looking to change rates

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM) has announced that it is cutting $10 million from its request for new rates for 175,000 senior citizen subscribers with non-group Medicare Supplemental coverage.

The company said it filed an amended request this week asking an 11.7 percent average increase in rates instead of the 18.9 percent requested earlier this month.

The change means rates for high option subscribers would go up 12.3 percent, but rates for low option subscribers would be reduced 3.2 percent.

Seniors currently pay $47.47 per month for high option coverage without copays or deductibles, and $22.22 per month for low option coverage with deductibles. More than 91 percent of the seniors currently purchase the high option coverage, in part because of its relatively low price and broad coverage.

The approximate change in monthly rates per contract, if granted by the Insurance Bureau, would range from a $6.50 increase for the high option to a 75 cent reduction for the low option. The total amount of the amended request is slightly more than $15 million.

Senior Vice President and Chief Financial Officer Robert H. Naftaly said $10 million was cut from the request because of new actuarial information indicating that changes in Medicare coverage next January will reduce the increase in BCBSM's 12-month payout for non-group senior health care significantly below the levels initially projected.

"We've held several discussions with the state Insurance Bureau about the new information resulting in our decision to amend our rate request," Naftaly said.

"We still deeply regret that rising costs compel us to ask the state Insurance Bureau for any rate increase for seniors, but state law requires us to charge rates sufficient to meet the costs of each subscriber category," Naftaly explained.

Summer is here and Charlevoix's beaches have become active. Lifeguards went on duty last Friday and have had plenty of people to monitor.

Bill Burns earns the rank of Eagle Scout

Bill Burns recently became the eighth Charlevoix Boy Scout in the past 30 years to reach the rank of Eagle Scout.

Burns, 18, began early in scouting and stuck with it. He has risen through six ranks of Boy Scouts and prior to that was also a Cub Scout.

"At first I didn't plan to be an Eagle Scout, but I got about halfway through and decided to give it a run," Burns explained.

Not only did Burns begin scouting early in his life. One might say that he was a scout even before he was born. His uncle Robert L. Burns was an Eagle Scout. Bill's father, David, was also a Boy Scout.

Burns' great uncle, Pete Burns, was an instrumental part of the Charlevoix scouting program for many years. Recently-retired Charlevoix scoutmaster Louis Edwards said that is one reason he was glad to see Bill Burns make Eagle Scout.

"It's something special for Bill to earn this," Edwards said. "I think his uncle would have been very proud of him."

In order to become an Eagle Scout, Burns had to earn 21 merit badges. Scouting has traditionally emphasized good citizenship and outdoor skills. These things are reflected in the merit badges Burns earned.

His badges were for the following skills: camping, swimming, safety, basketry, canoeing, painting, cooking, rowing, fishing, first aid, astronomy, personal management, emergency preparedness, environmental science, communication, woodcarving, wilderness survival, atomic energy, lifesaving, and citizenship in the community, nation and world.

Some of the badges were required while others were electives.

In order to become an Eagle Scout, Burns also had to do a volunteer service project for either the church, school or community. For his project, Burns worked at the Ransom Nature Preserve last fall constructing a fence, building benches and moving a section of trail.

Scouting also emphasizes leadership. Rather than undertaking the service project alone, Burns had to have people help him and coordinate their efforts. Other scouts from the Charlevoix troop assisted Burns with the project.

Holding office in the scout troop is another requirement for an Eagle Scout. For the past two years, Burns has been junior assistant scoutmaster. Prior to that he held other offices, including senior patrol leader. He has also been elected to the Order of the Arrow.

After completing all of the preliminary Eagle Scout requirements, Burns went before both local and district scouting boards of review. Members of the board asked Burns not only about his scouting activities, but also about other activities he has been involved in.

Edwards explains that the boards like to have scouts involved in church and school activities along with scouting. In Burns' case, he has been active in his church youth group and participated in three school sports this past year. This spring, he performed exceptionally well for the high school track team.

"They don't want to hang this badge on any kid who comes along," Edwards said of the boards. "Once they're an Eagle Scout, it stays with them the rest of their life. They should be the kind of person who is a credit to the organization."

With respect to that, Edwards, who has worked with more than 500 Charlevoix scouts over the years, said, "Bill's been one of the nicest kids to work with."

Edwards described Burns as kind of a quiet person, but someone who always seemed to enjoy scouting as evidenced by the fact that in more than six years, he has only missed two troop campouts while attending more than 30.

Of the campouts, Burns said, "The best part, I think, was the whitewater canoeing trips in Canada. The worst was the rainy campouts."

Having a local scout reach the level of Eagle also reflects upon the Charlevoix Community. Burns attended summer scouting camps each year. He was able to do so because he had employers who were willing to allow him time off.

Burns received his Eagle Scout badge June 12 in a ceremony at Greensky Hill. Scouting also emphasized the importance of a strong family. As part of the ceremony, Burns' mother Marcy pinned the Eagle ribbon upon her son. His father presented him with the certificate of Eagle rank.

When asked how he felt about reaching the rank of Eagle, Burns replied, "I was really happy...and relieved too because it was a lot of hard work."

Vanity plate regulations change

The Department of State is making changes to its personalized license plate program that will culminate later this year when vehicle owners will be able to request a maximum of seven letters and-or numbers on personalized license plates.

The changes were authorized by Public Act 419 of 1988 which took effect April 1.

While personalized plates are still limited to six letters and-or numbers at this time, the law eliminates the restriction that personalized plates carry a minimum of two letters and-or numbers.

Persons wanting to apply for the personalized plate may obtain an application form at any Secretary of State branch office or by contacting the Special Registration Unit in Lansing. After an application has been submitted and approved, the Department of State will bill the requestor for the appropriate payment, which varies under the new system.

Under the new law personalized plate and amateur radio operator (ARO) license plates have staggered registrations similar to other passenger vehicle registrations. Personalized and ARO registrations for all individually-owned vehicles, except motorcycles, will expire on the owner's birthday and, therefore, will require that month tabs be displayed on these plates. Previously all personalized plates expired and were replaced each March 31, and the month tabs were not used.

Personalized registrations for motorcycles will continue to expire on March 31.

Personalized registrations for company-owned passenger vehicles will expire April 1, while company-owned pickup and van registrations will expire each February 28.

The special registration fee for these plates will be based on the number of months the plate will be valid as opposed to a flat $25 annual fee. The special registration fee will be $3 for the first month and $2 for each month thereafter, in addition to the vehicle registration feel.

Once a request for a personalized plate has been approved by the Department of State, a bill for the payment will be forwarded to the applicant.

The Department of State issues between 15,000 and 17,000 personalized plates annually.

McCune presents plays

Central Michigan University Theatre presents a third summer season of plays in the Ross Stoakes Theatre at Petoskey's McCune Arts Center.

The first play July 5-8 is a classic British thriller by Leslie Sands. "Something to Hide" features "clever twists and turns" that will keep audiences guessing, said Director William Haushalter.

The play centers around a husband and wife at their country house outside of London. The husband is a writer of novels. His wife, a publisher, hits a woman with her car – a woman who is having an affair with the novelist. The play, which includes an inquisitive Scotland Yard inspector, revolves around that accident.

"Just when you think you've got the mystery figured out, you're surprised," says Haushalter, who has directed annual productions at CMU for 15 years.

The second play of the summer is Bob Randall's "6 RMS RIV VU" (6 Rooms River View) July 12-15. The play is a romantic comedy about the relationship that develops between two happily married strangers who are accidentally locked in a vacant apartment. As the relationship develops, the characters humorously examine their feelings about love and fantasy. Steven Berglund, who has acted professionally in Chicago and Louisville and is an assistant professor of theater at CMU, will direct.

Jack Helfner's "Vanities" closes the CMU series July 19-22. "Vanities" is a satiric look at the lives of three young women from their senior year in high school to their 10-year high school reunion. Director Lin Holder is completing her 18th year of directing and teaching.

A red maple tree was recently planted at the Charlevoix Area Hospital in memory of Cody Johnathen Louiselle. Cody was born Sept. 20, 1987 and died Sept. 16, 1988. He spent much of his life in the hospital and endeared himself to hospital staff members. Many community residents contributed to funds for his care at other specialty hospitals. Witnessing the tree planting were: (from left) hospital administrator Richard L. Krueger and Cody's parents and brother Richard, Susan and Kyle Louiselle.

Sand dune legislation concerns Beaver Island

Compromises in House and Senate bills on sand dunes mean the legislation will have "minimal" effect on Beaver Island, where extensive second home construction is taking place or planned on the dune shoreline.

Only a few parcels in Emmet and Charlevoix counties are affected by the legislation.

"Critical dunes," dunes that have been declared important for either scientific or scenic reasons, would be protected under the two bills proposed lawmakers. The bills differed in the level of government that would be responsible for protecting dunes.

The House bill, introduced by H. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, would have placed more state control over sand dune areas. The senate bill, introduced by Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City, would have allowed for local control.

A compromised version of the House and Senate bills passed Wednesday.

"It does take care of the problems that Beaver Island people had with it," said Rep. Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, who represents Charlevoix County, of the legislation.

Under the bill, local governments create the zoning, as long as their regulations meet federal guidelines, Ostling said.

Vivian Visscher, an island resident and a Charlevoix County plannning commission member, epxressed concern at a recent commission meeting that the House legislation would allow too much state regulation of dunes.

State control, primarily over building on the dunes, would have had a negative impact on the island's year round economy, according to Ray Stanhope, publisher of the Beaver Beacon, the island's monthly newsletter. More than half of the nonseasonal jobs on the island are in the construction and real estate businesses, he said.

The day before the bill passed, Stanhope sounded optimistic about the compromise. "If anything is passed this session, it will be something we can live with," he said.

Building on the dunes would have been forbidden by tighter state control, and many new island homes would have been built "in a hole," with a view of a rising sand dune instead of the water, according to Stanhope.

"We have tried to be careful, the islanders have, in the way we develop," he said. "We have tried to be very careful in maintaining the northern woods atmosphere."

On the island, houses are built above the tree line on the dunes, he said. He thinks the legislation was introduced to prevent heavy development of dunes on the mainland.

Building restrictions on the dunes would affect undeveloped dune areas that have not been built on — homes already built would be grandfathered in —and are not publicly owned, according to Charlevoix county planner Larry Sullivan.

The island has about 40 miles of shoreline, according to Sullivan, and 7.6 miles are publicly owned. Smaller islands around Beaver have additional public land, he said.

Stanhope said the island and its smaller counterparts have 77 square miles of land that would fall under the legislation. Half of that area is publicly owned, he said.

In addition to Beaver Island, Norwood and Charlevoix townships have areas that would be be affected by the legislation, according to Sullivan. Most of those areas, however, are already developed or are publicly owned.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

To really understand the thoughts you are about to read, I must confess to being the original, great American indoorsman. My couch almost seems to rise up and greet me at the end of a busy day. There was an unashamed prayer of thanksgiving offered up when cable television ventured down our country road. When I'm not working, I love to be at home!

For the last four summers, this lover of all things comfortable has had to learn to adopt to a new situation that his growing family has insisted upon, camping. We travel to Indiana each June for a church convention. I have taken to combining business with "pleasure" by setting up a camper in a state park and coping with mosquitos the size of 727 jetliners. Cooking over an open fire has actually begun to grow on me. Though we don't really need air conditioners all that often around here, the further south of U.S. 10 you get the more I wonder if John Haggard would let me open a branch office for him.

Any way, the reason for all this scene setting is to tell you about a part of God's creation that fascinated me during this year's Hamilton family expedition to Hoosierland. A raccoon became a nightly visitor to our campsite. I always thought wild animals were relatively scared of people. This one was so brave and bold that if we had let it, it would have taken the food right from our picnic table while we were eating it. I marveled at just how trusting he was.

The night he raided a banana from us brought a Bible verse to mind. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths." If God could place within that raccoon the instincts to search and forage for food without fear and that old coon not really "knowing" about the world around him, imagine how much more God can teach and guide you and I! After all, we human beings are supposed to be more than aware of our world.

When I think about that coon or the deer that roam around here, it amazes me to consider what they have to do just to survive. God has made it possible for us to do more than just survive. Under His guidance, we can thrive! The key is where we place our trust. Trusting God gives us the assurance, the confidence we need to face every day without fear.

Ruby B. Brown

Ruby B. Brown, 85, of Petoskey, died June 21, 1989, at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Funeral services were held Saturday, June 24, at Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey. The Rev. Charles Fullmer of the United Methodist Church officiated and interment was in Greenwood Cemetery, Petoskey.

The former Ruby B. Hull was born Feb. 22, 1904, in Charlevoix the daughter of Fred and Anna (Wells) Hull. She attended Charlevoix schools and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1922. She then attended Charlevoix County Normal and received a teaching certificate.

She taught school for one year in Charlevoix County and on June 10, 1925, she married George Brown in Charlevoix County. The couple have resided in Petoskey ever since.

Mrs. Brown was a member of the United Methodist Church in Petoskey; a former member of both the Emmet Rebekah Lodge and the Resort Extension Group.

Survivors include; her husband; two daughters, Betty Hahn of Cave City, Ky., and Barbara Fannin of Petoskey; one son, Ronald Brown of Plymouth; seven grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Charlotte Willis of Charlevoix.

Church preparing for bazaar

Large and small stuffed dinosaurs, doll beds and hand-painted baskets are several of the wares being readied by women of First Congregational Church, Charlevoix, for a summer bazaar Wednesday, July 26, from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. on the church grounds.

Arla Staublin is in charge of a salad luncheon offered from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall with an express line for those on a limited lunch hour. Fran Pletz is assistant.

Attic Treasures, a bake sale and gourmet items also will be featured.

Of special interest are four-poster doll beds made from old wooden spools complete with canopies and crocheted bedspreads. Two quilts, one in "Courthouse Steps" pattern and the other the "Rail Fence" pattern, and several baby quilts will be sold at the bazaar.

Sponsored annually by the Women's Fellowship, the bazaar and luncheon provide funds for various church missions of the group, including the local food pantry as well as national and international efforts.

The Congregational Church is located on the corner of State Street and Park Avenue in Charlevoix.

AAA predicts busy weekend

With a new appreciation of American's Independence Day sparked by recent events abroad, millions of Michigan residents and visitors will celebrate the nation's 213th anniversary by exploring the state, AAA Michigan reports.

"All our travel advisers are busier than ever," said AAA Michigan Touring Manager Brian Potter. "We expect to continue operating in high gear until the start of the holiday."

The 102-hour star-spangled observance of parades, fireworks and festivals kicks off at 6 p.m. Friday, June 30, and extends to midnight Tuesday, July 4, for many people.

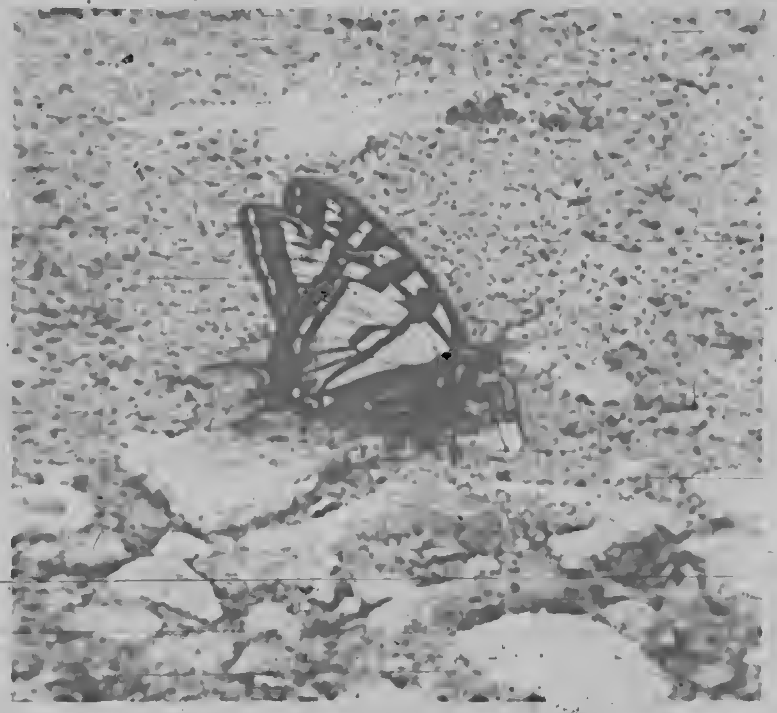
But others must work Monday – which may limit the number of miles logged by motorists. Last year Michigan drivers traveled 910 million miles during the 78-hour Fourth of July weekend.

Great strides are expected in Michigan tourism this summer. The U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C. forecasts a 7 percent growth across the Great Lakes region. The Michigan Travel Bureau expects a 6 percent increase over 1988's year-end total of $15.8 billion.

Another indicator is the 828,000 Mackinac Bridge crossings so far this year, up 5.7 percent from the same time in 1988, with an additional 4 percent anticipated over the holiday.

State park campground operators expect brisk holiday business. Most have set aside half the sites for reservations while leaving the rest open on a first come-first serve basis. Many lower peninsula state park operators report holiday reservations are booked from Friday, June 30 to Tuesday, July 4. But, since the holiday falls on a Tuesday this year, some parks anticipate openings on Monday the 3rd, while others except to be filled right through the following weekend.

This snap-crackle-and pop weekend will burst with celebrations from Pontiac to Petoskey.



Like many people, this butterfly found some free time last week and took to the beach to get a grip on life. The butterfly was clinging to the Lake Michigan beach near North Point.

Norwood Church hours

Morning worship at Norwood United Methodist Church begins at 9 a.m. on Sundays. Family nights are held on every fourth Wednesday with a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. followed by a program and fellowship of members and friends. Everyone welcome.

Jordan Valley summer park shows begin soon

When enough grant money for a summer performing arts series didn't come through for Jordan River Arts Council, local angels did! Thanks to fourteen East Jordan couples who supplemented partial funding from Michigan Council for the Arts Touring Arts Agency and Michigan Council for the Humanities, the free shows in the parks will go on as planned.

Four events featuring northern Michigan performers will take place at Memorial Park in East Jordan, one at Old City Park in Boyne City and one at Palmer Park in Mancelona. All shows start at 7 p.m., and audiences should bring their own lawn chairs or blankets.

Poet-performer Terry Wooten will lead off the series with "Poetry and Whimsey," a fun-filled adaptation of the Saturday night Stone Circle poetry recitations he hosts at his farm near Kewadin. Sharing an imagination sparked by nature, trains, ghost towns and folklore, Wooten has taken his oral program to hundreds of schools, libraries and festivals throughout the state.

He will appear Thursday, July 6, at Old City Park in Boyne City and Friday, July 7, at Memorial Park in East Jordan.

Poet to perform

People who think they don't like poetry change their minds when they hear Terry Wooten recite. Wooten, who believes that poems are written to be heard, not read silently from a book, has an oral repertoire that brings poetry alive for listeners of all ages.

"Poetry and Whimsey" will be the theme of the program he's offering for Jordan River Arts Council at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 6, at Old City Park in Boyne City and Friday, July 7, at East Jordan Memorial Park.

Wooten is good enough at what he does to earn his living as a poet, taking selections of Michigan folklore, poems of the Old West and Indian and Chinese translations to schools throughout the state.

His recitations are sprinkled with his own poetic creations, along with works of poets such as Ezra Pound, Robert Frost, Walt Whitman and the late Max Ellison, Michigan's own traveling folk poet, with whom Wooten apprenticed for five years.

His repertoire ranges from Jim Harrison's "I Owe the Dentist $900," Ogden Nash's "Custard the Dragon" and Woody Guthrie's "Riot on the Picket Line" to Chaucer's "The Prologue," Emily Dickinson's "A Bird" and Edna St. Vincent Millay's "The Buck in the Snow."

Wooten built and hosts the Stone Circle, on his farm outside Kewadin north of Elk Rapids, holding audience participation recitations starting at sunset every summer Saturday. His books of poems include "Got in an Argument Over Harmony," "The 45th parallel," "Okeh" and "Words Wild With Bloom."

Terry Wooten

His Boyne City performance is funded by the Michigan Council for the Humanities, and his East Jordan performance by the Michigan Council for the Arts Touring Arts Agency.

Where have salmon tags gone

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) fisheries biologists remind anglers fishing the Great Lakes, its tributaries and Lake St. Clair to return tags clipped to Atlantic salmon by the DNR as part of a study involving the fish's migration and growth patterns on these waters.

Since 1987, more than 51,000 tagged Atlantic salmon yearlings have been introduced into the St. Mary's River at Sault Ste. Marie from the Lake Superior State University (LSSU) Aquatics Lab at the Edison Sault Electric Company. Only 240 of the tags have been returned to the DNR.

"This popular fighting sport fish has already produced a significant fishery in the St. Mary's River, with 60 percent of the returned tags coming from this area," said DNR Fisheries Biologist Steve Scott. "From date collected, it appears that the Atlantics could also provide a potential sport fishery in other areas of Michigan, with 39 percent of the returned tags coming from Lake Huron and the remainder from lakes Michigan, Superior and St. Clair."

Fish growth has been excellent, added Scott, with catches averaging 24.3 inches this year of those 19,000 pink-tagged Atlantics released in 1987 and 21-inches of the 12,800 yellow-tagged fish released in 1988. Another 20,000 green-tagged Atlantic salmon were released this spring.

Senior citizens raise funds

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center has been turned down by the state Offices of Services to the Aging in its quest for funds with which to help renovate the old Charlevoix Township Hall at Norwood and Carpenter Roads. The hall was turned over to the Senior Center last fall by the Township, and it was hoped that renovations would be completed by now.

The state agency cited lack of funds for turning down the request at the present time, but the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging will submit another application this fall.

"Although disappointed, the Charlevoix Seniors have not given up," stated Sherry Black, Center Coordinator. "We intend to take what money we have already and go as far as we can with building renovations. Lavatories, heat, and a small kitchen are needed to get us into the building. We will be crowded, but we will be in our own quarters, and that is important to us."

The Senior Citizens Center has started a $100 Club," A plaque has been made which bears the names of all those who have donated $100 or more to the building fund. At present, 24 names appear on the plaque. Numerous memorial contributions have also been made, and a plaque is also established for these names. Both plaques will hang in the new building.

The Senior Citizens lunch program and activities are now held in the V.F.W. Hall on Highway 31 North. Lunch is served Mondays through Fridays at 12:30, with a suggested donation of $1.25 being asked. The Seniors also meet for band and chorus on Monday at 11. Special activities on Wednesdays include crafts and quilting. Cards are played after lunch on Thursday.

Everyone 50 years old or older is welcome to take part in these activities. For further information, contact Sherry Black at the Center, phone 547-5361, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

BUSINESS

New Ironton gift shop opened

by PEG OHLE

It would be easy to pass right by this shop in the old barn on Highway M-66 in Ironton, but there is a treat awaiting those who stop.

"The Wooden Duck" is a wildlife art shop that derives its name from the many ornamental handcarved wildfowl pieces and decoys produced by shop co-owner Don Schmidt and others.

Unlike many gift shops, The Wooden Duck has a theme and stays with it. Everything in the shop is either a handmade wildlife item or is hand-decorated with a wildlife theme.

There are creative bird-feeders. One is a two-story "bed and breakfast" feeder with "bedrooms" on the top floor and "breakfast" on the lower floor. There is another "barn and silo" feeder with the barn serving as "bedrooms" and the silo as "breakfast".

There are handmade tote bags and towels artistically decorated with wildlife scenes. There are wreaths of vines and birds and bees, all tied together with colorful ribbons. There are dried flower arrangements and natural looking vegetables made of paper. There are pillows with needlepoint tops of flower gardens and birds.

There are baskets to hang, baskets to carry, and baskets to set on a table, all decorated with wildlife items. There is limited edition wildlife art and photography, including a handsome collection of notepapers.

Don Schmidt has carved water fowl as a hobby for many years and has won several prizes in exhibitions. Some of the prize-winners are for sale in the shop. It was the woodcarving hobby and the "love of Charlevoix" that was responsible for Schmidt and his wife Peggy buying the tumble-down barn that now has become an attractive shop and work area.

Schmidt, who is assistant manager of residence halls at Michigan State University, is looking forward to retirement so he can spend more time carving and enjoying the Charlevoix area. Peggy retired last year from her teaching position in Okemos.

The Wooden Duck is open spring through fall, Tuesday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Phone 547-5633.

Inside and out, The Wooden Duck in Ironton is an unusual gift shop.

Water tower vote questioned

While the city charter makes no provisions for taking an advisory vote on the old tower, the council may be able to achieve the same purpose through a millage election.

Councilmen discussed the matter at this past Monday evening's work session.

The council is debating whether the old tower should be torn down or painted and left standing. Earlier this year, the council considered placing the matter on the ballot and allowing voters to decide.

City attorney Jim Young researched the matter and recently informed the council that there are not statutes which authorize the council to seek an advisory vote.

At Monday evening's meeting, councilmen spoke of putting a monetary issue on the ballot for the water tower. That would in effect still allow people to vote on whether or not the tower should be saved.

Some citizens have spoken in favor of repainting the water tower and leaving it stand; however that would cost several thousand more dollars than tearing it down.

Compensation increase recommended for clerk

City councilmen discussed compensation for elected city officials at Monday evening's council work session.

Compensation for elected city officials is recommended by a compensation commission. If the council takes no action on the recommendations, the reeommendations go into effect.

The compensation commission isn't recommending any changes in compensation for the mayor and council. They are recommending changes in compensation for the city clerk.

Currently, the mayor is paid $2,640 per year plus $50 per month for a car allowance and $35 for each regular or special meeting. Council members are paid $1,320 per year, plus $35 for each regular or special meeting. For each consecutive year a mayor or council member serves, $120 is added to annual compensation. The mayor and council are not paid for work sessions.

The city clerk is a part time position (20 hours per week). The clerk is paid $7,000 per year.

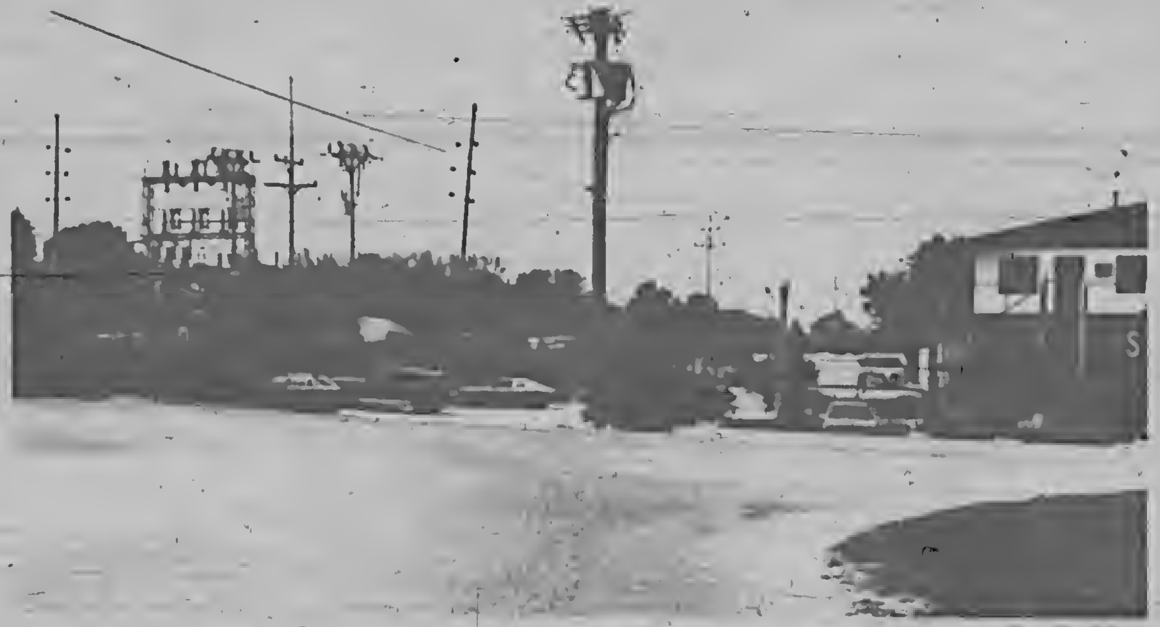
Changes recommended by the compensation commission were that:

The clerk be allowed to miss two council meetings per year without having the deputy clerk's wages for covering the meeting deducted from the $7,000.

The clerk also receive an additional $120 for each consecutive year of service;

The clerk receive $35 for each special council meeting in excess of four meetings per month.

Councilmen expressed no problems with the recommendations. Although the council could not vote at the work session, the general consensus was to let the recommendation stand and go into effect Jan. 1 of 1990.



As decided by the city council, the northern end of Ferry Avenue will be relocated to line up as nearly as possible with the southern end of the avenue. The relocation will affect an area currently used for parking by patrons of Nanny's Olde Place restaurant.

Wildlife chief appointed

Secretary of the Interior Manuel Lujan has announced that President Bush intends to nominate John F. Turner to be the Director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Turner, when confirmed by the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, will have the responsibility of managing the nation's federal fish and wildlife conservation programs.

In 1970, Turner received his Masters degree in Wildlife Ecology from the University of Michigan.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is responsible for managing the National Wildlife Refuge System which includes some 90 million acres of land in more than 450 national wildlife refuges.

Avenue change brought up again

At Monday evening's work session, city councilmen chose not to reconsider an earlier decision on the proposed rrouting of Ferry Avenue.

The earlier decision was to reroute Ferry Avenue along the old railroad grade as originally planned. That route includes an area currently used for parking by patrons Nanny's Olde Place restaurant.

The alternative would have been to place Ferry Avenue farther up the hill when it is rerouted. However, keeping the new road location lower on the hill allows Ferry Avenue to line up better with the section of Ferry Avenue south of Stover Road.

At Monday evening's work session, councilman Bill Haggard brought up the possibility of reconsidering the action, but other councilmen preferred to let the decision stand.

Provisions placed in Coast Guard budget

A key House committee has approved a $3.5 billion Coast Guard budget with important Great Lakes implications, according to Congressman Bob Davis, the vice chairman of the committee.

The action, by the full Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, paves the way for consideration by the full House of Representatives.

Davis added $20 million in funding to rehabilitate the Icebreaker Mackinaw, stationed in Cheboygan. This action will extend the ship's life another 10 to 20 years.

Davis also added a provision to help prevent harmful creatures from entering the Great Lakes. The bill directs the Coast Guard to come up with a way to halt the importation of exotic fish species, such as the sea lamprey, into Great Lakes waters. These so-called "critters" are carried in ballast water of ships entering the Great Lakes through the St. Lawrence Seaway and pose a great threat to the native perch species.

The basic provisions of the Coast Guard bill include:

–$2,275,200,000 for operations.

–$644,300,000 for acquisitions, construction and improvements.

–$24,000,000 for research and development, of which $5,000,000 must be spent on oil spill cleanup research.

--Coast Guard personnel strength of 39,299.

–requirement to hire locally for Coast Guard projects in states with high unemployment rates.

–requirement to identify U.S. ports through which large quantities of oil or hazardous cargoes are transported and the cost establishing vessel control systems at these ports.

Boaters advised to pilot their crafts safely

Michigan boat accidents killed 56 people in 1987, the latest figures available. Failure to post a lookout, reckless operation and hazardous waters were primary causes of boating accidents, investigators said.

"Michigan has about 750,000 registered boats – more than any state – but many owners have had no formal training in boat safety and operation," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety manager. "The number of watercraft increases every year, so it becomes critical that every owner learn and obey the nautical 'rules of the road'."

Alcohol also plays a role in up to half of all marine accidents, Cullen noted.

"Alertness, judgment, reaction time, vision and balance are all impaired by alcohol," he said. "Those caught operating a boat under the influence are subject to fines and jail terms."

With Michigan's summer boating season well underway, other tips to help "Bring 'Em Back Alive!" from lakes and rivers include:

Know your boat's capacity – don't overload.

Wear a personal flotation device approved by the Coast Guard. Michigan law requires life jackets for each person on board.

Fire extinguishers must be carried on motorboats with enclosed engines and are recommended for all watercraft.

Check the weather forecast before leaving home and monitor a marine radio frequency for sudden warnings while underway.

Carry a basic tool kit for minor engine repairs.

Prepare a float plan with your destination and expected time of return. Leave it with someone reliable and notify that person of any changes.

Follow safety procedures when fueling.

Keep a fire extinguisher, navigation lights, horn, distress flares and other safety equipment in good repair.

Boating safety course offered

The Charlevoix County 4-H and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is sponsoring free of charge, a Michigan Pleasure Boating Course, which is open to all ages.

If you are between the ages of 12 and 16 years old, you will receive a Boater's Safety Certificate upon successfully completing this course. This allows you to operate a boat with an engine of 6 horse power or more on the waters of any state without adult supervision.

Topics covered will include: Marine Laws, Required Safety Equipment, Rules of the Road, Nautical terms, Courtesy on the Water, Water Sports, and Safe Vessel Operations.

The dates this course will take place are July 19 and 21, 1989. It will be held from noon to 3 p.m. in the Boyne City Hall Auditorium. (Right across the hall from the CES office), 319B North Lake St., Boyne City. Registration is needed by July 1.

Both sessions must be attended to receive a certificate.

If you have any questions regarding this two-day session, please feel free to call either 547-9062 and ask for Mark Loding, or the Cooperative Extension Service at 582-6232.

Irish Cup sailboat race to benefit Mariners

Entries are being accepted for the Irish Cup Race, an annual sailing race on Lake Charlevoix to benefit the Lake Charlevoix Mariners.

This year's Irish Cup will take place July 15 and features four divisions: spinnaker; main and jib; J-boats; and a peak performance fun fleet.

The race is only part, granted the central part, of cup activities. Although the race doesn't start until Saturday, the event actually begins Friday evening with a skippers meeting and a cocktail party for sponsors and participants.

Races begin Saturday, July 15 at 11 a.m. Following the races, at 6 p.m., there will be a Lions Club chicken barbecue. Tickets for the barbecue are $6.75 in advance.

At 7 p.m. racing awards and trophies will be presented. Organizers of the event note that this year there will be a special "Z" award to the boat and crew which dresses in the most outrageous costumes.

Following the barbecue and awards, there will also be dancing until midnight with music provided by Sound Systems III.

All proceeds from Irish Cup events will go to the Lake Charlevoix Mariners, a non-profit organization which teaches sailing and seamanship in the Charlevoix area.

The entry fee for the race is $35 for boats entered by July 7 and $45 for boats entering from July 7 to July 13. No entries will be accepted after July 13.

To enter the race, contact Michelle Biddick, Irish Cup, 1300 Stover Road, Charlevoix MI 49720, (616) 547-9967.

The race is open to all monohull yachts at least 20 feet in overall length and which are seaworthy and meet Coast Guard equipment requirements.

The race will take place on Lake Charlevoix, with buoys marking the course.

Each entrant is encouraged to submit his boat's performance handicap (PHRF) rating with the entry form. If the boat doesn't have a PHRF rating, judges will ask information and assign one.

Races will be conducted according to rules of the United States Yacht Racing Union. All boats are required to either have numbers on their sails or carry a white board with their hull number in eight-inch black letters for identification.

County faces litigation over mass gathering ordinance

by PEG OHLE

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners were forewarned.

Early in January, 1988, Arthur C. Reibel, owner of Castle Farms in Marion Township, where music concerts are held every summer, told them, "If this (Mass Gathering) ordinance is signed by the Governor and you try to enforce it, I will have no alternative but to become involved, to litigate".

The ordinance had been signed by members of the County Board on November 11, 1987, and forwarded to Governor Blanchard for approval as required by law.

Reibel added that he was simply reiterating what he had said to the Board members in an earlier letter.

"Your proposed ordinance is unconstitutional because is excludes government and tax-exempt properties. Everyone should have to comply with a law...You need professional help," Reibel continued at that time.

The ordinance was duly signed by the Governor and returned to Charlevoix County on June 10, 1988. Because the ordinance provides for a 60-day waiting period before it is enforced, which would be near the end of the summer season, it was decided not to try to enforce the ordinance until a later date.

This Mass Gathering Ordinance is designed to "permit, license, regulate, and control, in the interest of public safety, health, and welfare, outdoor gatherings of persons in excess of 2,000 in number..."

It specifically exempts "an event which is conducted or sponsored by a governmental unit or agency on publicly owned land or property," or an event which is "conducted or sponsored by an entity qualifying for tax exempt status under (federal and Michigan income tax laws)," or "an event held entirely within the confines of a permanently enclosed or covered structure."

Under the ordinance, sponsors of an applicable mass gathering must obtain a license for the event and must abide by licensing restrictions, which include: security personnel, medical facilities, food service, water facilities, plumbing, liquid waste disposal, solid waste disposal, vector (rodents, insects, etc.) control, restroom facilities, supervision of facilities, responsibility for cleanup, general responsibility, access and traffic control, parking, illumination, insurance, bonding, fire protection, sound producing equipment, and communications.

Now, Reibel's warnings have become a reality. Members of the County Board have been advised that Charlevoix Productions, which runs the concerts at Castle Farms, has filed suit against them in United States District Court in Grand Rapids. Although Reibel is not directly involved in the suit, the basis of the suit is stated in much the same language he used in warning the County Board in

Annual home tour features five homes

The owners of five area residences will open their homes from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, July 12, for the annual Kappa Sigma Home Tour to benefit the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The tour, which has become an anticipated event, has grown in popularity over the years, according to Michele Dipert of the Home Tour Committee, and last year more than 1,000 people participated, bringing in $10,000 for the hospital's benefit.

Two of the homes are on Park Avenue in Charlevoix, two are in the Birch Terrace Subdivision on Highway M-66 south of Ironton, and one is on Nine Mile Point Road, off of Highway 31 North. They vary in architecture almost as much as do the general run of homes in the area.

How Mighty Casey started out

Only in tee ball do teams have multiple second basemen.

Kelly Dreyer finds that it's kind of hard to swing level when the tee is almost as tall as you are.

Michael Ricks keeps his catching eye sharp between batters by tossing his glove in the air.

Laurie Wilson serves as the Light Blue Sox version of Sparky Anderson.

Dedicated fans in the bleachers along the third base line salute a fine play.

Hal Evans waits for the catcher to tee up the ball so he can take his cuts.

OPINIONS

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Tee ball has it all

In big league baseball there are only nine fielders on the entire field. In Charlevoix's t-ball league there are almost that many fielders between first and second base.

T-ball is the first exposure to softball for most Charlevoix youngsters. Playing for such traditional teams as the Black Sox and Red Sox, or even for one of those expansion teams such as the Light Blue Sox, the players with small bodies and big aspirations put on a show which is softball at its finest.

After two and a-half inning of play, the Red Sox led the Light Blue Sox by a score of 15-10 with the Light Blue Sox coming to bat. This was not a pitching duel.

Nobody was pitching; well, poorly or otherwise. This was tee ball and the six to eight-year-old players hit the ball off of a tee in getting their first taste of the game of softball.

For the young players, many who aren't much taller than the tee they hit from, tee ball offers a chance to run around, have some fun and learn a few fundamentals of softball. For adults who watch the games, tee ball offers everything a sports fan could ask for.

If you like to see fielding, tee ball has fielding. In professional baseball, only nine fielders are allowed on the entire field. In tee ball, there are almost that many fielders clustered around second base.

And if run scoring is what draws you to the old ball field, tee ball is Paradise. Those kids score runs by the bushel.

Seldom are runs scored in dull fashion. Tee ball players don't simply cross home plate, they score with flair. About half of them slide in. It doesn't matter whether the catcher has the ball or if the ball's still far off in the field, some kids just automatically slide at home plate.

Other kids not only don't slide at home plate, they seem reluctant to touch it at all. These kids run in from third base and stand near home plate, but instead of touching it choose to look out to the field to see how the opponents are having any luck retrieving the ball.

Meanwhile the runner's coach and teammates are yelling, "Touch the plate. Touch the plate."

It is a scene laden with suspense. The catcher awaits the ball. The people of the bench and bleachers scream directions. The screaming only adds to the runner's confusion.

And the umpire hovers there like a hung jury. Is the runner safe or is he out? The verdict is not yet in. Either the runner's face will suddenly light up as he suddenly figures out what he's supposed to do, or the fielders will finally get the ball into home and he will be tagged out.

Over the past 20 years, tee ball has changed. One need only look at the list of teams to see this. There are the traditional teams: the Green, Red, Maroon, Gold and Blue Sox. And there are expansion teams: the Raspberry, Royal, Gray and Light Blue Sox. Sadly, sometime during all of those years, the old Black Sox team must have folded.

In the old days, a regular softball is used. These days a spongy version of a softball is used in tee ball. It's safer. With a fair degree of frequency, players tend to catch the ball with something other than their gloves. They also tend to throw the ball into home plate while the umpire is distracted with something else and is unsuspecting prey.

Along with thrown balls, thrown bats also add to the emotion and danger of the game. Sometimes the little hitters get excited when they hit the ball and instead of laying the bat down will cast it unto the wind. This is against the rules and the batter is called out.

In a game last week, one of the hitters got excited and threw his bat. When the umpire duly informed him that he was out, the little guy forlornly shuffled over, picked up the bat, carried it into the dugout and sat down on the bench and began to sob.

Should I have sat down on the bench beside the little boy and attempted to console him? And what would I have said?

"Don't feel bad."

"But I got out. I threw the bat. I'm stupid."

"You're not stupid. You're a good kid. Everybody makes outs sometimes. Every kid who ever played made some mistakes. I played softball for a lot of years and I made some mistakes."

"You made bad plays?"

"Why, I made some terrible plays. One time a guy hit a groundball to me and it rolled between my legs and went clear to the fence. Boy, did I feel dumb."

"You made a play that bad when you were a kid like me?"

"No, this was just a couple of years ago."

Maybe it's just as well I didn't try to console the kid. No matter, in a few minutes the little guy cheered up and was back out on the field; shuffling his feet in the dirt to make the dust fly and pouncing on groundballs like a chicken after a bug.

Eating onions for what they are

Vidalia onions have to be one of the most overrated new products on the market.

If you follow the ads, you'll know that Vidalia onions are the fair-haired children of the onion family.

They are supposed to be so sweet and mild that you can eat them like apples.

Gourmet chefs pay the high dollar to get their hands on a genuine Vidalia.

The hype has been very effective, because the Vidalia onion has become something of a status symbol.

If you don't eat Vidalias, you probably don't eat artichokes, either.

A couple of weeks ago I tasted my first Vidalia onion. Our hostess put it in a salad and was careful to point out it was a genuine Vidalia.

I could hardly wait.

But listen up. That Vidalia had absolutely no taste. None at all. I could tell I was eating something that looked like an onion, but it sure didn't taste like an onion.

And isn't that why folks eat onions, for the flavor?

This one didn't even taste like an apple.

I wonder how long it will take for folks to wise up and go back to Texas Yellows, those aromatic old favorites that bring tears to your eyes when you slice them.

Having its own onion has been a boon to Vidalia, Ga., a small town (pop. 10,000) in southeast Georgia about 75 miles west of Savannah.

Local farmers claim that something in the soil and climate of Vidalia gives their onions their peculiar flavor — or lack of it. They claim a Vidalia onion — seed or set — grown anywhere else will not have that peculiar flavor — or lack of it.

The Georgia Legislature has more or less given the town a patent on the Vidalia onion. To wear the Vidalia label, onions must be grown in a very narrow area around Vidalia.

Perhaps I should give the Vidalia onion another try, but my first exposure wasn't all that exciting.

The whole scenario sort of reminds me of the children's story "The Emperor's New Clothes." I think the gourmets of the world have been sold a bill of goods.

DID YOU attend the Antique Fair in East Park over the weekend?

I did, but I could have stayed home and seen the same stuff.

One table of antique tools looked exactly like my work bench in the basement, even down to the double handled spoke-shave.

The spoke-shave started out as a tool to shave spokes for wagon wheels. I have never made a wagon wheel, but I use the spoke-shave for all kinds of wood trimming jobs. I'd be hard-pressed to get along without it — but now they say it's an antique.

Or the hand-cranked meat grinder?

I saw one down in the park that is almost identical to the one we keep in the kitchen to make minced ham sandwiches. And potato pancakes.

Judy and I both were surprised to find ice boxes selling for $800.

If anyone told me back in the '40s that our old ice box was worth anything more than kindling I would have laughed myself silly.

When refrigerators came in, ice boxes were a drug on the market. You couldn't give one away.

Don't get me wrong. I like antiques and I like looking at them.

I guess that what upsets me is that they remind me how long I've been kicking around Planet Earth.

I'd qualify as an antique at anybody's flea market.

IT'S NO SECRET that Charlevoix had another barn-burner of a Fourth of July, even though no special events were planned for out-of-towners.

I took a stroll downtown Saturday night about 10:30 and many of the shops were still open and they were filled with shoppers.

If warm weather continues, we can look forward to another record-breaking summer.

The Lake Charlevoix temperature Saturday night, by the way, was 68 degrees — which is swimming water in my book.

Approximately 30 children are enrolled in the Charlevoix Public Library summer reading program. The program is not a contest, but is simply an organized effort to encourage children to read during the summer months.

Jordan Valley Arts Council leases library building

The key to the former Jordan Valley District Library building on East Jordan's Main Street changed hands Monday, June 26, as Jordan River Arts Council took a 3-year lease on the building.

Representing the arts council, John Richter presented Bob Herbon, president of the district library board, with a silver dollar, framed with a statement commemorating the occasion. The library board is leasing the building to the arts council for one dollar a year.

The 3-year lease is effective from June 1, 1989 to May 31, 1992, and the arts council will have the first option of renewal.

Richter said council members and volunteers will be working to get the building ready for occupancy. The council plans to offer traveling art exhibits in the building and to offer a wide variety of classes and workshops.

In May of 1988 when the library board offered a lease to an organization dedicated to the arts, Jordan River Arts Council was officially formed as an incorporated, tax-exempt organization. Bylaws requiring a 21-member board were adopted.

In spite of operating without a building, the council has offered several performing arts events in East Jordan, Mancelona and Bellaire, including a spring series and an upcoming series of free shows in parks.

Blanchard to visit

Governor James Blanchard will visit Charlevoix Thursday, July 6. Blanchard will fly in by helicopter, landing at Ferry Beach about noon. From there, a boat will bring him to East Park.

Blanchard is scheduled to arrive in East Park at 12:25. During a brief ceremony, Blanchard will offer a speech which will emphasize the importance of boating safety.

Charlevoix is one of 23 communities Blanchard will stop in during a four-day trip along the coastlines of Lakes Michigan and Huron. The trip is part of a state promotional campaign entitled, "Celebrate! The Great Lakes."

Historical Society says thanks

Dear Editor:

The Charlevoix Historical Society would like to thank the local band "Jasper and the Tag-Alongs" for their 2½ hour concert on the porch of The Harsha House Museum, 103 State Street, on June 22. Their music and presence greatly helped our summer open house season opener.

I thank you for time and patience.

Annual East Park craft show marks 21st year

Combine one of the most picturesque settings in the state with a gathering of some 200 of Michigan's top craftspersons, a festival atmosphere, and the result is Charlevoix's 21st Annual Craft show, this year Saturday, July 8, a bonanza of opportunity for collectors.

Every available space in Charlevoix's waterfront park, fronting on Round Lake yacht harbor, is filled by artisans displaying and frequently demonstrating crafts – wooden furniture, pottery, handmade stone jewelry, quilted purses, hardwood toys, original folk art, hand thrown stoneware, tole painting reminiscent of 18th century French work, decoys, dolls, stained glass, and of course, mountain dulcimers. Charlevoix's craft show virtually has something for everyone, with prices beginning under a dollar.

The timing and setting of Charlevoix's craft show is ideal. The summer resort and tourist seasons have just begin, the local restaurants are in full swing, the downstate boaters are sailing in and out of the picture-book harbor enroute to and from Lake Michigan cruises, summer has found its way north, and the town is ready to celebrate.

Exhibitors come from a range of backgrounds, some full-time craftspersons, others retirees who have returned to a favored hobby. Louis and Frank Blake became full-time crafters after careers that took them around the world. He was in oil related construction businesses and she taught and studied oil painting. Retiring to Elk Rapids, Frank Blake began hand carving decorative decoys including traditional loons and other waterfowl and now even fish and shore birds. Lois Blake, who learned tole painting from European masters, has extended the boundaries of the tradition work on tin to paint on "anything that stands still, but mostly wood," according to her husband.

"It's a very interesting craft show, observes long-time exhibiter Dawn Fletcher of Charlevoix, whose German paper cutting (scherenschnitte) is also sold in local shops. "There is a wide variety of crafts and a lot of interesting people from lots of different places."

"The quality at Charlevoix is very high," adds Virginia Delashmit, of Gaines, Michigan, who creates a range of quilted items and accessories and exhibits with her husband, Bob, who displays unique hand carved banks. As with most exhibitors, the Delashmits accept custom orders. And typical of most exhibitors the Delashmit's prices range upwards from $2.

And Charlevoix's park will be filled with music as dulcimer creators Jack and Shirley Folkertsman, of Alto, Michigan, demonstrate their craft. "The dulcimer is a very easy to play instrument," suggests Shirley, who will play and teach while Jack carves the traditional Appalachian mountain instrument.

Davis seeks tribal fishing changes

Congressman Bob Davis has met with Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan to lobby for adoption of restrictions on Indian fishing in Lake Superior.

The meeting was a follow-up to a formal request from the State of Michigan to the Department of Interior to regulate Indian fishing on the Great Lakes. The fishing is now unregulated.

"Without regulation of Indian fishing, our fish population in the Lake Superior will continue to suffer great damage, possibly to the point where the damage will be irreversible," Davis said. "Clearly regulations are in order here."

Davis said he has asked Lujan to take comments from interested sportsmen groups on the regulations. Previously, Lujan had said he would only take comments from state, federal and tribal officials.

Lujan was a colleague of Davis' in the House of Representatives until his selection as Department of Interior secretary this year.

Davis rep to visit

Betty Mankowski, district representative for Congressman Robert Davis, will be at the Charlevoix County Building from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., Tuesday, July 11. Anyone wishing to speak with Mankowski is invited to do so without an appointment. She will be available to discuss any problems people may be having with the federal or state government.

Beaver Island students honored

This year the Center for Talent Development of Northwestern University conducted its seventh annual search for junior high students who are academically talented. Jeff Cashman and Jeremy Barrett from Beaver Island Community School participated in the search.

These students qualified for the Northwestern program by scoring at the 95th percentile or higher on the verbal or mathematical portion of a standardized in-grade achievement test. They took the College Board's Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) in January, a test usually taken by high school juniors and seniors.

The purpose of the SAT is to provide more information about students' abilities. Local schools use this information to help provide special services and programs designed especially for such high caliber students.

The Center for Talent Development services eight states in the midwest: Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Minnesota. Over 25,000 students participate in the talent search on an annual basis.

CHURCH

Dorothy E. Sundberg

Dorothy E. Sundberg, 72, of Charlevoix, died June 27, 1989 at Little Traverse Division, Northern Michigan Hospitals.

A memorial service was held Sunday, July 2, at the Bethany Lutheran Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Robert Piller officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

The former Dorothy E. Mero was born Oct. 18, 1916, in Escanaba, the daughter of Joseph and Myrtle (Patterson) Mero.

She graduated from Escanaba High School in 1934 and attended Cloverland Community College in Escanaba. She had worked for the U.S. Forest Service in Escanaba doing secretarial and clerical work.

On May 1, 1936, she married Clifton F. (Kip) Sundberg in Chicago, Ill. They made their home between Chicago and the Upper Peninsula, moving to St. Ignace in 1944.

During World War II she worked for the draft board in St. Ignace.

In 1953 Mr. and Mrs. Sundberg moved to Charlevoix.

Mrs. Sundberg was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix and taught Sunday school there for many years. She was involved in numerous volunteer services in the community, including the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild and the Rainbow Shoppe. She was also involved with VIP for Visually Impaired Persons in Charlevoix held at the First Congregational Church through the Department of Social Service. Mrs. Sundberg was also an accomplished artist.

She is survived by her husband; two sons, Wayne C. of Fort Collins, Colo. and James b. of Seattle, Wash.; two daughters, Mrs. Sandra J. Kiefer of Hopkins, Mich. and Mrs. Janice B. Binkert of Regensdorf, Switzerland; 11 grandchildren; one great-grandchild; one brother, James Mero of Hampton, Va; one sister, Mrs. Catherine Cronan of St. Ignace.

The family suggests memorials to the Bethany Lutheran Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home where arrangements were made.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

On the recommendation of some friends, we rented a couple of videos last week. One had a great story line but an unexpectedly tragic ending. The other was a western and as much as I like a good western, I was never really able to catch up with the story line. Aside from my thumbs up for the first and thumbs wn from the second, there w. s one other item that I need to mention...the language. There were so many four letter words and other "questionable" phrases sprinkled in both pictures that it honestly affected the way I viewed both stories.

Now this is something I genuinely don't understand about life. Granted, there may be a few people in this world who seem to need to express themselves in less than appropriate language. But the vast majority of this world seems to operate just fine without using swear word one. So why? Why should they thrust it upon us as a 'normal" part of the course of life and set it before our kids as an example?

James 5:12 reads "Above all, my brothers, do not swear – not by heaven or by earth or by anything else. Let your 'Yes' be yes, and your 'No,' or you will be condemned."

I think it's time for a small revolution to take place when it comes to our language. We are the ones that can and should make the difference in the way the "real" world is portrayed. We are the ones, who if Jesus Christ really means as much to us as we say He does, who ought to share with some folks "that's my Lord and Savior you are talking about and I don't appreciate your using His name that way."

We are the ones who ought to remind people that God gave us the idea of damming things like streams and rivers to produce hydroelectric power and provide recreational opportunities not other unmentionable things that aren't worth discussing.

If more people would take offense or at least stand up and be counted when the gift of language is abused, instead of brushing it aside or tolerating it as inevitable, there should be some changes made.

That verse from James gives us a good bottom line. Let our yes be yes and our no, no. If we are a people of faith, then we need to be a people who will stand up and be counted for what is right regardless of what custom or tradition may seem to dictate.

Is there really any place for language that distracts from or dishonors the very One who made it possible for us to experience the life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness that we all enjoy?

Grandvue hosts meeting to cope with Alzheimers

Grandvue Medical Care Facility extends an invitation to the public to attend an open meeting on Alzheimer's Disease and support measures for families dealing with Alzheimer's patients.

O. Yvonne B. Jonker will be speaking on this topic at Grandvue on Wednesday, July 12, 1989, at 7 p.m. Ms. Jonker is the Administrator of the Alzheimer's Disease Association for Allegan-Ottawa Counties, and she has had personal experience in dealing with Alzheimer's Disease through care of a family member. She will have with her some video material, and offers some meaningful suggestions in dealing with guilt feelings, care, and placement of Alzheimers patients.

Jonker states: "The motto of the Alzheimer's Disease Association is 'Dissipate the Apathy: Circumvent the Fear', and the mission of the Association is to change the perception of the population regarding the needs of persons caring for an Alzheimer's Disease afflicted friend or family member." Learning more about the symptoms and problems involved with this disease are the best way to educate the public, according to Ms. Jonker.

If you have had experience with an Alzheimer's family member or friend, this meeting will be helpful to you.

Gift shop sells natural items

When Lee Schnackenburg was a young girl, her mother would tell her "Where there's a will, there's a way".

She reduced that phrase to "Willoway", which is the first part of her Willoway Natural shop at 907 South Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

Willoway is full of articles made of natural materials, particularly leather. There is a full line of Minnetonka Mocassins in sizes and colors for everyone, leather belts and purses beaded by Native Americans, natural fiber rugs, wall hangings, and "Mug Rugs" woven by Navajos of the southwest. ("Mug Rugs" are coasters!).

Gordon Neff's famous carved wooden seagulls and other wildfowl are displayed on a shelf along with stylistic wooden animals. Also in wood, there are tall torches to ward off insects during a summer party, and birdfeeders.

Admirers of nature artist Gwen Frostic will be glad to find a selection of her note paper, books, and tote bags, Jewelry lovers will find beads made of seeds, lapel pins made of leather, and earrings made of stones, all nature's products. And wildflowers are pressed in glass for decorative suncatchers.

The natural theme is also carried out in the line of infants and toddlers wear, including red flannels, all made from cotton fibers.

Lee Schnackenburg operated a children's wear shop in Charlevoix for six years but found that keeping a stock of sizes was a real chore and decided that a "nature" gift shop, even with some children's clothing, was a good idea.

Her Interest in Native American handcraft and lore comes naturally because she had a Cherokee grandmother. "Now I'm reading up on all things Indian and enjoying every minute of it," she says.

Ask Lee to show you the "Dream Catcher" and tell you its story.

DDA board considers kiosks

Kiosks and alleys off of Bridge Street were the central issues discussed at last Wednesday's meeting of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

Prior the meeting, the DDA board was recomending that kiosks be placed in the alley. The kiosks would contain public telephones and news stands.

However that plan has been scrapped following complaints from business people with stores near the alleys. The business people's concern was that the kiosks would encourage loitering in front of or near their establisments.

DDA member Hugh Mason said the DDA board still favors having kiosks somewhere in the downtown area, but will now find someplace else to put them.

One of the alleys in question is on the block between Mason and Clinton Streets while the other is on the block between Mason Street and Park Avenue.

In the past, vehicle traffic occasionally emptied out of the alleys, across the Bridge Street sidewalk and onto Bridge Street. In order to keep vehicles and pedestrians from colliding on the sidewalk, the alleys will be closed to pedestrian traffic.

Although the alleys will be closed to vehicles, they will not be closed to pedestrians. According to DDA plans, the alleys will continue to serve as a foot passageway between Bridge Street and the public parking lots behind the stores.

The Home Tour Committee suggests that participants wear comfortable low-heeled shoes that are easy to take off and put on since no shoes will be permitted inside the tour houses. Children under 10 will not be permitted on the tour.

The Charlevoix homes are both on Park Avenue, the first street south of the Pine River Bridge.

Paul and Shirley Mousseau's house at the corner of Park Avenue and Clinton Street is an Earl Young cottage designed to be used by "two." The Mousseaus have restored the interior and professionally decorated the house with items from Shirley's antique shop.

Donald Berlage, developer of the Park Place Condominiums, just west of Bridge Street, is opening his personal condominium for viewing. Called "the ultimate in Charlevoix living," the Victorian design of Park Place Condominiums blends into surrounding architecture. The Berlage unit provides views of both Lake Michigan and Round Lake.

Birch Terrace is just off of Highway M-66 one mile south of Ironton. To get there, turn left (east) on M-66 at the intersection of Highway 31 (Captain's Corners).

The home of Clinton and Mildred Davis on Birch Terrace is of contemporary architecture located on a beautifully landscaped lot sloping to the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Mrs. Davis is an avid gardener who takes pride in her floriculture landscaping.

Northern Michigan, A Special Place to Live.

However, northern Michigan's landscape is changing rapidly and we are in danger of losing many of the natural features that make this area so special.

Private landowners can make a difference by safeguarding their property's natural values through the use of a conservation easement.

Conservation Easements provide landowners with a legal guarantee that their property's conservation values will never be destroyed, potential tax breaks and the ability to maintain control over the land.

The fifth home on the Home Tour is located nine miles north of Charlevoix, off of Highway 31 at Nine Mile Point Drive. Tim and Tori Fisher's home is on the first drive, left side.

The Fishers worked jointly on this contemporary three-story home of an atrium design with balconies overlooking the entrance and formal dining area. The walls facing the lake are made almost entirely of glass to provide a panoramic view of Lake Michigan. A rolling green lawn, decking, rocks, and a flower garden add to the setting.

Summer basketball camp stresses enjoy game

Charlevoix basketball players are starting young. In the past several weeks, approximately 70 Charlevoix boys in the fourth through tenth grades have participated in basketball camps under the instruction of varsity coach Jim Kanine.

For the past several years, Charlevoix's varsity basketball program has been one of the strongest in the area. Kanine concedes that the camps will help maintain the strength of the high school program, but says that at the younger ages he's more interested in just getting the boys to enjoy the game.

"My basic premise for doing this is I felt I had to try to get the kids excited about playing basketball," he said.

Kanine held four different camps, divided according to age groups. The fourth and fifth, sixth, and seventh and eighth grade camps each lasted for one week at two hours each day. The ninth and tenth grade camp lasted two weeks.

The cost was $25 for the one-week camps and $35 for the two-week camps. Each player received a maroon and white reversible basketball jersey.

All of the camps stress fundamentals, but as the players get older more things are added.

Fourth and fifth graders learn basic things such as lay-ups, chest passes, keeping their head up while they dribble and basic shooting form.

At the sixth grade level they learn things such as the importance of, and the proper technique for, blocking out to get rebounds.

Seventh and eighth graders learn things such as the "triple threat position" which means catching the ball and squaring up to the basket in a position where they are able to either shoot, pass or drive to the basket. They also learn some one-on-one moves.

Freshmen and sophomores do things which are more team-oriented, such as blocking out, rebounding and triggering a fast break in a five on five situation.

Boys between the sixth and tenth grades recently completed a series of basketball camps with varsity coach Jim Kanine. Kanine said the emphasis of the camps, particularly at the younger levels, was just getting the boys excited about playing basketball.

In keeping with the premise of teaching the kids to enjoy the game, Kanine spends a lot more time shouting encouragement and telling kids what they're doing right rather than what they're doing wrong.

Last week as he worked with the seventh and eighth graders, he was having them use their left hand on layups from the left side.

"Don't worry if you miss the shot now," he shouted to them. "That's what this (practice) is for." He told the young players not to worry about missing a few left-handed lay-ups in practice; because they will learn and later that left hand will be there for them in a game.

As a college coach once said, the equation for shooting a basketball is C plus C equals B. In other words, concentration and confidence equals a basket.

When one of the junior high players went up for a shot and got it blocked back in his face, Kanine took the chance to make a similar point.

He told the young players not to get down on themselves when they get a shot blocked.

"Everybody gets a shot blocked," he said. He told them that instead of getting psyched out by a blocked shot and consequently playing timid, they should just figure life will come around and they'll make a good move and get their next shot in the basket.

Along with numerous drills, Kanine also tries to put some less structured things into the camp to make it more fun for the players. During the camp, pieces of white tape speckled the north wall of the high school gym where players had been marking their vertical jumping ability. There are also shooting contests and on the last day of camp there is a three on three tournament with the winners of the tournament receiving T-shirts with their names printed on them.

Yachting Notes

by A. Nony Mouse

An invitation to all to join the racing fraternity (and sorority, of course) for the next several weeks – right from the comfort of your favorite reading spot. The OLD, original, A. Nony has been tugged out of retirement and propelled into one of these newfangled sailing machines for the CYC Summer Series. About the time this paper gets into your hands, the old salt will have risen out of the rocking chair, set aside the cane and comforter and ventured forth into the world of competition, the thunder of the cannon, and (hopefully) the sweet smell of cordite announcing success rather than the splatter of water balloons dampening the spirit.

So, join me – through this column – for the next eight issues and I'll do my best to share it all, these Wednesday Nights at the Races. With luck, you'll be a part of both some downright depressing, disgusting and disturbing debacles tempered by frequent, frantic and fantastic first-to-finish, all in landlubber's language.

Started preparing already; talked the skipper into buying a new sail, which should be on board by the start of the second race, and had a complete physical from Commodore Stewart (Doctor, to non-sailors) who told me to quite two of my three favorite vices and prescribed some stuff to encourage hair growth – on the smooth surface that reflected sunlight into his eyes, in previous years of racing. I then planned an exercise program. I also then laid down until the plan went away.

'Til next week, that's...
...the End of the Mouse's Tale.

... gathering ordinance

January, 1988. The brief reads, in part:

"The ordinance is unconstitutional both in its face and as construed and applied to Plaintiff, in that it seeks to prevent the assembly and association of people for the purposes of hearing certain forms of speech. The ordinance at issue is defective because it vests discretion in officials to deny or revoke licenses for the exercise of First Amendment rights, without narrow, precise, and objective standards to govern such discretion; because it lacks due process procedures respecting denials, revocations, and appeals; because it unequally exempts non-profit organizations and governmental units, and because it is enforced unequally and disparity as to the Plaintiff."

Charlevoix County Deputy Clerk Cherie Browe reported last week that to date Charlevoix Productions had applied for licenses for six productions. Five licenses were issued, but the sixth one, application for which was received on a Thursday for a Sunday concert, could not be processed in the limited period of time.

"Although that license was not issued, neither was it denied, and that concert proceeded as planned," Browe explained.

She noted further that on June 14, the county issued licenses for concerts on June 30, July 1, July 8, July 29, and August 5, and notice of the lawsuit was received on June 15.

Members of the County Board of Commissioners mentioned in the lawsuit are Don Smith of Charlevoix, Walter Hufford of Charlevoix, Tom Breakey of East Jordan, Philip Johnson of Boyne City, Larry Matthew of Walloon Lake, and Ralph Harmon of Boyne Falls. Neither Hufford nor Johnson were members of the County Board when the ordinance was passed. All commissioners declined to comment about the lawsuit at this time.

The Charlevoix County Mass Gathering Ordinance was prepared by Prosecuting Attorney Kraag Lieberman at the request of the County Board after a three-year campaign by the Charlevoix County Chapter of the Michigan Townships Association. Township officials have said they cannot handle the ramifications of large outdoor gatherings with which they have been threatened from time to time.

Marion Township had a Mass Gathering Ordinance of its own for some years, but found that without township prosecuting and law enforcement departments it could not be enforced.

Reible has been quoted in the past as saying that the County Mass Gathering Ordinance is aimed specifically at Castle Farms, with no attention being paid to large gatherings at other places in the county such as Boyne Mountain.

Council seeks standing seat on Chamber of Commerce board

The city council has asked to have a standing position for a councilman on the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Although chamber president Dan Barrons and chamber executive director Jaequeline Merta reacted to the proposal less than enthusiastically at Monday evening's council work session, they said they will put it before the chamber.

City manager Mike Wiesner brought up the idea during discussion of a proposed contract between the council and chamber.

The proposed contract is the child of a controversy which began earlier this year. At that time, the chamber was forming a political action committee. The council chose to with-hold a monthly appropriation, or payment, which the city has been making to the chamber for decades.

Some council members considered the money a contribution. Merta argued the money was compensation for services the chamber provides that the city otherwise would have to.

Either way, attorneys an auditors indicated that if money was exchanging hands on a regular basis, there should be a written contract to cover the transaction.

The proposed contract refers to the money as compensation and as an amount lists an annual fee of $6,700.

Councilman Norm Probert referred to a 1972 agreement - as something of forerunner to the present proposed city-chamber agreement - and said that in that agreement there was a clause in which chamber advertisements and promotions for the city would receive prior approval of the council.

Barron and Merta said that hasn't been the practice for many years. They also noted that with the volume of promotional and advertising work the chamber does it would be unworkable to get council approval on every move.

Barron also pointed out that it runs counter to the chamber board's feelings to have to answer to an outside agency.

Councilmen Ken Whitley, Jim Potter, Bill Haggard and Earl Muma expressed a certain amount of sympathy for the logic of that argument.

In the course of the discussion Wiesner brought up the possibility of having a councilman on the chamber board.

Merta reacted with hesitance, "I don't think that's a standard thing. I think that's atypical."

She noted that mayor Gary Probert and his predecessor

Charlevoix was one of 24 stops on a coastline tour by Governor Jim Blanchard last week. Charlevoix mayor Gary Probert (right) was one of the local officials who greeted Blanchard in East Park. According to Blanchard officials, the tour was a promotion of the Great Lakes. Republicans deemed the tour a campaign junket at the taxpayers' expense. In a brief speech, Blanchard said Charlevoix was beautiful and stressed the importance of water safety.

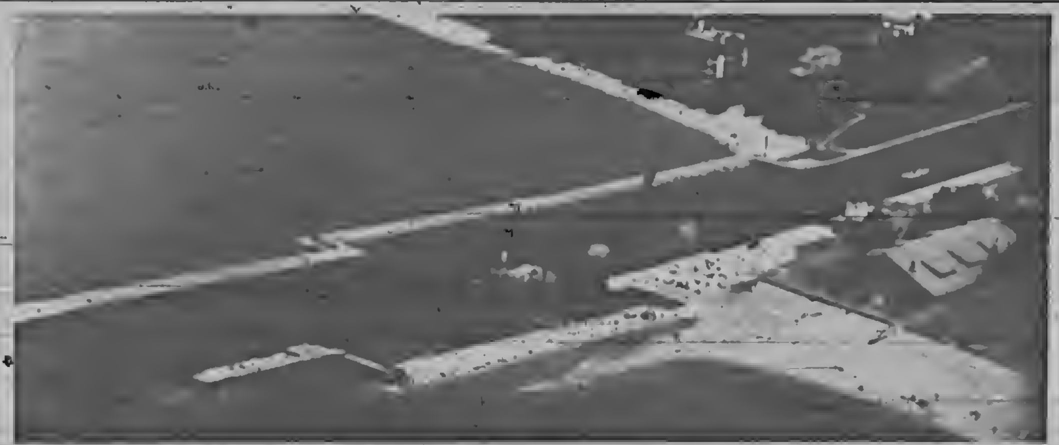
Pier work is ahead of schedule, but without catwalk

Reconstruction work on the south pier is going well. It's ahead of schedule. But for the fishing catwalk, that according to an act of Congress is supposed to be added to the pier, there is no schedule.

Several people involved with south pier reconstruction say they understand the catwalk is to be added sometime after this year, but currently there's no design and no specific source of funding.

Controversy surrounding the pier arose early last year when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced plans to reconstruct the south pier so that it will basically be a mirror image of the north pier.

Wooden cribbing, installed in the 1800s, was supporting the south pier and lighthouse. The cribbing had decayed to the point where the pier was leaning and the lighthouse had a visible list to the north.



Work on the Charlevoix pier is ahead of schedule, but thusfar there is no design for a catwalk to keep pier fishing space from being lost. According to construction supervisors the light house will be put back within the next two weeks and work should be completed by early September. (Photo courtesy of Terry Salmonson, Aartvark Studio.)

Corps plans, which are being implemented, call for sheet piling to be placed at the lake end of the pier, rock rubble to be placed in a U-shaped midsection and more sheet piling to be placed at the shoreline end of the pier. The rock-rubble U section is designed to knock down waves and keep them from rolling up through the channel and causing problems in the harbor.

Local fishermen opposed Corps plans. Fishermen claimed the rock rubble would decrease space for fishing from the pier. Fishermen said a recreational use which had existed for years was being taken away. They called for a fishing catwalk to be placed across the opening of the U-shaped midsection.

The city council supported local fishermen and voted to oppose Corps construction plans unless a catwalk was added. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources said that without city support they wouldn't issue one of the permits needed for reconstruction.

Officials from the Corps said the fishing catwalk, which carries an estimated price tag of $100,000 to $125,000, was recreational and the Corps could only fund navigational work.

Reconstruction work began late last August without city or state approval and without plans for a catwalk.

However, during the course of

Ahead-lines

It's time to enter boat parade

There's incentive to enter Charlevoix's Venetian Boat Parade, Saturday, July 29 – free docking for the fireworks, plus no entry fee. "The Boat Parade was the reason for the first Venetian Festival," comments Charlevoix Chamber Executive Director Jacqueline Merta. "So to encourage boaters and keep the tradition, we are setting aside the main docks in Round Lake. And this year, we will let the sail boats, which parade first, at 8 p.m. tie up at the docks during the lighted boat parade, which doesn't begin until 10 p.m. The lighted boats will join them at the docks during the fireworks.

"We're expecting a very successful parade this year based on the turn out last year and growing interest in maintaining this Charlevoix tradition," Merta continued, explaining that the parade "will have only two divisions, sail boats under sail and lighted and-or decorated boats.

Charlevoix's Venetian Festival became a tradition 59 years ago when a group of summer resorters decided to celebrate summer with a decorated boat contest in Round Lake. Over the years the Venetian Festival has grown to include land-based festivities as well, but the boat parade has remained the focus of the event. In the last several years members of the Charlevoix Yacht Club have volunteered to help revitalize the parade by organizing entries and working with the Chamber of Commerce.

A recent proposal to remove all but parade boats from Round Lake will not be instituted but the Chamber Director explains, "We will see that non-participating boats are more compactly moored in the center of Round Lake."

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will help boaters with decorations, providing 12 volt small white lights and Chinese lanterns. The Chamber suggests boaters obtain portable generators to power lights.

There is no set theme for decorating boats, but many boaters are picking up on the "Hooray for Hollywood Theme" of the Venetian street parade. The Chamber also suggests joining them in celebration of the United States Coast Guard's 200th anniversary.

Prizes will be given the three boats judged "best decorated." Each will received an enlarged, framed, photo of their boat, taken during the parade. Each participant will receive a smaller framed photo of their boat in the parade. There is no fee for entering the parade. The prospects for a nickel Nickels simply try to make the best of things while living in a world of constant change.

Fred was a bright, shiny new nickel, fresh from the mint and ready to circulate.

After only a few transactions, Fred found himself dropped into a man's pocket. Fred jingled as he joined the other change in the pocket; two quarters, a dime and three pennies.

The quarters were inflated, full of themselves and arrogant. They did not make Fred feel welcome.

"That's all we need in here, a cheap nickel. Why we're worth five nickels," the quarters gloated.

"Never mind them," the pennies said, consoling Fred. "That's just the personality of quarters. They're rough around the edges."

"It's jealousy. That's what it is," said the dime. "Quarters are jealous because there are sayings about us and none about quarters."

"A penny saved is a penny earned," said the pennies.

"Brother, can you spare a dime?" said the dime.

"And I wish I had two nickels to rub together," said Fred.

The dime, the pennies and Fred all laughed while the quarters just stood there with stupid looks on their George Washington faces. Those quarters hadn't been so humbled since the last time they shared a pocket with a Susan B. Anthony dollar.

While the quarters turned tails and sulked, Fred and the dime and the pennies struck up a wonderful conversation.

The dime was a 1971 series D and he'd been around some.

"I've seen pockets, cash registers, pay phones and vending machines all across the country," he said.

The three pennies were also old. They'd met in a wishing well, had been together for many years and hoped to stay together. "E Pluribus Unum" was the way they put it.

Fred grew more and more excited as he listened to the pennies and dime tell of the places they'd been and the things they'd seen.

"Before I'm through, I want to see all of those places and more," he gushed with the enthusiasm of youth. "I am young and I'm at liberty. I want to go from coast to coast in the United States. I might even visit Canada. I don't care if they inflate me there to 6.2 cents or discount me to 4.3 cents."

Just then the ill-natured quarters spoke up and shattered Fred's dreams.

"You'll never travel from coast to coast and you'll never see Canada," they said. "You'll be lucky if you ever get out town."

Fred was hurt by what the quarters said and the mean-spirited quarters were enjoying his pain.

"You know where a pitiful little nickel like you will end up?" the quarters said. "You'll probably end up living out your days beneath the seat of a car or stuck between the cushions of a sofa."

Fred cringed. Falling out of a pocket and ending up beneath the seat of a car or in the cushions of a sofa is every nickel's worst nightmare.

"And even if you don't end up in one of those places, you won't travel like you want to," the quarters taunted. "You're a bright, shiny new nickel, but you won't even see as much of the world as the old buffalo-head nickels did."

Fred was crushed by what the quarters said, but he tried to act brave.

"Why won't I be able to travel like the old nickels?" he asked defiantly.

With a smugness and logic which could not be denied, the evil old quarters answered, "You may not like it, but you must admit it's true - a nickel just doesn't go as far as it used to."

Out of the Blue

My respect for the flag when I think of those Who have fought for it grows by the minute,
But I've naught but contempt for those who attempt —
To defraud us - and wrap themselves in it!

Cooperation needed on parking

To the Editor,

My husband and I are both dismayed at the recent articles regarding changing the Ferry Avenue road to the west side of Nanny's. I do believe the council is in need of a long vacation! Maybe there are good reasons for this consideration, but the reasons presented in the paper weren't valid!

The Barnards have worked hard to establish Nanny's as a fine restaurant and over the years, they have succeeded. It is a very reasonable place to eat and the food is fine – along with the atmosphere and the friendly people who work there.

The council will do a great disservice to this community by jeopardizing this establishment.

Please leave well enough alone!

We speak for many who express their displeasure, but don't take the time to put it in writing.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Bob's bike purloined

A couple of weeks ago I lamented that unsavory types in town were stealing hood ornaments from expensive automobiles.

Now I have another complaint.

Someone who is really unsavory stopped by the house the other night and stole my bicycle.

Of course, I shouldn't have left it out in front. Of course, I should have had it locked in the shed. Of course, of course, of course.

But to be honest with you, who — except me — would love a beat-up, 10-year-old Huffy three-speed with a faulty gear shift mechanism and no rear brakes?

Still, it was my bike. I paid for it. It was fun to ride over to Don's IGA to pick up a few groceries and the morning paper. I even mounted a basket over the front wheel recently to make it easier to carry groceries.

Time was when I used to ride my Huffy to Petoskey and back, but I think those days are over. In fact, at my age I'll probably never be foolish enough to buy another bike.

But I am going to miss the old clunker and I hope it has a good home.

I hear that sometimes out-of-towners arrive in pick-up trucks, cruise the streets after dark and pick up everything that isn't nailed down.

I have a hard time imagining my old Huffy actually going downstate to a "chop shop" to be broken down for parts, but stranger things have happened.

I also hear that kids like to pick up untended bikes, ride them around town and dump them in the channel.

How sad! I never taught my bike how to swim.

If you want to keep your bike, take it indoors at night. Or chain it to a tree. Charlevoix is no longer a haven for trusting souls.

Happy Orangemen's Day!

For Protestant Irish, July 12 marks the victory of William III (formerly the Prince of Orange) over Roman Catholic forces at the Battle of the Boyne in 1689.

Although the Orange Society, which was formed after the victory, never was very big in the United States, it is still moderately alive and well in Canada. I am sure a few Canadian towns and villages are hosting Orange parades and picnics today.

Next year's celebration — the 300th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne — probably will be a somewhat noisier.

It's odd that such an obscure historical event is even celebrated at all today, considering the blood that has been let in the name of religion throughout the centuries around the world.

Will we ever learn to love one another?

THE 1989 Hobbycraft Fair is history. And what a fair it was. It had to be one of the biggest exhibits ever — with displays filling East Park and stretching along Round Lake from Antrim Street to Pine River Channel.

Almost without exception, the homemade products on display were of excellent quality — quite a change from the first Hobbycraft Fairs almost a generation ago.

As usual, arrangements of German statice were a hot item, as were hand-hooked and woven rag rugs, dolls, lawn furniture and wooden products of every description.

I couldn't help but marvel at the man-hours represented by the merchandise on display. I imagined the craftsmen plying their trades during long, cold nights last winter — just to have something to sell on a blistering summer day in Charlevoix.

Now the Venetian Festival is only a little more than two weeks away. Then in another two weeks we'll have the Waterfront Art Fair. And then blink your eyes and summer will be over.

ARE WE IN for another drought?

It has been almost three weeks since the last rain and gardens and lawns are beginning to look a little parched.

We need a good, warm, all-night rain to carry us through until the first fall squalls of August.

Editorial

A proposal by the city council for the council to have a standing seat as a voting member of the chamber of commerce board of directors misses the mark.

Chamber directors and-or the chamber's general membership should turn it down flat and cold.

The proposal, formulated during discussion at Monday veening's council work session, may have been based in a reasonable concept, but the end product is undesirable.

If the idea behind the proposal is for the council and chamber to have better communications, that's certainly noble. But that can be accomplished without reserving a council vote on the chamber board.

Afterall, there's no council seat reserved for one of the chamber's board of directors.

Having a chamber board seat reserved for the council would give the council more power in the chamber than it needs or should want.

The chamber and the city council should be, and are, both working to better the community. That can, and is, being done with a certain degree of separation. Some amount of separation of power should remain.

Although the separation of power should remain, the concept of improved communications may have merit. There would be nothing wrong with the council appointing one of its members as a liaison to the chamber. But for the council to have a standing and voting seat on the chamber's board of directors...that can be done without.

Petunia weed battle continues

As they were completing four hours of weeding on U.S. 31, Gehry Wiesner and Matt Gibbons were surprised by a barrel of beer which dropped at their feet, having fallen from a passing beer delivery truck. They recovered the beer and turned it in to Chief of Police Dennis Halverson who was directing traffic at a funeral across the street at St. Mary's Church. In the past, weeders have been rewarded with McDonalds and Burger King certificates, petunia t-shirts and KCB license plates, but never beer.

The battle against weeds in the petunia beds is in full swing. Many volunteers are supplementing workers paid by KCB.

According to Dale and Marilyn Boss, co-chairs of the petunia project, at this stage in the weeding process extra care is needed because many weeds have become intertwined with the petunia roots. In some cases, the weeder must hold the petunia plant with one hand while weeding with the other. Of course, they said to avoid weeding from the gutter. Stand or, as Robert Hooper recommends, "sit on the grass with both feet on the curb. It's easier on the back."

Tribal fishing regulation sought

Congressman Bob Davis' proposal to bring in an independent party to mediate the Michigan Indian fishing problem got a warm reception June 29 from Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan.

During a 30 minute private meeting in Lujan's office, Davis reminded the Secretary how a similar effort had been successful on the Columbia River in the northeast U.S. An agreement was negotiated that satisfied both sportsmen and Indian tribes.

"Obviously a settlement satisfying both sides would be the ideal situation," Davis said. "We have already begun the very preliminary process of identifying possible mediators."

The mediator chosen would probably be someone with national stature in both the Indian and sportsmen communities.

Davis also used the meeting to lobby Lujan for the State of Michigan's proposed restrictions on Indian fishing in Lake Superior. The 11th District representative pointed to "irrefutable", State of Michigan evidence that fish populations had been harmed by the fishing. Davis is the vice-chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

He said he left the meeting with the feeling that "restrictions of the type we are pushing are well within the power of the Secretary. However, the process will take months before a final decision is made."

Davis said there was little question that Lujan considered Michigan's Indian fishing problem "something that will not simply go away. He is open-minded and willing to look at a variety of options."

Garden Club quilt raises funds

The hand-made appliqued wild flower quilt being displayed in downtown Charlevoix stores this month is more than just another quilt.

It's known as "Anna Belle's Wild Flower Quilt" in tribute to Charlevoix Area Garden Club member Anna Belle Webb who spent many hours identifying wild flowers in nearby Mt. McSauba Nature area. Webb is considered a mainstay of the club and was honored with a life membership by another affiliate of the Michigan Federation of Garden Clubs.

The pale rose and green quilt is also a lesson in botany. with each flower named stitched by Carol Dutcher.

It is a one-of-a-kind quilt which will become a "collectible." Art teacher and summer resident Robert Eary assisted with the design which was executed by Nancy Fowler and Mary Helen Riggle with other club members doing the appliquing and quilting. The quilt may be used as a queen bed coverlet or double bed spread.

The quilt also represents this year's fund raiser by the club which will be given away August 12 at 4 p.m. at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. If the winner is an out of town resident the quilt will be shipped.

Proceeds will be used for conservation and education programs and also maintenance of the Father Charlevoix and other gardens under the aegis of the club.

Mary Biddick, Reatha Trentham and Maggi Wilson are in charge of fundraising sales. Serving on the committee for quilt and poster displays are Marie Slone, Nancy Wood, Derith Lane, Lois Lewis and Ida Stewart.

Charlevoix merchants cooperating with the project include Carey's Shoe Store, Trademark Clothiers, The Clothing Company, Country Customs and Koucky Gallery.

CHURCH

New Baptist church formed

Perry Fowler and his wife Janice have come to Charlevoix with a mission.

They have been appointed by the Home Missions Board of the Southern Baptist Convention to start a church in Charlevoix. The church, to be called the "Safe Harbor Southern Baptist Church," will begin holding Bible Study classes on August 3 and Sunday Church services in mid-September.

The Rev. Perry Fowler

The Charlevoix church will be the young pastor's (he's 25) first church responsibility although he has served as assistant pastor and youth minister in several churches in Arkansas and Texas and has held several revivals.

Fowler describes Southern Baptists as being "evangelistic and conservative in nature." He also explained that "Southern Baptist" is simply a convention name which really does not refer to the south.

"We accept people for what they are and want to work with people who are not churched," Fowler said. "We are missionaries who want to share the gospel of Jesus Christ here and abroad. We will be a loving church. Love will be the theme of our church."

Fowler has been assisted in laying the groundwork for the new church by a group of young people from the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist Church of Atlanta, Georgia. They helped with a telephone survey of local people, asking them about their church affiliation and by going door-to-door telling people of the church's mission.

"Janice and I love Charlevoix," Fowler said enthusiastically. "The people have been really nice and receptive. The survey showed that there is room in Charlevoix for our church and we are looking forward to working with the other churches, too."

Perry and Janice Fowler are also looking forward to the birth of their first child, who will be born in the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Bruce E. Hamilton
Community Church of God

Have you ever stopped to think about all the things that bring people to northwest Michigan in the summer time? What better climate could you ask for? How about all those wonderful beaches? Don't forget the fishing! There are all kinds of entertainment options. But there is another reason that brings people to our area at this time of year, perhaps one of the oldest reasons of all, campmeeting.

My definition for campmeeting is the gathering of the saints, usually in an outdoor setting, for a special time of worshipping and praising God. There is something exciting about seeing the greater family of believers come from far and wide. People who days before had never even met act like they have been brothers and sisters all their lives because of what the Lord has done in their lives.

The singing has always made me wonder if that isn't what heaven's choirs would sound like. The harmonies that emerge are borne not so much out of any special musical training. They come from lives who have experienced the touch of God's hand through all kinds of trials and joys. It's not that praying is any different in a campmeeting than in a normal church setting. But when you know your concerns will be carried back to God's family in many different parts of the state or country, your burden becomes lighter at the very moment you sense others are truly sharing it with you. An evangelist that has focused months of preparation, effort, and time with the Lord can pour out a holy anointing that will change your life forever.

There are four campmeetings that I am directly aware of in our area. The Interdenominational Campmeeting usually starts the season at their site just north of Boyne City. The Greensky Hill Campmeeting on Old 31 North begins this Thursday.

The other two campmeetings have their roots in my church family. Our parish was born as a result of them. The Church of God Family Camp began in 1892 near Holy Island. It moved to its present site off of Loeb Road in 1906. Community Church grew out of it in 1912. Since then, during the last week of June and the second week of July, the saints come back to the north country for weeks of praising and blessing God.

Be on the lookout for some of the campmeeting folks that are in town both at Greensky and out on Loeb Road. You'll find them to be pretty special people. Campmeeting is just one more reason why our area is such a unique place to be in the summer time.

Hymn sing

The Charlevoix Ministerial Association is sponsoring a community hymn sing this Sunday evening, July 16, at 7 p.m. The Community Church of God on West Hurlbut Street is the host congregation.

The program revolves around the theme "Let All The People Praise Him." There will be special music from six area churchs, favorite hymns and an opportunity for selection of audience favorites.

A love offering will be received that will go towards ongoing outreach funded by the Association. For more information, call the Community Church of God office at 547-2875.

Local historian Bill Ohle has written a history of Horton Bay, chronicling the lore of the area.

Local author writes Horton Bay history

"Grandpa, tell me what it was like around here in the olden days."

What was it like around Charlevoix County following the Civil War when the lands were covered with tall trees and homesteaders began arriving in droves to seek their fortunes by cutting the trees, selling the timber, and clearing the land for farming?

And what was it like after the trees were gone and the thin layer of soil on top of glacial rock could not produce crops in sufficient quantity to make their growing profitable?

Just what is there about the area that has kept descendents of early settlers "on the land" and lured others northward over a period of more than 125 years?

Local historian William H. Ohle, who has deep roots in Horton Bay, has written about those early days in a book designed to educate and entertain.

"How It Was in Horton Bay, Charlevoix County, Michigan" is a carefully researched history, lightened with tales of interesting people and hints of how we became a land of sailboaters, skiers, condominiums, and fine restaurants while retaining a core of hard-working men and women.

In 1856, after being held up by three days of bad weather in Charlevoix, Sam Horton decided to turn his boat "The Rover" toward the eastern end of what is now Lake Charlevoix rather than risk the waves of Lake Michigan toward Grand Rapids, his original destination. He and his family moved into an abandoned Mormon cabin and were the first permanent settlers of the village that now bears his name.

From that time on, Ohle chronicles the arrival of homesteaders and the establishment of saw mills, the beginning of the Horton Bay tore, the Horton Bay Post Office, the churches, the schools, and local politics. He tells about colorful characters, famous restaurants (signs of things to come), and summer residents, on through a chapter on Ernest Hemingway, whose teen-age experiences in Horton Bay served as the background for several of his short stories and brought him back to be married in the little Horton Bay Methodist Church.

What was it like around here in the olden days? it was hard work; it was fun; it was poor times, occasionally good times; it was one-room school houses; it was long, cold winters spent anticipating the arrival of "summer people"; it was good fishing and good hunting. But most of all, it was a feeling of belonging, a place to leave only for the pursuit of higher learning and jobs, and a place to return to when working days were over.

"How It Was in Horton Bay" will soon be available in several shops in Charlevoix as well as in the Charlevoix Historical Society Museum. It will be a "must" for those who enjoy reading local history.

Big Rock summer tours are available to the public

"Let me show you my dad's power plant." That is the offer being extended to the community this summer by a new tour guide at the Big Rock Point nuclear plant. Pamela Horstman will provide public tours of the Consumers Power Company generating facility weekday mornings beginning Wednesday, July 5, through the months of July and August.

Pam is the daughter of Donald Horstman, a reactor operator with 28 years of experience at the plant. She has been hired for the summer to help expand the plant's ongoing tour program and accommodate the many requests for tours from local residents and vacationers in the area.

Pam will show visitors a brief audio-visual presentation about the plant's operation and then escort them around the site.

Although the tours are free, visitors must obtain tickets to participate. Tickets are available from the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, 408 Bridge Street, Charlevoix, and from the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, 401 E. Mitchell Street, Petoskey. Visitors must be at least 10 years of age and must bring some form of identification with them to the plant.

Plant tours are part of the Big Rock Point tradition, They were started when the plant was under construction in the early 1960s; by the mid 1970s, the plant had hosted more than a million people from all over the world. At one point, Big Rock Point was one of Michigan's most popular tourist attractions. Although the visitor program is much smaller today, the plant routinely provides tours to groups from across Michigan and the country.

HOW WOULD RISING ENERGY DEMAND, FALLING INTEREST RATES AND INDUSTRY MERGERS AFFECT UTILITY STOCKS?

FIND OUT AT OUR FREE SEMINAR.

Our research analysts see these as three compelling reasons why selected utility stocks, and electric utility stocks in particular, offer compelling investment value today.

Demand for electricity in this country has increased 20% in the last five years, and is expected to continue to rise.

Utility stocks have historically outperformed the broader market in times of declining interest rates. Right now, we believe interest rates have peaked.

And we believe the wave of mergers and consolidation in the utility industry – as evidenced by the 14 transactions proposed or consummated over the last 18 months – has only begun.

Come hear the views of Shearson Lehman Hutton's Senior Utility Analyst and Sr. Vice President Edward J. Tirello. Find out how you can take advantage of today's favorable outlook for the utilities industry.

Cedar homes shipped worldwide

by PEG OHLE

Perhaps the most interesting piece of housing news around northern Michigan last spring was that a 5,000 square foot house was being shipped from Petoskey to Japan.

The white cedar house was crafted by artisans at Town & Country Cedar Homes and put into four containers for truck travel to Chicago, rail travel to Seattle, boat travel to Yokohama, and more truck travel to a site at the foothills of the Japanese Alps.

Stephen Biggs, president of Town & Country, said at the time that this was the largest house his company had shipped to Japan, but not the first. During 1988, the company shipped 16 homes to that country.

The Japanese people seem to prize Michigan white cedar, which does not grow in Japan, and which is the basic wood of Town & Country homes. This cedar does grow profusely in northern Michigan and is also prized here for its durability and insect and rot resistance.

While the shipment of a large house half way around the world was a dramatic event in the life of Town & Country, its craftsmen have quietly produced over 4,000 homes for customers throughout the United States and abroad, many of them for people in its own back yard of northern Michigan.

Now, Town & Country has a sales office in Charlevoix, located on the north side of the bridge in the Edgewater Inn Shops. Sales Counselor Gloria Everts has a supply of booklets explaining the manufacturing process of the homes, with pictures and architectural layouts.

"We kiln-dry the wood and cut it into timbers the exact size and dimension called for in the house plans. Then we assemble the house according to the plans so it is ready to be erected," a booklet explains.

The company has many different plans for homes and its method of construction, of course, drastically cuts the time between "deciding to build" and "moving in."

Inquiries about Town & Country Cedar Homes and Boyne Falls Log Homes may be directed to the Charlevoix office in the Edgewater Inn, or to headquarters offices on U.S. 131 South in Petoskey.

Todd Warner animal works to be shown

Todd Warner, the sculptor whose tall thin antic animal sculptures have become national collectors' items, is bringing his fabulous creatures back to Charlevoix's Koucky Gallery, for a limited showing July 13 through August 2.

The return to Charlevoix is a sentimental journey for the artist who began his sculpting career here almost twenty years ago. Now living in Boca Raton, Florida, Warner displays his nearly life-sized whimsical versions of camels, gnus, flamingoes, grizzly bears, wildebeasts and other exotica from coast to coast, in galleries and special exhibitions.

The artist is in the midst of a special commission to create a virtual zoo full of tropical animals for the Orlando, Florida airport. Among the national galleries which carry Warner's works are the prestigious Elaine Horwitch Galleries in New Mexico, Arizona and California, The Zenith Gallery in Washington D.C., Whichcraft on Long Beach Island, New Jersey, and the Pavo Real Galleries of New York City, Chicago and Boston.

Inspired by a lifetime interest in animals, Warner's creatures are a melange of North American, African and various tropical species. He delights in creating loveable characters out of such unlikely subjects as warthogs. At times, his zany animals parody the human condition with gentle humor, such as the frustrated crocodile whose open jaws are straddled by a grinning flamingo. Other pieces often cause viewers to pause and smile. A gentle giant of a pachaderm swings long tusks, nearby a small herd of three gazelle smile benignly, while across the gallery a war party of three determined Indians race on three narrow ponies, whose necks stretch forward and tails and manes sweep back in the rushing wind.

Warner's tall thin works are created from a combination of stoneware, steel and wood. According to Nancy Koucky, "People use them for entrance way pieces, sometimes as subtle room dividers. Last year we had a physician buy several for his waiting room because he felt they would make his patients laugh."

"We're fortunate that Todd began his career in the Charlevoix area," Chuck Koucky observes. "Otherwise we'd probably not get him here. He comes here because he loves northern Michigan. It's almost impossible for us to keep up with the demand for his work."

Warner is introducing two new animals this year, according to Chuck Koucky. "Hairey the Camel, is a hilarious two-humped Bactrian camel from central Asia, which stands about six feet tall from the top of his highest hump. And there's Grizzly Bear, a friendly looking character about four feet tall. Todd has added a new technique of texturing to bring even more realism to Hairey and Grizzly."

The Todd Warner show opens July 13 with a reception July 14, when Warner will be on hand to discuss his work.

Help offered for tax problems

"Michigan taxpayers who meet delays or encounter difficulties in resolving federal tax problems can get help from our Problem Resolution Program, (PRP) office," said IRS District Director John Hummel.

"The PRP office helps taxpayers who have had unsuccessful contacts with the IRS. The taxpayer generally deals with one person who has the authority to cut through red tape and handle problems promptly," Hummel added.

According to the IRS, the most common problems brought to the PRP office are inquiries about missing refunds, mixed up social security numbers, incorrect billings by IRS, or mistakes made by the taxpayer.

"Problem Resolution should not be used as a substitute for normal channels, because almost all problems can be resolved before they reach the PRP office," said Hummel. "Also, PRP cannot be used to appeal the decision of a tax examination. However, for the taxpayer who has contacted us before and whose problem remains unresolved, PRP can certainly help," he said.

The IRS Problem Resolution Program office can be reached by calling the IRS toll free number, 1-800-424-1040, and asking for Problem Resolution.

... council wants seat on chamber's board

Ralph McRae have attended chamber meetings.

Barron said making provisions for the city council to have a standing seat on the chamber board would require amending the chamber charter and would be a departure from the norm.

But with the exception of councilmen Bill Haggard and Jim Potter, council members and the mayor indicated they liked the idea.

Potter said having a council member vote at chamber meetings would be like having a chamber member vote at council meetings.

Haggard posed the possibility of the council person being a nonvoting member of the chamber board. But the majority of the council wanted a voting member.

Barron said he feels the council and chamber should work as partners, but without chamber decisions being subject to review by council or council decisions being subject to review by the chamber.

However, Barron and Merta said they will run the proposal by the chamber board.

Progress made on Ferry Ave./Nanny's problem

The city council and the owner of Nanny's restaurant have moved a step closer to resolving their differences over rerouting Ferry Avenue.

At Monday evening's council work session a majority of council members and Nanny's owner Mike Barnard decided the latest alternative proposal is something both sides can live with.

The matter became a subject of debate due to plans to move Ferry Avenue its current location, between Nanny's and the lake, to a new location, on the old railway grade behind Nanny's.

The city wants the new section of Ferry Avenue north of Stover Road to line up as closely as possible with the section of Ferry Avenue south of Stover Road.

Barnard indicated he wasn't comfortable with the original plans for rerouting because it would have put Ferry Avenue too close to the back of Nanny's and would have decreased the number of parking spaces.

The latest proposal was drafted by local surveyor John Ferguson. Ferguson is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and said he voluntarily drew up the proposal because he didn't want to see another community business such as Nanny's harmed.

The proposal would place a slight curve in the relocated Ferry Avenue. Although the north end of Ferry Avenue wouldn't line up exactly as the city would like it to, it will be very close and several parking spots will be saved.

Jim Malowicz, an engineer who has been working with the city on Ferry Avenue plans, said that ideally the angle between Stover Road and Ferry Avenue would be 90 degrees, but with this proposal it will be approximately 85 degrees. He said the intersection is large enough so that shouldn't be a traffic problem.

Although none of the councilmen said they were deadset against the alignment, a straw vote still only came out 4-3 in favor with mayor Gary Probert casting the deciding vote.

Councilmen Butch Russell, Norm Probert and Ken Whitley didn't want to take a stand on the alignment until some other issues are resolved.

The railroad right of way property in question, where Nanny's customers park, is owned by the city. Nanny's pays $1 a year to lease the site for parking.

Whitley and Russell indicated they would like to charge a higher lease fee.

Barnard maintains that in an agreement with a previous city council the lease fee was set at $1 by in exchange for Barnard giving up his property rights to the railroad right of way.

At Monday evening's meeting, Barnard claimed that when the city purchased the railroad right of way from the railway company several years ago, they in effect paid $33,000 for property they were going to get anyway when the railway was abandoned.

Last week, Barnard pointed out that the city received a quitclaim rather than a warranty deed to the property. According to Barnard, and also as explained to councilmen by city attorney Jim Young, in a quitclaim deed the seller of the property is simply deeding over any interest he may have in the property. In a warranty deed, which is more standard, the seller of the property is offering a warranty as to what that interest is.

When councilmen asked Monday evening if the lease fee could be raised, city manager Mike Wiesner said that Young had reviewed the previous agreement with Barnard and felt the city could negotiate a higher lease fee.

In breaking the tie on the road alignment, Gary Probert said the council can accept the road alignment proposal and consider the lease fee at a later date.

Beaver Island summer art program begins

Kitty McNamara, principal of the 65-student Beaver Island Community School, has announced the second season of the Beaver Island Arts Project. The Arts Project provides free theatre-improvisation, dance and visual arts workshops to visitors and island residents of all ages. "Because of a large increase in our funding here on the Island and from the Cheboygan Area Arts Council, we can offer twelve hours of classes per week, up from last year's eight hours. We'll be adding a dance element to the improvisation workshops and a sketching class for adults," says Ms. McNamara.

The classes will again be taught by visual artist Pat Hough, and her husband, actor Josh Broder, who split their time between New York city and Beaver Island. Pat Hough has shown her paintings in New York City and Michigan. Her exhibitions have been reviewed in the Village Voice, Art Scene, The New York Art Review and on ABC News. Through her company, Tools for Communication, she has taught workshops for BACA-The Brooklyn Arts Council, the Guggenheim Museum, the Teachers and Writers Collaborative and The New York Public Library.

In New York, Josh Broder has worked at the New York Shakespeare Festival under the direction of Second City founder Paul Sills. Currently he is a member of the Irondale Ensemble Project, a New York based company that creates original theater pieces and conducts theater game and experiential learning workshops at schools, universities and prisons in the New York City area. His work has been critiqued in The New York Times, The Village Voice, American Theater, Theater Magazine and Dance Magazine. Most recently his workshop on Riker's Island, New York City's largest prison, was featured on the National Public Radio broadcast Morning Edition.

This summer the classes will cover a broader spectrum of the visual and performing arts. "Between the increase in hours and having a core group familiar with basic imrprov from last summer, I'll be able to broaden the kind of work we do," says Broder, whose workshop is open to adults and to students in the seventh grade and older. "Last year the group did a Second City style on-the-spot improvise show where the scenses come from audience suggestions. This time around I hope to add in story theatre, scenario improv and dance improv. It's like a mircocosm of the development of American improvisation since the Second City gang came on the scene thirty years ago."

This summer adults will have the opportunity to work with Hough as well as Broder. A weekly sketching class for adults will be added to the visual arts workshops open to elementary school children. "I want to maintain a sense of continuity with the children who participated last summer as well as expand the program to include new children. My goal is to provide art exercises that fit the creative needs of these children. In the adult sketching class I want to foster a sense of community between myself and the other artists on the Island and also include anyone else who is interested regardless of skill or experience. I see it as an opportunity to get together and see the Island through drawing."

The Arts Project culminates with a performance and art show in late August.

The last nine months in New York have given both Hough and Broder opportunities to expand their work. As an Artist in Residence in a Brooklyn Public School Hough curated and installed two exhibits of childrens' art and as an Artist-Museum Consultant she designed and implemented a museum for children based on immigration themes. "I am enjoying seeing my Arts-in-Education work expanding beyond the classroom because it gives me a wider range of creative expression and a more expansive sensibility in designing new teaching projects."

Broder played the title role in a film project his theater company, The Irondale Ensemble, is collaborating on with director Jonathan Demme (Married to the Mob, Something Wild, Stop Making Sense, etc.). "The piece is based on Chekov's Uncle Vanya but is set in a radio station in Charlevoix believe it or not," explains Broder. "Irondale developed the piece for the stage a couple of years ago and in early improvisation I used Charlevoix when the station signed on the air. It's been Charlevoix ever since. In February Jonathan filmed the first fifteen minutes of the piece and now we're using that reel to get funding to do the whole thing."

While the bulk of their time is spent in New York, the balance is shifting towards Beaver Island. "We're grateful to the Island community and the Cheboygan Area Arts Council for making the Beaver Island Arts Project possible," says Hough. "It brings us home."

Be wary of swimmers itch

Outbreaks of "swimmers' itch" or "schistosome dermatitis" have been reported to the Health Department. Swimmers' itch has been known since the 19th century, particularly in the logging days. It probably has been around as long as people have bathed or swam in water.

The dermatitis results from swimming or wading in schistosome-infected lakes or ponds. Other areas include marshes, streams, or river mouths. The lesion manifests itself as scattered papules, each papule representing the site of penetration of a schistosome cercariae. Cercariae are free-swimming larvae worms produced in the tissues of certain snails. Schistosome cercariae in Michigan are able to penetrate human skin but are immobilezed there and cause no systemic problems.

there and cause no systemic problems.

Birds, snails, and parasitic worms are linked together in a very complex relationship. As in most other areas, evidence points to various bird species as the principal definitive hosts (blackbird, duck or goose). However, vertebrate hosts such as rodents may also be infected. Cercariae penetrate the skin of birds and transform into adult worms. Feces of infected birds contain schistosome eggs which, upon contact with water, hatch into another free-swimming stage, the miracidium. Miracidia penetrate snails, which later produce cercariae to complete the schistosome life cycle.

Cercariae of avian schistosomes may enter the skin of bathers or swimmers in different ways. Some actually penetrate while the individual is swimming, while cercariae of other species appear to enter only after the person has emerged from the water. In any event, cercarial entry can be felt as a dull, prickly and itchy sensation. In sensitized individuals a small reddened area will develop at the site of entrance of each cercariae. Intermittent periods of itching will ontinue for several days. Many persons suffering from cercarial dermatitis experience the most severe itching early in the morning. After approximately 24 hours, the redened areas reach their largest size. Swimmers who have repeated exposures, may

by A. NONY MOUSE

Last week, at this time, it was out of the rocking chair and into Race 1 of the CYC, Wednesday Night at the Races, Summer Series. At about 4 p.m. we boarded HSMM (His Son's Mortgaged Machine) for pre-race practice to help me get used to a very different boat. A few tacks and lots of spinnaker jibes later, we were down at Two Mile Point, sighting down both ends of the starting line to find some object on shore to later reference if we should be starting near the middle of the line (these sights will then enable us to know when we're on the line). We also sailed down the line to see which end is favored, either by being closer to the first mark or up wind from the other end. Phil had done a good job setting the line so there wasn't enough difference to dictate at either end-of-line start. We had been checking the breeze at regular intervals, our last check showed a slight clockwise shift but still, port tack was going to be the one that would make money going to Pine Point. The first fleet, Jib and Main, started all bunched up at the mark end, which didn't make much sense, so the second fleet, mostly P-26's, spread out and had a much better start. When we noticed most of our fleet seemed to be down the line, we decided to start at the mark and, at the gun, crossed the line in clear air on starboard tack. But, then Minors in Possession, Bandit and Mud Duck quickly passes us as, at the Pine Point mark, had almost everybody else.

While we were on the way to Belvedere the Lord looked down and saw a big bunch of boats way out in front. He said: "Let there be Calm!", and, within seconds, there was a half mile diameter parking lot right in the middle of the course. (Unfortunately, Cygnus and Sunkist were already out of both our and the Lord's fields of vision and they sailed cheerfully on to the Two Mile Point finish.) Now such parking lots are great "Equalizers" as the boats in back still have a little air and a great view of the parked fleet. Being lucky, we were way back and thus able to sail around most of the parking lot. As the breeze filled in we did a real neat outside-to-inside jibe at the mark and passed another few boats but also got clear air for the spinnaker run to the finish. At the dock we learned from Dave Pike that his Sunkist was not in the series and so we now had first place in Fleet C. It's always better to be lucky than good (of course; both is best) and we had been very lucky.

Note that "Stewart, the Younger" did the fantastic job of driving Cygnus to first in B which also gave him First Overall (1:28:20) by 10 minutes over Nancy (1:38:00), first in JAM; and Slapshot (1:38:12) first in Fleet A by one second on Apprentice (1:38:13). Our (HSMM) first in C was a poor 1:45:29. We'll catch up on the other positions when we have the results of the several protests.

Over the past weekend, three divisions competed in the George LaBlance Memorial Regatta from Charlevoix to St. James on Saturday and in Sunday's return event. In some really tight competition the use of total elapsed time as a tiebreaker was required to determine these final results:

Division 1, Jib and Main: Caberet, Hot Mustard, Stalworth.

Division 2, P-26: Lost Vermonter, Cygnus, Sandpiper.

... swimmers itch

demonstrate increase size of the affected areas, especially if aggravated by persistent and intense itching. The victim suffers the most during the first four or five days after exposure. After a week, the reddened areas usually disappear, leaving a spot that resembles a small bruise. Individuals should contact their family physician when the diagnosis in unclear, complications such as infection is present, or the reaction is intensely itchy and intolerable.

Sensitivity to schistosome cercariae varies with each individual. Some who contact the parasite will never show an allergic reaction, while others are very prone to cercarial invasion. Members from the same family may demonstrate various degrees of susceptability.

The itchy, reddened and raised areas are often confused with bites from chiggers (red bug) or from mosquitoes. The symptoms may also be misdiagnosed as those resulting from poison ivy or stinging nettles. However, itching is limited to the points of cercarial entry, will not spread and never develops into watery blisters. Chigger bites are usually located at points where clothing contacts the skin such as around wrists, waist, ankles, etc. Cercariae usually enter the skin randomly over the exposed portion of the body.

There are several preventive measures that can be followed to eliminate or to reduce the problem of swimmers' itch. First, avoid situations that encourage birds to remain in areas where people frequent water. Feeding these birds should be strongly discouraged. Michigan laws do not allow for harassment of waterfowl, however. Second, some species of snails deposit their eggs on concrete walls or on rocks that have been used as rip-rap to prevent erosion of the shoreline. Not only do the rocks serve as a base for snail eggs, but they afford protection to the snails against wave action.

If recreational areas are being developed on a lake, it is advisable to have the swimming area on the northern and western shores. It appears that most swimmers contact cercariae while swimming on eastern and southern lakeshores. The reason appears to lie in the fact that the free-swimming stage (cercaria) of some schistosome species float to the surface of the water and drift with the wind to the shore. In fact, it is possible for these cercariae to be passively carried up to several miles from the infected snail. For this reason, if swimmers' itch is a problem in a specific area, it is not advisable for individuals to swim following a strong and persistent on-shore wind. Because winds in Michigan are often westerly or northerly, people contact the parasites on eastern and southern shores.

It should be noted that children who continually go in and out of the shallow water often get heavy cases of cercarial dermatitis. Continuous swimming along the shore should be avoided because large numbers of cercariae can accumulate there.

A final preventive measure for combating swimmers' itch is to towel off immediately after leaving the water. Floating cercariae of some species of schistosomes are sticky and attach to the body as the bather leaves the water. As an individual emerges from the water, the cercariae enter the skin as the body air dries. All parts of the body should be dried immediately.

The most frequently used method to control schistosome dermatitis is the application of molluscicide agents to beaches to kill infected snails. Copper sulfate is a registered molluscicide for use in Michigan. A permit application is required and may be obtained from the Department of Natural Resources. Their address in Inland Lake Management Unit, Department of Natural Resources, Stevens T. Mason Building, Lansing, Michigan 48909, telephone (517) 373-8000.

Lyme disease is a growing state concern

Lyme disease is now the most common tick-borne disorder in the United States. An estimated 5,000 to 15,000 new cases occur each year in 43 states across America. The disease has been present in Europe for over 100 years.

Michigan does not require reporting cases of Lyme disease. Voluntary reports started in 1985 with the first case. As of 6-30-89, 72 cases of lyme disease have been reported since 1984. 23 in the Upper Peninsula and 49 in lower Michigan. Between 1985 and 1987, 22 cases were reported in Michigan. During 1988, a total of 36 cases were reported. Since the first of the year, 14 cases have been reported. In northern Michigan, only one possible case has been reported (Montmorency County) and the ticks which can carry Lyme disease have not been detected.

The highest risk months in Michigan for contacting the disease are May, June and July. The infectious agent is carried by a deer tick. Adult ticks mate and feed primarily on deer in the late fall. The female ticks fall to the ground and deposit eggs which hatch into larvae that are active late the following summer. After a blood meal and larvae molt to the nymphal stage which is active the following spring to mid-summer. The nymphs are the chief threat to humans – about 70 to 90 percent of all cases are caused by nymph bites. It is during this period that most humans become infected. After another blood meal the nymphs molt to the adult stage completing its two year life cycle.
